

T. R. SAYS HE STAYS IN RACE OF COURSE

Democracy Declared to Have Shown Its Elements Cannot Be Reunited.

CALL SOON TO BE ISSUED

Colonel's Statement Says Baltimore Nominee Can Succeed Only With Aid of Such Men as Sullivan and Taggart.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 2.—"I shall, of course, continue to stand for the progressive nomination," said Colonel Roosevelt, after he heard tonight of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson.

The ex-President voiced his belief that events in the Democratic as well as the Republican convention demonstrated the need of a new party.

The National convention of the new party will be held in Chicago, it was decided today, probably during the first week of August.

"Before I left Chicago, and again at Oyster Bay, I stated that the third-party movement and my candidacy would not be in any way affected by the outcome at Baltimore," says the Colonel in his statement.

"Under these conditions I feel that the events at Baltimore, like the events at Chicago, prove the absolute need of a new, Nation-wide, non-sectional party which shall in good faith stand for the interests of the people as a whole, and shall in fact represent alike in the Nation and the several states, take the lead in the movement for social, political and industrial justice, a movement which must include a broad, conservative governmental policy which shall look to both the present-day economic needs of our people as a whole and the needs of the future."

TRAIN KILLS THREE IN AUTO Limited in Illinois Crashes Into Loaded Machine.

AURORA, Ill., July 2.—The Los Angeles limited eastbound on the Northwestern Railroad ran down an automobile three miles east of Geneva, Ill., today, killing two men and a woman and fatally injuring a third man.

The killed were identified by papers and letters as Mr. William W. Cole, of Chicago, and George Hanley, of Granger, Ia. The dying man is James Hanley, also of Granger.

The occupants of the automobile evidently did not see the train approaching and before they realized the danger the limited, which speeds through this section at more than 60 miles an hour, was upon them.

Reports here indicate that Miss Metcalf was not with Gray, or at least, had not been found up to a late hour at Heppner.

Fred Day, of Oakland, who is intimately acquainted with Miss Metcalf, has established the positive knowledge that the girl left Oakland on train No. 7.

While the train was detained at Wilbur he chatted for a short time with the girl on the depot grounds and she told him she was en route to San Francisco.

When the train left Wilbur Day saw nothing more of the girl, but he did not look for her, as nothing had occurred to cause him further thought of her.

It is believed now that the couple divided ways, the girl going south and Gray going north.

Association Meets at Centralia. CENTRALIA, Wash., July 2.—(Special.)—The eighth annual convention of the Western Washington Christian Missionary Association opened in Centralia yesterday with an address by Mrs. Jennie B. McGinnis, of Seattle, president of the association.

The convention will continue until tomorrow night. Several hundred delegates are in attendance. The association takes in all of the territory north of the Columbia River and west of and including the Yakima Valley.

Gray to Learn of Valley. EUGENE, Or., July 2.—(Special.)—C. S. Williams, of the Eugene Commercial Club, has been named to co-operate with H. C. Wheeler and E. C. Stutzer, of Pleasant Hill, in presenting to the Oregon Electric officials data relating to the population, area and productiveness of the territory between Eugene and the Pleasant Hill country.

For the past three weeks committees have been gathering these statistics and having panorama pictures taken to show the character of the country. All this material will be taken to Portland shortly and submitted to President Young. After an examination by his engineers, a complete report will be made to President Gray at St. Paul.

The Pleasant Hill people are enthusiastic over the prospect of getting a railroad.

NINETEEN-YEAR-OLD OAKLAND, OR., GIRL, ABDUCTED FROM HOME BY GEORGE GRAY, AGED 35, SAID TO HAVE BEEN LOCATED AT HEPPNER.

ETHEL METCALF.

GRAY IS LOCATED

Heppner May Have Arrested Man Badly Wanted.

METCALF GIRL NOT FOUND

Roseburg Hears That Sheriff Only Awaited Warrant to Take Man Who Abducted Oakland, Oregon, Maid.

ROSEBURG, Or., July 2.—(Special.)—News was received here tonight from Heppner, Or., that George Gray, wanted here in connection with the abduction of little Ethel Metcalf, of Oakland, Or., had been located and that his arrest would be made before morning.

The Sheriff at Heppner only awaited warrant from Sheriff Quinn here to take his man. It is said Gray was found at a Heppner hotel through the description sent broadcast by the authorities here.

Owing to the closing of the telegraph and telephone offices at Heppner at 9 o'clock, no confirmation of Gray's reported capture had been learned here up to midnight.

The description sent from here of the couple to Northwest police authorities follows:

George Gray—Age 35 years, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs about 165 pounds, dark complexioned, dark brown hair, thin nose, slightly stooped, two fine lines off of right hand, name tattooed on left arm just above elbow. He wore a brown suit and hat when last seen.

Ethel Metcalf—Induced to go with him from Oakland, Or. Miss Ethel Metcalf, age 19 years, height about 5 feet 3 inches, weight 130 pounds, brown hair, light complexioned, small scar on right cheek, slightly stooped shoulders when she walks. Wore light tan or gray suit, light straw hat with roses or flower trimming, carried white purse with long white cord over shoulder.

Reports here indicate that Miss Metcalf was not with Gray, or at least, had not been found up to a late hour at Heppner.

Fred Day, of Oakland, who is intimately acquainted with Miss Metcalf, has established the positive knowledge that the girl left Oakland on train No. 7.

While the train was detained at Wilbur he chatted for a short time with the girl on the depot grounds and she told him she was en route to San Francisco.

When the train left Wilbur Day saw nothing more of the girl, but he did not look for her, as nothing had occurred to cause him further thought of her.

It is believed now that the couple divided ways, the girl going south and Gray going north.

Association Meets at Centralia. CENTRALIA, Wash., July 2.—(Special.)—The eighth annual convention of the Western Washington Christian Missionary Association opened in Centralia yesterday with an address by Mrs. Jennie B. McGinnis, of Seattle, president of the association.

The convention will continue until tomorrow night. Several hundred delegates are in attendance. The association takes in all of the territory north of the Columbia River and west of and including the Yakima Valley.

Gray to Learn of Valley. EUGENE, Or., July 2.—(Special.)—C. S. Williams, of the Eugene Commercial Club, has been named to co-operate with H. C. Wheeler and E. C. Stutzer, of Pleasant Hill, in presenting to the Oregon Electric officials data relating to the population, area and productiveness of the territory between Eugene and the Pleasant Hill country.

For the past three weeks committees have been gathering these statistics and having panorama pictures taken to show the character of the country. All this material will be taken to Portland shortly and submitted to President Young. After an examination by his engineers, a complete report will be made to President Gray at St. Paul.

The Pleasant Hill people are enthusiastic over the prospect of getting a railroad.

FROM LEFT TO RIGHT—MRS. NORMAN MACK, MRS. TAFT, MRS. L. L. FRANCIS AND MILDRED AUBREY.

BURNS DENIES HE HAS SPIES IN CAMP

Detective Testifies No One Betrayed Secrets of Labor Leaders.

DEFENSE SOON TO BEGIN

Prosecution of Clarence S. Darrow Expects to Conclude Case Today. Lawyer Fined for Attack on Court.

LOS ANGELES, July 2.—A mild examination of William J. Burns, the detective, and an outbreak directed at Judge Hutton by Attorney H. H. Appel, of the defense, which resulted in a fine of $25 for contempt, were features of today's session of the bribery trial of Clarence S. Darrow. District Attorney Fredericks announced that the prosecution probably would rest its case tomorrow afternoon.

Burns testified that he knew of only one man in his employ who was a spy in the camp of the McNamara defense who betrayed the secrets of labor leaders in Chicago or Indianapolis. He said that he was cognizant at all times of the trap laid for Darrow by Detective Guy Biddinger, who took Darrow's money while pretending to betray the secrets of the McNamara prosecution.

Claim Made to All Rewards. Asked concerning his claim to the rewards offered for the arrest and conviction of the dynamiters of the Los Angeles Times building, Burns said that he was entitled to all of them. He referred ironically to the manner in which some of the rewards had "melted" before a Summer sun since the conviction of the McNamaras.

Burns was excused from the stand 10 minutes after the afternoon session convened. At the noon recess he was served with a subpoena by the defense and Attorney Rogers announced that he would place the detective on the stand the second day after the defense began the introduction of its evidence.

William J. Porter, a newspaper man, testified to meeting Mr. Darrow and Detective Biddinger on the morning of August 15 last, when Biddinger said Darrow had paid him $500.

F. M. Mannatt, paying teller of a Los Angeles bank, told of checks received by the defendant from Frank Morris, of the American Federation of Labor, which were deposited in his bank.

Obstreperous Lawyer Fined. One of Attorney Appel's objections severely criticized Assistant District Attorney Ford and Judge Hutton on the site, nor an addition to the present building, this year, but will prepare to take care of the children in the present building. The new building may be erected next year.

After the fine had been assessed, Appel said he would not pay it and asked permission to purge himself of contempt before some other court.

Judge Hutton said his action was final and that unless the fine was paid by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, he would have the clerk issue a writ of imprisonment.

E. R. Parmelee, clerk in the Justice's Court where Ben Franklin was arrested, testified that Lecompte Davis, an attorney for the McNamara defense, had furnished $10,000 cash bail for Franklin.

Guy Conkin, one of the men whom Franklin said he "approached" with a view of bribing him to vote for a verdict for the defense in the McNamara trial, corroborated Franklin's testimony as to the alleged attempt to influence his vote as a juror.

COLONEL'S SAILS CLIPPED

(Continued From First Page.) this convention and the majority was with Bryan on that issue.

Even before Clark had attained his maximum vote, and when he reached it, the enthusiasm among the delegates and audience was with Wilson, probably greater enthusiasm than never shown for any delegate in any convention that was manifest for Wilson time and again during the progress of the Baltimore gathering.

Enthusiasm Wins Day. And enthusiasm proved to be the big factor in Wilson's favor. That enthusiasm is in part explained by the disclosure that many a delegate here under instructions to vote for Clark at heart favored Wilson, yet among them were a great many who could not in the early balloting desert the Speaker.

As the contest wore on and one roll call succeeded another, delegates favoring Wilson, but instructed for Clark, began to feel themselves released. Montana was the first instructed Clark delegate to break away, its instructions allowing much discretion to the delegates themselves, but when the break started, each succeeding roll call showed Wilson gains, as individual delegates satisfied their consciences that they had met their obligations when they had supported Clark for 20 or 30 roll calls, only to see him lose ground on each successive ballot.

Telegrams Pour in Overnight. When finally Clark was distanced by Wilson, the New Jersey man began to develop greater speed and Clark lost correspondingly. There was a temporary halt just before adjournment last night which puzzled everyone, but after a night of reflection, during which thousands of telegrams poured in upon the Clark delegations and upon others not supporting Wilson, a great change of heart took place and the Wilson stampede started with the first roll call today.

The Idaho delegation had its ear to the ground and for the first time voted solidly for Wilson.

Illinois, next on the roll, then swung to Wilson, and the stampede was on. To much credit cannot be given Roger Sullivan, of Illinois, for helping out the Wilson forces at the critical moment. From the time Illinois flopped, only a little while was required to make Wilson's victory complete. When he passed 600 votes, no force in the convention could check him. On the 45th roll call Wilson received 633 votes. The Underwood people at that moment held the balance of power and used it. Through Senator Bankhead, they released all the Underwood delegates and that insured Wilson's nomination.

Underwood Hostile to Clark. Had Underwood swung his forces to Clark when the Speaker reached his highest vote on the 13th ballot, there is little doubt that Clark then or soon thereafter would have been nominated. Underwood proved hostile to Clark and refused to aid him. But it is not upon Underwood that responsibility for Clark's failure rests, rather it is upon the shoulders of Clark's campaign managers, who have blundered from one to another from the beginning of the convention.

Clark without much doubt would have been nominated on an early ballot if he had not divided his strength on the inconsequential fight over the proprietary claim of the Underwoods. He invited the hostility of Bryan and did not help himself with the conservative element back of Parker. His lack of firmness at the crucial moment nomination. Had he arrayed himself with Bryan, Bryan would have been unable to split with him; New York would not have cast its curse upon his candidacy and Clark would have been the strongest candidate at the outset, would have been nominated once he secured the support of the majority.

The Clark blunders need not be enumerated. They only serve to show what Clark's opponents have contended from the first, that Clark is too much of a blunderer to be entrusted with the Presidency—too much of a blunderer to be nominated for that office in a year when the party expects success.

Wilson Free From Boast. Wilson's victory was a clean one in every respect. It was won without the aid of the Underwoods. Wilson rejected all proposals made by the bosses; he declined to enter into any deal with them. Once he began to climb, he kept steady on the upward path, and only once hesitated. That was late last night. Prolongation of the session gave full opportunity to the delegates to feel the popular pulse, and the Clark telegrams poured in upon them last night and this morning had much to do with the final result.

Clark failed in their plan to block Wilson largely because they had no suitable candidate with whom to defeat the New Jersey man.

Clark's failure to win his candidacy early proved a failure. Kern, Underwood, Harmon, Marshall, Foss, Gaynor and even Bryan did not fill the need; they did not arouse enthusiasm; they did not appeal to the progressive element, and that element was in the majority. Lacking a suitable candidate, the allies were unable in the last moments to check the flow toward Wilson. They might have done so had they had a candidate with whom to accomplish the task.

Bryan Secretly Disappointed. As to Bryan, he has added new laurels to his individual victories, but there was an expression of disappointment on his face when he saw everything slipping to Wilson. Down deep in his heart he unquestionably entertained the hope that the Clark-Wilson people would hopelessly deadlock and that he might be the man chosen to bring about a break. But he overestimated his popularity when he personally attacked Clark and Murphy, and the men who have been in the habit of financing the Democratic National campaign. He injured himself with the delegates by his vicious personalities, and when the convention closed he was far from the popular idol who first addressed the assemblage in opposition to Parker on the opening day.

But Bryan has one satisfaction. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second.

tion to break away, its instructions allowing much discretion to the delegates themselves, but when the break started, each succeeding roll call showed Wilson gains, as individual delegates satisfied their consciences that they had met their obligations when they had supported Clark for 20 or 30 roll calls, only to see him lose ground on each successive ballot.

Telegrams Pour in Overnight. When finally Clark was distanced by Wilson, the New Jersey man began to develop greater speed and Clark lost correspondingly. There was a temporary halt just before adjournment last night which puzzled everyone, but after a night of reflection, during which thousands of telegrams poured in upon the Clark delegations and upon others not supporting Wilson, a great change of heart took place and the Wilson stampede started with the first roll call today.

The Idaho delegation had its ear to the ground and for the first time voted solidly for Wilson.

Illinois, next on the roll, then swung to Wilson, and the stampede was on. To much credit cannot be given Roger Sullivan, of Illinois, for helping out the Wilson forces at the critical moment. From the time Illinois flopped, only a little while was required to make Wilson's victory complete. When he passed 600 votes, no force in the convention could check him. On the 45th roll call Wilson received 633 votes. The Underwood people at that moment held the balance of power and used it. Through Senator Bankhead, they released all the Underwood delegates and that insured Wilson's nomination.

Underwood Hostile to Clark. Had Underwood swung his forces to Clark when the Speaker reached his highest vote on the 13th ballot, there is little doubt that Clark then or soon thereafter would have been nominated. Underwood proved hostile to Clark and refused to aid him. But it is not upon Underwood that responsibility for Clark's failure rests, rather it is upon the shoulders of Clark's campaign managers, who have blundered from one to another from the beginning of the convention.

Clark without much doubt would have been nominated on an early ballot if he had not divided his strength on the inconsequential fight over the proprietary claim of the Underwoods. He invited the hostility of Bryan and did not help himself with the conservative element back of Parker. His lack of firmness at the crucial moment nomination. Had he arrayed himself with Bryan, Bryan would have been unable to split with him; New York would not have cast its curse upon his candidacy and Clark would have been the strongest candidate at the outset, would have been nominated once he secured the support of the majority.

The Clark blunders need not be enumerated. They only serve to show what Clark's opponents have contended from the first, that Clark is too much of a blunderer to be entrusted with the Presidency—too much of a blunderer to be nominated for that office in a year when the party expects success.

Wilson Free From Boast. Wilson's victory was a clean one in every respect. It was won without the aid of the Underwoods. Wilson rejected all proposals made by the bosses; he declined to enter into any deal with them. Once he began to climb, he kept steady on the upward path, and only once hesitated. That was late last night. Prolongation of the session gave full opportunity to the delegates to feel the popular pulse, and the Clark telegrams poured in upon them last night and this morning had much to do with the final result.

Clark failed in their plan to block Wilson largely because they had no suitable candidate with whom to defeat the New Jersey man.

Clark's failure to win his candidacy early proved a failure. Kern, Underwood, Harmon, Marshall, Foss, Gaynor and even Bryan did not fill the need; they did not arouse enthusiasm; they did not appeal to the progressive element, and that element was in the majority. Lacking a suitable candidate, the allies were unable in the last moments to check the flow toward Wilson. They might have done so had they had a candidate with whom to accomplish the task.

Bryan Secretly Disappointed. As to Bryan, he has added new laurels to his individual victories, but there was an expression of disappointment on his face when he saw everything slipping to Wilson. Down deep in his heart he unquestionably entertained the hope that the Clark-Wilson people would hopelessly deadlock and that he might be the man chosen to bring about a break. But he overestimated his popularity when he personally attacked Clark and Murphy, and the men who have been in the habit of financing the Democratic National campaign. He injured himself with the delegates by his vicious personalities, and when the convention closed he was far from the popular idol who first addressed the assemblage in opposition to Parker on the opening day.

But Bryan has one satisfaction. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second.

Clark failed in their plan to block Wilson largely because they had no suitable candidate with whom to defeat the New Jersey man.

Clark's failure to win his candidacy early proved a failure. Kern, Underwood, Harmon, Marshall, Foss, Gaynor and even Bryan did not fill the need; they did not arouse enthusiasm; they did not appeal to the progressive element, and that element was in the majority. Lacking a suitable candidate, the allies were unable in the last moments to check the flow toward Wilson. They might have done so had they had a candidate with whom to accomplish the task.

Bryan Secretly Disappointed. As to Bryan, he has added new laurels to his individual victories, but there was an expression of disappointment on his face when he saw everything slipping to Wilson. Down deep in his heart he unquestionably entertained the hope that the Clark-Wilson people would hopelessly deadlock and that he might be the man chosen to bring about a break. But he overestimated his popularity when he personally attacked Clark and Murphy, and the men who have been in the habit of financing the Democratic National campaign. He injured himself with the delegates by his vicious personalities, and when the convention closed he was far from the popular idol who first addressed the assemblage in opposition to Parker on the opening day.

But Bryan has one satisfaction. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second.

Clark failed in their plan to block Wilson largely because they had no suitable candidate with whom to defeat the New Jersey man.

Clark's failure to win his candidacy early proved a failure. Kern, Underwood, Harmon, Marshall, Foss, Gaynor and even Bryan did not fill the need; they did not arouse enthusiasm; they did not appeal to the progressive element, and that element was in the majority. Lacking a suitable candidate, the allies were unable in the last moments to check the flow toward Wilson. They might have done so had they had a candidate with whom to accomplish the task.

Bryan Secretly Disappointed. As to Bryan, he has added new laurels to his individual victories, but there was an expression of disappointment on his face when he saw everything slipping to Wilson. Down deep in his heart he unquestionably entertained the hope that the Clark-Wilson people would hopelessly deadlock and that he might be the man chosen to bring about a break. But he overestimated his popularity when he personally attacked Clark and Murphy, and the men who have been in the habit of financing the Democratic National campaign. He injured himself with the delegates by his vicious personalities, and when the convention closed he was far from the popular idol who first addressed the assemblage in opposition to Parker on the opening day.

But Bryan has one satisfaction. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second.

Clark failed in their plan to block Wilson largely because they had no suitable candidate with whom to defeat the New Jersey man.

Clark's failure to win his candidacy early proved a failure. Kern, Underwood, Harmon, Marshall, Foss, Gaynor and even Bryan did not fill the need; they did not arouse enthusiasm; they did not appeal to the progressive element, and that element was in the majority. Lacking a suitable candidate, the allies were unable in the last moments to check the flow toward Wilson. They might have done so had they had a candidate with whom to accomplish the task.

Bryan Secretly Disappointed. As to Bryan, he has added new laurels to his individual victories, but there was an expression of disappointment on his face when he saw everything slipping to Wilson. Down deep in his heart he unquestionably entertained the hope that the Clark-Wilson people would hopelessly deadlock and that he might be the man chosen to bring about a break. But he overestimated his popularity when he personally attacked Clark and Murphy, and the men who have been in the habit of financing the Democratic National campaign. He injured himself with the delegates by his vicious personalities, and when the convention closed he was far from the popular idol who first addressed the assemblage in opposition to Parker on the opening day.

But Bryan has one satisfaction. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second.

Clark failed in their plan to block Wilson largely because they had no suitable candidate with whom to defeat the New Jersey man.

Clark's failure to win his candidacy early proved a failure. Kern, Underwood, Harmon, Marshall, Foss, Gaynor and even Bryan did not fill the need; they did not arouse enthusiasm; they did not appeal to the progressive element, and that element was in the majority. Lacking a suitable candidate, the allies were unable in the last moments to check the flow toward Wilson. They might have done so had they had a candidate with whom to accomplish the task.

Bryan Secretly Disappointed. As to Bryan, he has added new laurels to his individual victories, but there was an expression of disappointment on his face when he saw everything slipping to Wilson. Down deep in his heart he unquestionably entertained the hope that the Clark-Wilson people would hopelessly deadlock and that he might be the man chosen to bring about a break. But he overestimated his popularity when he personally attacked Clark and Murphy, and the men who have been in the habit of financing the Democratic National campaign. He injured himself with the delegates by his vicious personalities, and when the convention closed he was far from the popular idol who first addressed the assemblage in opposition to Parker on the opening day.

But Bryan has one satisfaction. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second. He has reaped a neat harvest out of the two conventions. For his newspaper received $25,000 for the first convention and $25,000 for the second.

Clark failed in their plan to block Wilson largely because they had no suitable candidate with whom to defeat the New Jersey man.

Lipman, Wolfe & Co. Merchandise of Merit Only

REMOVAL SALE

Every Article Reduced

All Bathing Suits and Accessories

For Women and Children

At a Fraction of Their Original Prices

Suits, Removal $1.85

—Ladies' bathing suits of all black twill, made with a large sailor collar trimmed with narrow white braid. Full-pleated skirt. The waist band, sleeves and bottom of skirt are trimmed with white braid.

Suits, Removal $2.65

—Bathing suits for women of good quality mohair. Made with square low cut neck, two box plaits in the front and buttons on one side. The yoke, sleeves, band and shirt are trimmed with a half-inch of black and white braid. Full pleated skirt. These suits come in black and navy.

All Wool Mohair Suits, Removal $3.35

—Bathing suits for women in navy all-wool mohair. Made in a square neck style opening in the front with a wide panel, and trimmed with five rows of braid in the front, on the yoke and sleeves. Also has a large pleat over the shoulder. Skirt made in the gored style.

Navy Mohair Suits, Removal $3.60

—These suits are trimmed in a brightly colored plaid. The skirt is gored and the waist has a square cut neck. In the front of the waist in a wide panel of the plaid and two wide plaits on each side. All-wool mohair.

All Wool Sicilian Suits, Removal $4.50

—Bathing suits for women of navy all-wool sicilian. Made with a large sailor collar and trimmed with striped galatea. Has a large pleat over the shoulder and a wide panel in front piped with striped galatea. Plain skirt.

Children's Bathing Suits, Removal $2.65

—Bathing suits for children of all-wool mohair in navy blue. Made with sailor collar trimmed with narrow white braid and new full-pleated skirt.

Bathing Caps at the Lowest Prices in Town

—Caps for women and children in a variety of styles and colors, plaids, polka-dots, changeable and plain colors.

Bathing Shoes All Marked for Quick Disposal

Removal . . . 19c, 27c, 42c, 53c and 98c

Bathing Shoes All Marked for Quick Disposal

Removal . . . 22c, 39c and 45c a Pair

ty Sheriff James Rice, of Nez Perce County, and William Cole, of Whitman County, on the charge of stealing eight head of horses from W. F. Hillow and C. E. Deschamps, of Nez Perce. The stock was found in the pasture of the parties, with the exception of two head which are alleged to have been sold at Rockford, Wash.

NEW SUMMER FOOTWEAR

Fashioned for Exclusive Tastes

There's every good reason why you should come to Rosenthal's for your shoes.

Rates: $1 per day; with bath, $1.50

J. S. McTernan, Manager

New Richmond Hotel

Fourth Ave. and Main St. SEATTLE

Absolutely fireproof. Conveniently located. All outside rooms.

Rates: $1 per day; with bath, $1.50

J. S. McTernan, Manager

Medford Plans Big Day

Grand Celebration, With Sport Programme, Is Due Tomorrow.

MEDFORD, Or., July 2.—(Special.)—Medford, along with every other town in the valley, is to have a grand Fourth of July celebration. Automobile and motor races will be held at the Fair grounds in the afternoon interspersed with horse races. Prizes aggregating $2900 have been announced. The night before the races a boxing contest has been arranged between Herb White and Ray Campbell, of San Francisco, and the following night there will be a port heavyweight bout at the Natorium, Soldier Elder, of Los Angeles, and Walter Monahan, of San Francisco.

The women of the Colony Club, Medford's most exclusive social organization, will give an out-of-door dinner and dance at the Dargett ranch the night of the Fourth for the benefit of the Sacred Heart Hospital and the members of the University Club will assist with amateur minstrels.

Nez Perce Horses Stolen

LEWISTON, Idaho, July 2.—(Special.)—E. A. Eggleston, of Coeur d'Alene, was arrested Sunday morning by Deput

Loss of Appetite

Is loss of vitality, vigor or tone, and is often a forerunner of prostrating disease.

It is serious and especially so to people who must keep up and doing or get behindhand.

The best medicine to take for it is the great constitutional remedy

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which purifies and enriches the blood and builds up the whole system. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets Sarsaparilla.