BY ROSCOE FAWCETT.

Five hundred pounds, more or less, of pitching livestock was backed into McCredie's chutes at Coast League Park yesterday, but nothing could stop the butchering of the sanguinary Los Angeles comers.

Although outhit, they won the first game of the series from Portland Southpaw Suter, Dave Gregg and Elmer Koestner collaborated on the game, and, while Gregg is charged with the defeat, due to an explosion in the seventh inning with the score a tie, Suter had a hand in the dolorous upset. His wildness in the third inning enabled the Angels to overome a two-run lead.

Beavers in Bad Way.

There was enough hitting on both sides to have won almost any old game. Portland banged out 12 safen the eight frames of Nagle's ancy. Then Leverenz relieved But the fact that Portland has occupancy. a misfit aggregation in the field seemed to be known in the pitchers' box. Indeed, the Beavers are a sadlooking bunch. so Butcher continued at third. Los Angeles introduced another "white hope" to local fans during the afternoon-Core, the big slugger in-jured in an automobile accident several weeks ago. Core took Heitmuller's sun job, and it was his terrific hitting that turned the tide of battle. Two doubles, a single and two sacrifices tell the story. The second two-bagger was inserted in the seventh inning and drove in the two runs that broke up the 3-to-3 draw.

Rally Comes in Eighth. McCredie fought hard for the game Harkness and Higginbotham being the only men on the bench when he fin-ished his substitutions. But a three-run rally in the eighth inning, cul-minating in Nagle's retirement, proved the Beavers' capacity. In this stanza Mac changed the dealer and shuffled the pack. He sent Fisher in to bat for Gregg with three men on the bags. Dillon thereupon conceived the idea of substituting a southpaw, Leverenz, against Fisher, a heart-side batsman. Mac raised the ante by recalling Fisher and sending
