Pledges of Wealthy Citizens to Supply Capital for Remedial Company Along Russell Sage Idea to Be Called In Now.

Indictments charging M. E. School eller and Adolphus Lane will running a lean-shark office, based on the statute, were reported by the grand Jury yesterday. The accused maintain an office in the Abington huliding on Third street, and make loans upon chattels and salary assignments. These charges are the result of mouthe of investigation by private persons, and are said to be the fore-runner of an intended campaign to sweep the entire frafernity out of business.

Principally upon the heart-touching testimany of George Tiemeyer and his wife, eiderly Germana, the grand Jury took action, refusing to take the time to hear numerous other minnesses who were waiting to tell their stories.

Complaining Witness Weeps.

Themeyer wept as he told the jurers of coming to America possatily with a small competence, which through unfamiliarity with the country and illustrated investments, he soon dissipated. His story of the transaction, as written out for his attorney at the time, is a follows:

as follows:

"In the beginning of 1911 I was compelled to borrow some money on my farniture, which I had bought for $750. On Pebruary 4, the U. S. Bealty & Brokerage Company, Hamilton building, lent me $100 in cash, for which I and my wife slaned a chattel mortgage in favor of M. Jacobowski, for $133 and interest at 8 per cent. Because I couldn't pay the mortgage, the brokers sent Attorney Zetosh, Board of Trade huilding, and Constable Weinberger to my house and those men threatened me house and those men threatened me

Then the broken told me that I could borrow the money from another broken named Adolphus Lane and charged me for attorney's fee and the constable cost $27, despite there was no

Numerous Murtgages Signed.

"August 16 my wife and I signed another mortgage for $100 in favor of M. E. Schouweller, but didn't get a cent of cash. November is the constable, Weinherger, wrote me a latter that Mr. Schouweller insists that he take the furniture at once. On the next day I begged the Constable to give me some days delay to furniture the more and days delay to furnish the money, and he gave me a week. But already, three days inter, Weinberger came with the broker, Adolphus Lune, to my house to get the furniture.

The Constable asked me If I know "The Constable asked me if I know what I owed. I answered $166 and $46 taterest. He then told me I had chilgated myself to pay Mr. Schouweller Blore, which I denied. Then I asked Mr. Lane what I had to pay for a stonth longer and he said $250. Constable Weinherger remarked that this Interest would not be too high. I begged Mr. Lane to be lenient and he said at last that $250 would satisfy him.

"Again I and my wife signed a new chattel mortgage in favor of Mr. Schou weller, due December 12 but didn't get a cent of cash. Later this mortgage came due, but I couldn't pay it. In the beginning of June, Mr. Schouweller came due, but I couldn't pay it. In the beginning of June, Mr. Schouweiler at the Memorial day luncheon of the game to my house with another man. I. W. Cahow, 929 East Twenty-fourth street. North. He told me Mr. Cahow was willing to lend on furniture and to take another mortgage. Again I signed a mortgage in favor of Mr. Cahow for 1266.65, due February 18, 1912, but didn't get a cent of cash. February 18, when I was absent, without any nolice before, the Constable and Mr. Addylphus Lane and another man came to say house and brought with them a van with three horses to seize the furniture. Then they went back again and in his address. "where the American in his address." where the American in his address. "where the American in his address."

All of these witnesses were brushed aside after the pary heard the story of Tremeyer. "We didn't need any more," said one of the jurers.

For a long time preceding the presentation of the matter to the grand jury the District Attorney sought some haw by which their operations could be reached. On the face of the statutes the only restraint upon them was the eacheating of their claims to the state school fund, whenever it appeared in the trial of a suit that usury had been exacted, either directly or indirectly. As nearly all the cases, and all of the more distressing ones are settled without appeal to the courts or by default, the defendants being un-

If the state had a statute against the keeping of disorderly bousse, the prosecutor would have affacked the money-lenders from that side, contending that a place where unlawful acis are habitually practiced in such a house, but no such statute exists, except as to houses of the sort anually ratinated by women.

At last Deputy District Attorney Collier, who carried the case through the grand jury, decided to appeal to the "nuisance" statute, which liberally construed reaches almost every unjust act not otherwise covered. It provides a maximum penalty of imprisonment for six months upon anyons who shall "injure the person or property of another, or outrage public morals and decency." The prosecutor is confident that the facts will sustain this construction.

Southern Pacific Company Plans to Add Trackage.

Double tracking the Southern Pacific main line between the new bridge across the Willamette and the city limits probably will be started within the present year. It is announced that present year. It is announced that plans for this improvement have been completed and expenditure of money necessary to carry them out will be authorized within the next few days. D. W. Campbell, general superintendent of the Southern Pacific, has been in San Francisco for the last few days conferring with E. E. Calvin, general manager, and other officials on the contemplated improvement. He will return to Portland before the end of the week, after which, it is expected, work will start.

Rights of way have been secured. In most places the present grade will permit placing the second track without much work.

A Novel by John Breckenridge Ellis

YOUNG girl arrives at night at the home of the man who is really her father, but who had not known of her existence. By the strength of her secret she forces him to take her into his household because she "wants to belong to somebody."

Once established, she undertakes to set right a situation intense in its possibilities. This girl, Fran, is the charm of an extraordinary book; a girl whimsical, quaint, and shrewd, with a wonderful smile, the highest courage, and a great longing for home and love.

You can't really describe Fran any more than you can describe your best friend. She comes so close, is so human, that analysis is impossible.
