The drawing of the heats for the semi-finals in the job-meter dash was unfortunate for the Americans. Court ney. Gearhardt and Drew being placed in the same heat. Drew, the colored sprinter from Boston, was looked upon as our best man and he won the heat in 10 4-5 seconds, with Gearhardt a close second and Courtney third. The next heat of the semi-finals which did not contain an American entry, was won by Patching, of South Africa.
Courtney could have defeated Fatching, thus giving America six men in the finals.
