Mr. LeMonn said that he believed the commercial organizations should look into the standing of prospective invest-ors in the city and be prepared to re-port to inquiring business men whether or not they are reliable. C. C. Chapman, of the Commercial club, replied to Mr. LeMonn, by asying that the policy of the club not to stand sponsor for private business men or concerns, was unanimously upheld by members of the executive committee and was based upon the belief that the club, as a public organization, had no right to jeopardize the standing of its members by lending its sanction to any enterprise, the success of which was dependent upon the chances that might overtake an individual. "A bank, which is a private organiza-tion, dare not do it," he said. "much less a club in whose hands rests to a certain degree the reputation for busi-ness indgment of all of its members." Teferring to the industrial develop-ment of Portland, he said that in all her factories, but one had been brought to the city by a bonus. "Bonns cities" find themselves bandicapped by influx of weak industries, he declared, and in the majority of commercial organiza-tions where the bonus-giving idea, and the local association stand-ing back of an untried industry has been tested, it has been abandoned as a failure.
