SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—(Special.)—Between Rohrer's overthrow...

Later, in the ninth, the Oaks started a rally that opened with Cook's homer...

The score at the close was 5 to 2 in favor of Portland.

Butcher's opening appearance in San Francisco was quite auspicious.

For the most part, the Oaks got their hits when there were two out and they couldn't bunch them efficiently to convert them into runs.

Butcher's opening appearance in San Francisco was quite auspicious.

The bases were full and two out when he hit the ball to right center.

It was a pretty home run as the fans at Recreation Park have seen in many a day.

The ball just skimmed over the fence top and four men scampered home in a body.

It was in the third that the curtains were closed over the Oaks.

Hogan, who had stolen second, was forced at second when Doane grounded to Cook.

BY JAMES H. CASSELL.

When Brooks, the Victoria first sacker, struck out in the ninth inning yesterday afternoon the Colts and their wavering supporters heaved a sigh of relief.

The relief was not a relief at all, for the Equines had won a game, 5-3.

For eight innings Ed Doty was the center of interest, with the Bees treating him as though he were a member of the regular troops.

In the ninth two errors and three hits scored two men and filled the path.

Luckily the weak-hitting Brooks, instead of slugging Meek, was the next man at bat.

Meek, who started in the eighth, made a three-run margin of victory.

As on Monday, the Bees were forced to call upon two moundmen, but unlike the opening game of the series, the hurlers did not rise to the occasion.

"Kiddo" Wilson started but one and one-third innings, burdened with three tallies, which convinced Manager Nordyke that "Kiddo" was not the lad to rely upon.

Creery, the 1911 reliable, the relief man managed to hold the Colts to two additional runs, ably assisted by weird base-running, but he was far from the form necessary to stage a major league scramble in his direction.

Until the near-fatal ninth inning only one Bee reached third base, which means that the hitting team took for twirling superb ball. Four hits scattered over eight innings, was the splendid record of Nick Williams' one best mound bet, and even the Victorians hoped for nothing better than a shutout.

But the ninth opened with Weed reaching first on a grounder to Kibbie, the ball taking a bad bounce in front of the third baseman.
