

MILITIA SEES REAL WORK ON CRUISER

Citizen Sailors Put Through Drill as Maryland Speeds Toward California.

NO TROUBLE MET IN RIVER

Big Vessel Makes Run From Portland to Columbia in Seven Hours and 20 Minutes—Ten Boilers Cut in to Maintain Clip.

ON U. S. S. MARYLAND AT SEA, VIA ILWACO, Wash., June 17.—(By wireless to The Oregonian, delayed in transmission.)—Heading down the coast at a 15-knot clip, which will be continued for 24 hours under orders for a coal test, the second annual cruise of the Oregon Naval Militia has taken shape. The Maryland is holding to a course between eight and nine miles off shore, and at 7:30 o'clock passed Cape Meares. It is calculated that at 7 o'clock in the morning the vessel will pass Cape Blanco, but by then she will be about 15 miles off shore, and she is to steam 15 miles to the westward of the whistling buoy. San Francisco is to be reached between 7 and 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, and 24 hours after coaling ship the cruise will be continued south.

It has been a strenuous day for the Naval Militia division, and the tired members have the satisfaction of knowing they have participated in all work performed since leaving Portland. In the forenoon, facing the ten boilers that are in use of the battery of 15 men from Oregon, and also in the black gang are others who are pouring lubricant where needed, aiding in work that they became familiar with aboard the cruiser Boston.

Militia Men Help Lift Anchors.

In the deck divisions are scattered the militiamen, and they did their share in getting the Maryland's anchors up before leaving Portland. They helped in any other labors to which the regular crew turned.

It was 9:10 o'clock when the Maryland's bow was pointed down stream and the cruise began, and at 10 o'clock the mixed crew was summoned to quarters and drill. In that drill citizen sailors had their first task of calisthenics as performed aboard a man-of-war. With the same spirit of willingness that they evidenced in assisting in getting up boats and stowing deck gear, the state force followed the snappy exercise movements. They displayed no fatigue on being assembled for the same movements at 1:30.

In the morning the crew given drill in foot movements, ending with the several minutes in double time on the quarter deck. Drill in the afternoon was with arms, and the militiamen were put through the paces by regular officers, the executives of the militia were called on to handle their men with a view to their being able to do so in the day's routine in assembling.

In the meantime the men were curtly told that only the uniform prescribed must be worn, and that the cuffs of blouses were to be turned down, and similar details had been assem- bled by companies. Big-gun drill likewise was added to the day's routine in assembling.

Good Speed Maintained.

The Maryland covered the distance from Portland to the Columbia River light vessel, in seven hours and 20 minutes, and the time was well kept. It was not been compulsory to slow down in the lower harbor for a launch to come alongside for Pilot Pease and Harbormaster Speler, who made the river trip.

The Maryland entered the Columbia drawing 25.5 feet, and drew 23.8 feet on the outward trip, having taken 30 tons of water at Portland. There was not the slightest difficulty experienced, and, although she left down with seven boilers working, two additional were cut in at 12:10, and the tenth boiler later. She covered one stretch of five miles in 16 minutes, and another of 20 miles in one hour.

Captain Elliott left the bridge only when the Maryland was well beyond the light vessel.

A smooth and a current setting to the southward were the favorable conditions, but a decidedly fresh north-west wind was on.

Few of the militiamen have been bothered so far by sea sickness, although some sought resting places soon after getting outside.

HYGIENE EXHIBIT PLANNED

Governor Wants Moving Pictures to Show How State Promotes Health.

At a meeting yesterday of the commission appointed by Governor West to prepare an exhibit for Oregon at the Fifteenth International Congress on Hygiene in Washington, D. C., September 23 to 28, further arrangements for the exhibit were made.

The moving-pictures which it is proposed to exhibit were principally considered. It was decided to ask the City Council for an appropriation, not to exceed $400, to be expended in securing films of the playgrounds and of the water, garbage disposition and sewer systems, and also of the various parks.

Views of schools have been taken with $150 provided by the School Board.

Announcement was made that E. L. Thompson and F. M. Kiger, who conduct the two certified milk supply plants of Portland, would contribute motion views of their plants.

The different state institutions will pay the costs of making the views, and considerable sums are being paid by individual members of the commission in securing the exhibits. In all there will be 4000 feet of pictures, and the exhibition is a neatly-printed booklet of 168 pages and contains a great mass of information that will interest probable exhibitors and others. It will be sent on request.

The date of the 1912 fair has been fixed for September 30 to October 5, inclusive. The coming fair is expected to be a great success as more interest has been attracted than ever before. There is a growing concern in the exhibit from all parts of Lewis, Chehalis, Cowlitz, Pacific, Wahkiakum, and Thurston counties, and all are expected to have county exhibits this fall.

Grown Folks Give Prizes for Pageant of Little Ones—Autoists Stop to Watch Procession.

About 20 children, living in the vicinity of Twentieth and Northrup streets, joined in making a children's Rose Festival Monday night. Led by a drummer, their various floats were pulled or ridden around several blocks, much to the delight of onlookers, including many autoists who stopped to see the passing show.

The youngsters displayed ingenuity in preparing their costumes and floats. There were decorated wagons, baby doll caddies and a variety of other vehicles. Flowers, drapery and toys were used in the floats. Prizes for all were provided by the grown folks of the neighborhood.

Jane Elizabeth Kleiser, a tot dressed in pink and white, who was Queen of the Rose parade, was the first to be crowned. She was a wagon decorated with flowers, having a top station, tracks, signals and passengers in miniature on the wheels. The wheels were turned out of solid wood.

Irma Boon was a Jester. Clara Baxter, 10 years old, was dressed as the "Mary White." She wore a large hat and long train and carried a prize for the most original costume.

Dan Manning, the drummer, led the parade. He is a brownie, and rode in a decorated play automobile. Julius Gray and James C. Baxter were ferocious looking Indians about 6 years old.

Jordan Edwin Burke was a cowboy. Henry Graham had a special feature in a rose shower from a basket which he carried. Helen Perry was a Gelshe girl. Wilma Perry pushed a decorated baby carriage. Others who were in the procession departed early without leaving their names.

CAMERON IS DEFIANT

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SHOWS RESENTMENT AT MAYOR.

Prosecutor, Expected to Be Subpoenaed by Executive, Says He "May and May Not" Appear.

When Mayor Rushlight's process servers, summoning witnesses to tell the police committee of the Executive Board why immorality exists in Portland, reach District Attorney Cameron, they are likely to meet with flat defiance. What will follow thereafter is a matter of conjecture, but it is likely to be something lively.

Replying to a denunciation of the Mayor grand jury, in which he was accused of slighting the duty of policing the town, Mayor Rushlight recently summoned a number of police officers to explain, and they asserted that the failure of their efforts was due to lack of co-operation on the part of the District Attorney and Municipal Judge. Then the Mayor announced that he would summon those officials to be present at an adjourned meeting and explain themselves. The meeting will be soon.

"Has the Mayor subpoenaed you yet?" Mr. Cameron was asked yesterday. "No, and I don't think he will. If he does, I won't go."

"How can you get out of it?" "I'll just say I'm too busy," Mr. Cameron said. He had determined positively to follow this line of action, the District Attorney said.

"May and I may not." The city charter gives the Mayor the power to investigate any branch of the city government, and to summon witnesses for that purpose. He cannot investigate Cameron's office, but he can require George J. Cameron, citizen, to appear before him as a witness regarding city offices. No penalty clause is attached.

WEEDS PUBLIC NUISANCE

Owners of Property Who Fail to Clean Up Will Be Prosecuted.

The season of the annual campaign of the police against negligent property-owners who allow their lots to become nurseries of noxious weeds and firemenacing grass, is now on in full swing, and appeal has been made to householders to assist the officers by reporting cases that come under their observation. Arrest is threatened against every person who fails to remove the growth immediately.

A more thorough campaign than in years past is promised, with a view to educating lot owners as to their obligation. Every year there are arrests, but the large number of absentee owners makes thorough work impossible, as mailed notices fail to bring results.

The city is empowered to docket liens against the property after causing weeds to be cut, and may also proceed criminally against the owner or resident agent. Penalties range to $50 fine or 90 days imprisonment. Weeds must not be allowed to attain a height of more than ten inches.

5 o'clock.....92 degrees

Portland sizzled, perspired and drank cold drinks yesterday under a temperature that reached the high point of 92 degrees at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, despite the prediction of the weather office that the maximum would be only 88 degrees and that there would be a nice, cool northeasterly breeze.

There has been only one other day this year in which the mercury took on such a bull movement, then it reached a maximum of 92 degrees. That was June 6. The highest temperature recorded at the local office in any preceding year was only 87 degrees, made in 1901.

Predictions say that conditions are favorable for continued fair and warm weather in this district during the next 36 hours, with northeasterly winds.

The temperature began to go up at 6 o'clock in the morning and was on a steady ascending scale until 4 o'clock when it began to drop and went from 92 degrees to 86 degrees in one hour.
