ELKS' INFLUX TAX ON RAIL FACILITIES

Special Preparations Required to Transport Delegations With Speed.

EXODUS PRESENTS TASK

Railway Officials Are Making Arrangements to Move Visitors From City Without Causing Them Delay.

Arrival yesterday of the delegation from Beston completed the list of special trains conveying delegations of Elks from the East to the convention But the arrival of the Bostonians no means terminated the influx of delegates and visitors to Portland. Each of the regular incoming trains on all railroad lines entering the city brings its complement of Elks. Numerous special excursion trains that will enter Portland either tonight or tomorrow will increase the number of visitors here several thousand for the "big day" of the convention week. Thursday, when the grand parade will take place, beginning at 10

rade will take place, beginning at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Among the delegates that have arrived are seven from Manila, the journey involving a trip of between 7000 and 8000 miles. This party includes: W. G. Marsters, past exalted ruler; P. M. Coyle, H. D. Gale, R. W. Blanchard, W. E. Francis, J. D. Siee and W. G. Bridges.

The various railroad systems entering Portland began preparing to handle the thousands of visitors to the convention city two months ago, when all passenger and motorcar equipment was made available. About the same time all construction and worktrain forces were placed in reservation. In fact, all lines of ordinary activity were suspend-ed so far as possible without interfer-ing with the usual commercial traffic.

afforded the railroads a maximum This afforded the railroads a maximum use of their equipment.

In fact, the preliminary plans of the railroads included provision for the abandonment of operation of some of the slow freights on days when an excess of special trains was due. In order to meet the demands of the situation, the law was necessary to currail furit also was necessary to curtail fur-loughs in all of the departments of the administration service. In this way it was possible to get everybody, both officers and employes in the service, "on the job," insuring the full benefit and efficiency of the entire force.

Cars Used Many Times.

In addition to the operation of their regular trains the various railroads running into Portland used approximately 1500 passenger cars in the organization of special excursion trains to bring the delegates and visitors to this city. Each line "doubled up" on this city, Each line "doubled up" on its available equipment. In other words, the cars used for one party were pressed into service as many times as their movement to and from subsequent points was possible.

Other special excursions will be conducted tomorrow morning by the O.-W.-R. & N. from The Dalles, Cascade Locks, Aberdeen and Hoquiam.

The Northern Pacific will run spe-cial trains from Olympia, South Bend, Centralia and Seattle, which will arrive between 7 and $250 o'clock Thursday morning. The Southern Pacific will run one special train from Albany, besides having made necessary arrange-ments for handling increased traffic from other points on its line.

Service Is Enlarged.

A special enlarged train service has been arranged by the Oregon Electric over its line from Albany, Salem and intermediate points. This arrangement includes the extension of the service by the usual Wilsonville train to Salem, giving the Capital City another train in addition to the service already and friends that the railroads are presented with a problem. This condition results from the uncertainty of the dates on which the different delegations will desire to start.

In order to meet this contingency in the most satisfactory manner possible the railroads have arranged to be prepared to handle outgoing guests, beginning tomorrow night. Every effort has been made by the railroads to assemble adequate equipment for the organization of special trains as rapidly as the departing delegations may demand.

The equipment that has been gath-The equipment that has been gathered includes every available car that can be called into requisition. The incoming throngs were handled with reasonable expedition.
