

YOUNGSTERS SHOW FORM AT TENNIS

Kyle and Wolfard Still in Running to Meet Smith Brothers.

HEAVY SCHEDULE TODAY

Miss Morris Plays Wonderful Game and Defeats Mrs. Northrup 6-3, 2-6, 7-5. First Matches Promised for Future Days.

That the youngsters are coming into his own in tennis is evidenced in the Irvington Club's tournament now in progress on the club courts, for, with the showing of Kyle and Wolfard in the men's doubles, they stand a good chance of being runners-up if not able to carry off the honors of the tournament. Desirous of playing the finals in the tournament on Saturday afternoon for the benefit of those interested in tennis, the committee has been compelled to make a heavy schedule for today and those still in the tournament are requested to be on hand at the appointed hour to play off today's matches.

Wednesday's results follow:
Wickham beat Weston 6-4, 6-2;
Van Loan beat Corbett 6-4, 6-2; Kyle and Wolfard beat Smith and Wakeman 6-4, 4-6, 7-5; Smith brothers beat Wilder and J. H. Smith 6-4, 4-6, 6-4; Miss Goss beat Miss A. McBride 6-4, 7-5, 6-1.

Yesterday's results were:

EXAMS DELAY STAR HURDLER

Hawkins to Leave for New York Saturday—Bellah, McClure Off.
Martin Hawkins, sensational Oregon University hurdler, who will sport the Winged "M" of Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club in the Swedish Olympic Games at Stockholm in July, probably will not participate in the big best track and field meet at New York on June 12. Hawkins will not leave for New York until Saturday, while Sam Bellah and Walter McClure, the other Multnomah men, leave at 10 o'clock this morning.

Hawkins telephoned T. Morris Dunne, Secretary of the Pacific Northwest Association, yesterday that he would be unable to start on schedule time on account of examinations at the university today. He will dispose of his studies before leaving for New York, and while he does not expect to arrive in time to compete in the meet, hopes to take in part of the events from the stands.
The Multnomah Club committee secured a number of donations to the expense fund yesterday, and while the necessary money is not on hand, Vaulter Bellah and Miller McClure leave this morning for their trip. The committee expects to work a day or two longer to prevent an inroad into the club treasury for the balance of the $700 necessary for the expenses of the trip from Portland to New York and return.

Neither Bellah nor McClure will be in trim for their best performances following their long trip. Portland enthusiasts expect them both to make creditable showings in the June 12 meet, one day after their arrival at United States Olympic Games headquarters.

Report of Wreck Is Filed.

ASTORIA, Or., June 6.—(Special.)—Captain J. O. Church, master of the tug Samson, has filed a wreck report in the Custom-House regarding the collision between a rock barge in tow of the tug and the gasoline schooner Thiamook, which occurred about 10:45 P. M. Monday, a short distance below Waterford light. The report is short and gives as the cause of the accident "mistake in whistles." It says the night was clear and dark and a five-mile breeze was blowing. Neither the Samson nor her tow was damaged.

BOAT LANDING IS CHANGED

Hood River Makes Agreement With Craft on River.

HOOD RIVER, Or., June 6.—(Special.)—By an agreement entered into Monday between O. C. Dean, of the Hood River-White Salmon ferry, the boats plying between this city and White Salmon now land at the wharf just north of the O. W. R. & N station and within a short distance of the business district of the city. The dock now presents a busy appearance as every few minutes one of the other ferries of the two systems plying between Hood River and the towns of Underwood and White Salmon are making the landing daily, the Bailey Gatzert, which makes the round trip to and from Portland and The Dalles now every day, stopping both on its up and down-river trips.

The high water is always welcomed by those who ship freight or who make use of the ferries for crossing the river. A journey of a half a mile to the wharf, which has to be moved east of the city across the Hood River when the water is low, is thus avoided.

Mr. Dean and the Hood River Terminal Company, which owns the land on which the ferries and river boat companies now have wharfs, having failed to come to an agreement as to the price demanded for the landing privilege, this is the first time in years that the White Salmon ferries have landed on the west side of the Hood River.

New Pension Bill Is "Salute" Cause.

Newport War Veterans Now Wouldn't Think of Passing "Comrade" Without Hand-in-Glove Notice.

NEWPORT, Or., June 6.—(Special.)—All the veterans of the Civil War living in Newport are quite overcome with the new pension bill, which has added to their welfare. It is quite natural that they should be some merrymaking, as the Government has agreed to stand for it, but the source of war stories has again been plundered, and although uniforms are quite worn out, no veteran would think of passing a "comrade" without saluting now that the new pension bill has passed.

"Dad" Sylvester, war lord of Newport, has had a bunch of certificates and applications to disburse among the old soldiers and it must be admitted that some things bordering on scandal have resulted.

"Dad" was telling about a stream in the South which was so full of fish that the cavalry horses were frightened by them and refused to cross, thereby giving the "Rebs" on the other side one of their few victories, when another comrade approached and saluted and asked for a drink.

"Dad" was "Doc" Carter, who always carries the flag on Decoration day, in your company.
"He was not answered 'Dad,' 'he's the G. A. R. Post here, but if I ever saw any shooting it must have been in an Indian War, and I don't know what side he fought on, but he won't get any pension blank from me." Memorial day in Newport was carefully observed but the cemetery end was exaggerated somewhat. There are no old soldiers buried here so they decorated the grave of the late W. Matthews, the only soldier in the cemetery, and who once wore a cross of St. George and was a veteran of the Crimean War.

ADVENTISTS HEAR REPORT

Sect Holding Annual Camp Meeting on Buckman Tract.

"Christian Education" was the subject considered at yesterday's sessions of the annual camp-meeting of the Seventh-Day Adventists, on the Buckman tract, at East Fifteenth and Davis streets. There were in the Western Oregon Conference last year nine church schools with an attendance of 272. The Doremus Union School in Astoria had an enrollment of 80. The cost of operating the church schools in this conference for the fiscal year ending March 31 was $127.

Professor M. E. Cady, educational secretary of the North Pacific Union Conference, spoke yesterday afternoon. R. L. Howe, Sunday school secretary, submitted his report for the fiscal year showing that the schools in Western Oregon had 1829 members at the close of the year as against 1687 members at its beginning. Two Sunday school conventions were held during the year, these being at Cornelius and Portland. The schools donated $4070 to missions during the year, and 131 of the scholars were baptized.

Elder Milton St. John, pastor of the Central Portland Seventh-Day Adventist Church, gave a stereopticon lecture last night on "A Bible Contradiction."

MUSICAL FESTIVAL STARTS

Four Concerts Will Be Given by Soloists of Note and Chorus.

The first annual Rose Musical Festival will commence with the rendition of Haydn's oratorio "Creation" this evening in the Gipsy Smith Auditorium. Frederick E. Chapman, the musical director, has done some heroic work in bringing the chorus to its present efficiency. Mary Cheney, the Welsh-American soprano; Elliston VanHousen, the great American tenor, and Oscar Ehrig, the celebrated bass, have all arrived from New York, having crossed the continent especially to take part in this festival.

The Festival Symphony Orchestra of 25 picked men, under the direction of Carl Denton and Harold Bayley, alternately will enhance the musical interest.

There will be four different programmes, tonight "The Creation"; Saturday at 3:30 P. M., matinee of songs by the soloists, selections by the orchestra and bright choruses by a host of boys and girls; Saturday at 8:20 P. M., a grand concert, and Tuesday matinee. No two programmes will be alike.

Aside from the musical feast in store for all who attend, it is well to know that the festival is given for the benefit of the Oregon State Sunday School Association, which ministers to over 1500 Sunday schools of Oregon, representing nearly every denomination.

Brewery Employees Quit at Astoria.

ASTORIA, Or., June 6.—(Special.)—All the employees of the North Pacific Brewery in this city struck this morning in accordance with orders issued by the Union officers in Portland. The trouble is said to have arisen over the fact that the local brewery stores some of its products in the plant of the Portland Artificial Ice Company at Portland and the latter company is at outs with the engineers' union. The indications are that the difficulty here will soon be adjusted.

Last year about 70 cases of smallpox were reported in London and 300 in the rest of England.

GREAT PROJECT ON

Coos County Waterpower May Cost $1,000,000.

PROJECT ONE OF GREATEST

M. J. Anderson, of Grants Pass, Promotes Plan Looking Toward Development of Country on South Fork of Coquille River.

MARSHFIELD, Or., June 6.—(Special.)—

What is believed will be one of the greatest water powers in Oregon is to be developed in Coos County by Oregon capital at the cost of about $1,000,000. The plan is to build an enormous electric plant, the electricity to be generated by water power and to supply all of the towns of the county and rural and logging districts. The matter has been under consideration for some time and the men interested before leaving this city announced that they were going ahead with the big project at once.

M. J. Anderson, of Grants Pass, promoted the plan. He was formerly with the Forestry Department of the Government under Gifford Pinchot, but left the service two years ago. The water power in question is on the South Fork of the Coquille River, south of Myrtle Point. When Mr. Anderson was in the Forestry Service he was ordered to have it surveyed and recommended that it be withdrawn and held as a forestry station. This was done, but when the Pinchot-Ballinger fight started Ballinger never had this water right withdrawn. After Mr. Anderson withdrew from the service he filed on the water right under the laws of the state, being acquainted with its commercial value.

According to the laws of the state he must have at least 12,500 horse power developed by July 5, 1912, in order to hold the water right, and this he intends, with his associates, to do. He interested other capital in Oregon and a number of those who are in the concern have been making investigations. The engineering features have already been worked out, but the only investigation was as to whether or not the locality would warrant the large expenditure of money.

Future is Green.
Mr. Anderson says that he has made a canvass and finds that even now he could contract for sufficient consumption of power to warrant making the investment. The water right would develop 20,000 horsepower and under certain conditions of improvements possibly as high as 50,000 horsepower. The plan is to develop 20,000 horsepower, first making two units of 5000 horsepower each.

The water right is at Ash Swamp, the divide between the valley of the South Fork of the Coquille River and the valley of the Rogue River in Curry County. There is a natural storage reservoir and with a small dam enormous amounts of water can be held for emergency during the dry season. The water will be taken through Eden Ridge in a tunnel 3000 feet long. This can be easily built, as the rock is of a sandstone variety, and the cost of the tunnel will be about $50,000.

The river has a drop of 1050 feet in one mile and by taking the water through the tunnel it will have a drop of 100 feet. By increasing the height of the dam the power developed could be increased to 50,000 horsepower. The big drop of the water and the nature of the rock through which the tunnel must be done makes the water right, Mr. Anderson says, one of the easiest in the state to develop, considering its size.

Prominent Men in Deal.

Those associated with Mr. Anderson in the project are: G. W. Donnell, postmaster at Grants Pass; O. J. Blanchard and Fred A. Williams, attorneys at Grants Pass; A. N. Parsons, a business man of Grants Pass; Johnstone, Inc., of Portland and Dufur, Or., owning waterpower plants at The Dalles; W. L. Vanderpool, an Eastern Oregon capitalist; A. E. Lake, of Wasco County, and Thomas Glavie, a wheat man of Wasco County. The capital is, therefore, all Oregon money. Mr. Anderson says that these men can develop the waterpower for themselves, but that they probably will issue bonds in doing the work.

The Forestry Department, it is stated, in no way has interfered with the project, but rather has given assistance through its engineers. It is planned to transmit by wire the electricity to all of the cities of the county and it is believed by the company that the electricity can be furnished at half the cost of local plants and still make money. Mr. Anderson says that he and his associates have great faith in the future of the locality and that the present and future possibilities warrant the large outlay of money which will be made.

Vancouver Judge Makes Record.

VANCOUVER, Wash., June 6.—(Special.)—J. W. Shaw, police judge, last night reported to the City Council that he had collected $465 in fines during May. He tried 26 cases. This is said to be the largest amount in fines ever collected during one month in the history of the city.
