

OLD FOES JOIN TO FIGHT BULL MOOSE

Third Party Finds Nemesis at Work in Political Ranks Near Walla Walla.

HISTORIC PRIDE IS STIRRED

Republican Faction Leaders Heal Wounds of Long Standing to Make Hybrid Organization Common Campaign Target.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—Politics make strange bedfellows. It is indeed hard to tell just what would happen if some of the old-time politicians were to come back to Walla Walla for a brief visit and meet certain individuals walking down town together arm in arm.

The third party was necessary for the reunion of the old-line and boxer forces in this county and they are jam up against each other and working in harmony.

In fact, the third party since launched in this state has done more to recement the ties that once bound than anything else.

Last Straw Causes Break. Of course, there is some Roosevelt following here and what there is is very active, but the straw that broke the camel's back was when the dangerous convention-holding mania developed on the "West side" and terminated in the decision to have state and county tickets.

Up to that period in the new party's formation there were plenty of them who would leave the grand old party standard on the least provocation and wanted to climb in a bandwagon to be the principal feature of the thing in what had heretofore remained a two-ring big show circus.

"Moose" Is Common Target.

And so the third party state and county ticket is not here. The reaction of the Republican ranks in this part of the state and on the entire East Side for that matter, is as pronounced as was the dissatisfaction when reports from the new "Moose" Roosevelt was being chocked by the same methods which had characterized the campaigns he himself headed in the past and which the new "Moose" is trying to enforce when any of his followers suggest in a timid manner that they would like to vote for a personal friend for some municipal office.

Just what have heretofore been heretofore opposed to the third party in this city and has brought about a reunion of forces cannot be learned. It seems as though a vast majority in both factions recognized that the third party is something in common for them to fight—and the fight is on.

Third Party Support Nil. Even though there is a full state ticket in the field the third party will not get its strength from the Republican ranks in this part of the state.

The greatest vote will come from the Socialists and Democrats. It is more than reasonable to believe that the Republicans who are going to vote the third ticket are already out making their declarations—and if this is true there are very few.

Whether the third party in Washington wins or loses its good for this part of the country has already been manifested. The warring factions, which have been known to work together since the memorable split over the re-election of ex-Senator Levi Anderson, are now by memories—whether fond memories or not—dependent largely on which side of the fence they were on.

The following is the complete list of candidates who will appear on the primary ballot in September, together with the office for which they will represent and the party they will represent.

Legislators Stay Regular. Of 16 Candidates for Re-election in King County Only 2 Are Moose.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—Of the 16 members of the House of Representatives of the State Legislature from King County who are candidates for re-election, only two members have announced their willingness least alarmed by the Governor's statement. "I will welcome Governor West's interference if he can in any way help us," said Mr. Slover. "Personally I don't see that he can do any more than we have been doing right along. Certainly he can make no more arrests than we have made in the past year, nor do I believe that he can keep the vicious element more effectually suppressed than we have been doing. There is no open gambling in Portland at this time, and we are doing everything in our power to break up the little gambling that is being carried on quietly. If the Governor can point out to us anything that has been left undone for the betterment of the city in my department it will be welcomed."

point in the cleanup campaign. That is all I have to say in regard to the declaration of the Governor today.

These were all the statements that the Governor would make in regard to the proposed cleanup. When pressed, he reiterated that he not only had nothing further to say, and added he has nothing particular in mind just at the present time.

It is probable that he will issue a formal statement in a day or so, but the hearing of the militia matter, which consumed practically all day today and a large share of the evening, he said, precluded him from even giving the matter a further thought today and he absolutely refused to be further questioned.

Mrs. Baldwin may act in any county of the state. This appointment is made under the section of the code unamended the other day in connection with the reform crusade of the Executive.

By this the Governor is empowered to appoint special agents to secure evidence, to arrest or convict criminals, or to act even as prosecutors when the properly constituted authorities fail to do their duty.

The Governor says that frequently Mrs. Baldwin, in her work in Portland, would find such an appointment convenient, and consequently commissioned her. This is the first special agent who has been given a commission under the present administration.

Governor West's statement that Portland is to be his next objective point in his clean-up campaign, which has already touched the Multnomah and Clackamas roadhouses and the towns of Redmond and Huntington, meets with no opposition from either Mayor Rushlight or Chief of Police Slover.

"There is very little to be said on the matter," said the Mayor last night. "If the Governor has any information that he can furnish us that will be for the good of the city or any assistance he can give us in our efforts to keep the city clean I am sure I shall welcome it. My policy and my instructions to the chief of police are and always have been to take persistent and vigorous steps for the suppression of lawless and vicious practices in the city.
