KIMMEL SAYS HIS MIND IS RESTORED

Claimant, Recovering From Operation on Brain, Tells of Future Plans.

APPEARANCE IS CHANGED

Man Little Resembles ex-Convict of Few Days Ago-Proof Will Be Offered of Assault Committed in St. Louis in 1898.

CHICAGO, May 18. — (Special.)— George A. Kimmel, as he calls himself, come out successfully from an operation performed to remove a deof an assumain 14 years ago. In a remarkable interview today he declared that his old personality had wholly come back to him, that he knew himself as the former Niles, Mich., banker and that all the events of his early life had become as clear as they could be expected to be, allowing for the ordinary fading of memory with the lapse years. Certainly Kimmel, if he is Kimmel, has changed marvelously since the eranial operation that he says has re-stored his mind. In his room at the Robert Burns Hospital he sat, a changed man. His eye mashed intelligence. On his features was an expression of culture and business accumen. Scarcely in any respect did he resemble the man culted andrew J. White, an ex-convict, who, dull of eye, issling and uncertain in thought and speech, entered the operating room a Story of Rise Told. "Fourteen years ago," said Kimmel.

"I was 31 years old. I had my ambitions, as every sensible young man has. My plans were all laid, with the ardor of 31 years, to make something really great of myself.
"At 31 I had been president for a time of our family bank—the Farmers'

State Bank of Arkaneas City, Kan. Later my uncle took the place nomi-nally, but as cashier I continued to be the active head of the institution. I was a cuming business man, I had a little property and all looked bright." Assisted by his reawakened memory, he will seek to establish his identity in the couris to obtain possession of real estate and personal property which, the time of his injury, in 1888, he valued at $25,200. Mrs. Estelle Kimmel, of Niles, mother of the missing man, calls the present claimant an impostor. The names of the three men who assaulted me in St. Louis have come back to me." he said, "but I will not disclose them now."

"What was the metive for their attack?" he was asked.

'It was a financial motive. I will tell the story in detail as it has come back to me. In July, 1898, the bank at Arkansas City had beinght, as a speculation, $19,000 par value of school bonds of Creswell township, Kansas, which the township had defaulted. The bonds were guaranteed by the state. So I took them in person to the Stais Treasurer at Topeka to demand payment. I requested that instead of giving me cash the Treasurer mail a draft to the bank. He premised to do so.

Part of Story Withheld.

On returning as I neared Kansas City, an acquaintance—one of the men when I refuse to name—met me on the train. train. - Did you bring the money for the bonds" he asked. "'No," I answered.

"He inquired about some money, $529, which I had on deposit in the American National Bank in Kansas City. Then he must have telegraphed ahead to the the money should be awaiting me at the Midland Hotel. When I arrived at the Midland Hotel. When I arrived at the hotel the cashier, much to my surprise, handed me the $529, saying that the bank had sent it in accordance with What happened next?"

"What happened next"

"Well, I was drugged—but you must racuse me. The story of the attack made upon me I must reserve until I tell it in court. I know I was taken to St. Louis, and when walking on Sixcenth street in the dark I was assembled and left for dead.

When I recovered my health my mind was dazed, but I still had some licker of intelligence left. I found to my amassment that without my knowing it, a policy on my life for $28,000 had been taken out, naming my mother as beneficiary. I had taken out a $5000 policy in the New York Life. For this mysterious policy the same medical examination report was used." "Was it your mother who took out the 15000 policy?" was usked. "You must draw your own inference is to that." he said.

SENATE PRESIDENT

Carson, Dimick and Malarkey Are Said to Be Aspirants in Upper House.

MARION MAN MOST ACTIVE

Letters Sent to All Holdover Senators Asking Support-C. N. Mc-Arthur Groomed as Speaker of House by Friends.

Speculation as to the organization of the Oregon Legislature already is current, although the actual election of presiding officers will not take place until the lawmakers assemble in biennial seasion at Salem January 12. So far as the State Senate is concerned, speculation as to its officers has assumed definite shape at this early date. Three of the 15 holdover members of the upper house are aspirants for the presidency of that body and at least two of them are seeking already to find out how badly their colleagues desire to award to them the coveted honor of presiding officer.

The three are John A. Carson, of Marion: Walter A. Dimick, of Clackamas, and Dan J. Malarkey, of Multinomah. Of the trio, Mr. Carson is the most active. He has written the holdover Senators, requesting their support of his candidacy for the Presidency.

Dimick Said to Aspire.

Some time ago, when urged to become a candidate against W. C. Hawley for the Republican nomination for Representative in the First Congressional District, Mr. Dimick let it become known that if he declined to enter the Congressional race he would seek election as President of the Senate next Winter. The Clackamas County man did not enter the race against Hawley and is reported to be planning an aggressive campaign for presiding officer of the Senate.

Although Mr. Malarkey has not made any statement as to his candidacy, he is being pushed forward as a candidate by his friends, including some of his associates in the last legislative session. There also is another rumor in circulation to the effect that if the contest between Carson, Dimick and Malarkey becomes badly complicated, either L. E. Bean or W. W. Calkins, the two holdover Senators from Lane County, may go after the presidency.

Early Campaign Probable. Dimick Said to Aspire

Early Campaign Probable.

Thirteen of the 15 holdover members of the State Senate are Republican aspirants for President of the Senate a field of 13 to work upon in advance of the election next November, when the other 15 members of the upper house will be elected. It is the practice of Senators seeking the office of presiding officer to begin early and assemble what strength they can from among the holdover members and take chances of enlisting the support of a sufficient number of the newly-elected members laier in the campaign to land the coveted plum. are the two holdover Democrats.
In the case of the House, the situation is different. The 60 members of this branch are elected blennially for one term. They will not be elected until next November. However, friends of C. N. McArthur, one of the 12 candidates for State Representative on the Republican ticket from this county, aiready are grooming him for the speakership next Winter, confident that he will be elected along with his 11 associates from this county. Mr. McArthur was Speaker of the House at the 1909 session and later served as private secretary to Governor Benson.

Coos Bay Mill Has Economical Way of Loading Lumber.

The new steamer under construction at the yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company for the C. A. Smith Lumber Company, of Coos Bay. Smith Lumber Company, of Coos Bay, is of entirely new design as compared with the other steam lumber carriers of the Pacific Coast. It will be built on what is known as central tank and girder principles and will have nine water-tight compartments, with the lumber loaded and discharged by overhead travelers on the wharf. The mill of the company has a system of hauling its lumber in packages or units of even dimensions, thereby saving a large part of the usual stevedoring of even dimensions, thereby saving a large part of the usual stevedoring charges. The deck of the new boat will be practically open with eight hatches arranged in pairs of four on each side. The fuel oil and fresh water tanks will all be amidships, which will render the boat stable and safer than those with the oil carriage in the shell. This will also give more space for the lumber. The steamer will be able to carry 2,000,000 feet of lumber on a draft of 13 feet. lumber on a draft of 19 feet.
