the unreliable Blaine Thomas, of Boston and Sacramento fame, almost as cruelly, the Colts drew first blood in the initial Portland-Vancouver series.

The game was the usual series-opener, with neither team performing up to the standard of excellence so noticeable in mid-week tussles.

Frank Eastley won his game, not because of his own efficiency, but chiefly because of the inefficiency of the Agnew-Thomas combination.

Eastley Wild at Start. Eastley started off like a soon-to-be
