PRISON IS MAN'S HOPE

VICTIM OF DRINK PLEADS TO JUDGE FOR LONG TERM.

Ex-Soldier, Slave to Cigarettes and Liquor, Would Banish Effects From System and Reform.

"This is the first time in my judicial experience that such a request has been made of me," said Judge Bean in the United States District Court yesterday when Joseph C. Bacon, pleading guilty to selling liquor to an Indian, asked that he be sentenced to imprisonment at the McNeil Island Federal Penitentiary for as long a period as the offense permitted.

After being arraigned and pleading guilty he was asked the usual question if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced. He approached the bar of the court and with perfect poise and short sentences, meditated voice, with a slight Southern twang, said: "Your honor, cigarettes and booze have been the ruination of my life and I want to be locked up in a county jail where I cannot recover from their evil effects."

"I was born in Texas 34 years ago and have an honorable discharge from the Spanish-American War, serving in Luzon. Florio, of this city, will speak at the 2 o'clock meeting.

This morning at 9 o'clock will occur the election of officers and the decision as to the next place of meeting.

SELLING REPORT SCORED

Expense Statement Attacked as Not "Conforming to Law."

SALEM, Or., July 5.—(Special.)—Attacking the expense statement of Ben Selling, Republican nominee as candidate for the United States Senate, declaring that it does not conform to the law or the truth, and charging that Mr. Selling violated the corrupt practices act, Arnold Keller, of Portland, filed a petition with the United States District Court, this afternoon.

In his affidavit he calls attention to expense incurred during January and February of this year. Inasmuch as the petition of candidacy of Mr. Selling was not filed until February 24, this affidavit will evidently bring out the question of law as to just when a candidate becomes a candidate.

Whether expenditures made by Mr. Selling prior to that time can be said to be a portion of his expense in promoting his candidacy, or whether he did not become a candidate until after his petition was filed is involved in this point, it is stated here.

TESTIMONY TAKEN IN OIL CASE

Testimony on the final hearing of the injunction of the Union Oil Company against the City of Portland is in progress before Judge Bean in the United States District Court. This suit grew out of an ordinance passed by the City Council fixing the limits within which oil storage plants could be located. It is alleged in the complaint that after the plaintiff purchased property within these limits at large expense and had started to erect a storage plant, another ordinance was passed which changed the limits and excluded the land that was prepared for such use by the oil company.

BIG EXPENDITURE DELAYED

Company Not Anxious to Build to New Districts and Is Ready to Carry Controversy to High Courts, Says President.

The bridge controversy, one of the principal elements in the case, has as its basis the suit now pending in the courts in which the city is endeavoring to force the company to pay a rate of 5 cents for each car operated over the Hawthorne bridge with a minimum of $15,000 a year.

Mayor Rushlight, at the beginning of the meeting, attempted to bring about a settlement of this question, but his proposition was not favorable to the company. He expressed the desire to dismiss the Hawthorne bridge case and to place a low valuation on the proposed franchises of the company in lieu of the company accepting the terms which the city is trying to secure in the Hawthorne bridge case.

President Josselyn declared that he had no authority to waive any of the rights of the company in the Hawthorne bridge case and he accordingly refused the Mayor's proposal.

VOTERS TO SETTLE BRIDGE CASE

As a result of the sudden turn of the franchise proposition the Mayor has planned to place the bridge question before the people. At the conclusion of the meeting he announced that he will have the City Attorney prepare a resolution asking the City Council to place on the ballot at the special charter election an initiative measure fixing the charge for operating streetcars over the bridges of the city at 3 cents a car. This, he declares, will settle the present bridge rate troubles and will net the city an annual income of at least $10,000 more than is now received from the company for the use of the bridges.

"This plan, I think, will be the best means of settling the trouble," said the Mayor. "I am dubious about the bridge situation as it stands at present, and it is for that reason that I am taking the stand that I do. It seems reasonable that the company should pay a rate of 3 cents for each car operated over the bridges."

LITIGATION MEANS DELAY

"If the people fail to vote in favor of my proposed measure it will then be up to us to settle our troubles in court and many years probably will be required, during which time the franchise asked by the company cannot be granted, because we cannot fix the valuation."

"The company wants to get rights of way to the approaches of the Broadway bridge. I am opposed to this under present conditions, as it seems to me that the company's plan is to get low bridge rates. It probably is not necessary for the company to use both the new Steel bridge, owned by the Harriman people, and the new Broadway bridge, owned by the city. By getting rights up to the ends of these bridges the company can play the two in getting low rates, as it is apparent that both the city and the Harriman lines would desire the streetcar company to use their respective bridges, for the revenue to be derived."

COMPANY NOT ANXIOUS

President Josselyn said that the company has not been anxious to procure the franchise grants, as their issuance would require large expenditures of money in building lines the company does not care to build, but which the property owners have insisted upon having built. He said he was willing to wait until the Public Utilities Commission, which probably will be created by the people next Fall, has an opportunity to pass upon the necessity of certain lines that the people insist upon, but which the company does not want to build.

The franchise proposition was first brought up last Fall, when the company presented a request for a blanket grant. The street committee of the Council, after several months of futile attempts to decide the terms of the proposed grant, recommended to the Council the granting of the franchise. It had been so changed that there was doubt about the company accepting.
