JONATHAN BOURNE REPLIES TO T. R.

Oregon Senator Admits Trying to Effect Settlement in Standard Oil Case.

MOTIVES ARE DEFENDED

Visit to Archbold Made Without Knowledge of Roosevelt, He Says, and for Purpose of Securing Strong Incorporation Law.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Wash. ington, Sept. 2 - Sepator Jonathan Bourne was greatly surprised this morning to find that Colonel Roosevelt had brought him into controversy with Senator Penrose and John A. Archbold Senator Penrose and John A. Archbold and had given publicity to two letters written to the Senator declining to recognize him as an intermediary in the dealings between the Standard Oil Company and the Government. He had no intimation that he was to figure in this controversy and says there is absolutely no reason why he should have been mentioned, for his talks with President Roosevelt were on an entirely different purpose.

Senator Bourne further declared he had no financial interest in the Standard Oil Company and no more intimate relations with its officials than with relations with its officials than with officials of other big corporations with whom he has conferred in New York and Washington, principally about "popular government" and the Federal incorporation law. While he did not condemn Colonel Roosevelt for bringing his name into the campaign contribution row, he took occasion to dictate an explanation of the letters made public by Roosevelt.

The Senator did not remember whether he had had any correspondence with President Roosevelt on this subject or whether he had always talked with him personally regarding the matter of a compromise. He had not examined his letter files, but thought they would show no correspondence. His dictated statement follows:

"I must confess my surprise at Colonel Roosevelt dragging my name into the controversy he is now having with Standard Oil representatives and others. I fall to see how my efforts to bring about a settlement between the Government and the Standard Oil Company in 1908 has any bearing upon the pres-Letters Not Remembered.

Bourne Admits Seeking Settlement. "Yes, I endeavored in 1908 to bring about a settlement between the Gov-ernment and the Standard Oil Company ernment and the Standard Oil Company, believing that such a result would prevent a continuance of the panic started in 1907 and that the Government could secure much better terms by settlement than through court and that President Roosevelt could have the co-operation of the big business interests of the country in his effort to secure a Federal incorporation law that would bring all the big business corporations directly under the strong arm of the Government, a law that would clearly define what corporations could, must and must not do. My idea of government is, first, protection of personal liberty of the citizen, next, protection and initia-
