SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—(Special.)—Oakland hasn't any pity on the Oregonians and that's the reason, perhaps, that the Commuters found them haps, that the Commuters found them-selves tonight perched out in the lead-ing position of the tightest pennant race the Coast League fans have wit-nessed in many a day.

With the Seals taking all the fight out of Vernen in Los Angeles, Oakland gave the Beavers the trimming of their young lives. It's not that the Portlanders care very much because they don't figure better than the second division, it simply had to be done from an Oakland standpoint. There was a double-header to be played and Acting Captain Honus Mitze had it all figured out that by taking both games on his home ground he would have his club leading the league for the first time since early in the year. The hopes of Honus almost slipped a cog in game No. 1, when it took the Commuters 13 innings to subdue the ensmy by a 5 to 4 score. gave the Beavers the trimming of their by a 5 to 4 score.

Second Game Cut Short.

Inasmuch as two games had been promised the crowd, it was decided to go through with the programme and because the hour was late and the rabid bugs already had witnessed 13 innings, by mutual consent it was agreed to cut the second session to five innings.

Now five innings just about constitute a game and thanks chiefly to Handsome Harry Suter and his wildness, the Oaks gathered it in by a 3 to 1 score, retiring the Portlanders in their last chance in the fifth, and started for the clubhouse, with the knowledge that for just this one day, if no more, they were on top of the heap.

This double-header going to Oaks This double-header going to Caks along with the Angels' victory in Sacramento and the defeat of the Tigors has caused quite a shifting in the standing of the clubs. Vernon, proud leader up to some time yesterday afternoon, is shoved back to third place in the race, the Oaks jumped from nowhere to first and the Angels remain just where they were, the contenders.

BY JAMES H. CASSELL.

After practically presenting Spokane with the third straight game of the series by a tragedy of execrable baseball such as seldom is seen on a Northwestern League lot, the Colistrallied in a sensational fifth-inning slugging bee, drove Paul Strand from the mound and converted almost certain rout into a 6-5 victory, which tumbled the Indians into second place in the strenuous pennant tussie.

"Skin" Harris, the Colt receiver, was the center of the second inning storm of disaster. He erred woefully three times at critical moments, and then added another miscue in the fourth inning, bringing down upon his head the opprobrium of the crowd. But, strange to say, this same "Skin" is the lad who started the swatfest which drove Paul Strand from the mound and the Indians into second place.

The two innings, with a Spokane contribution in the fourth, tell the story of the game. In the second inning Hartley opened with a fly to deep right center. Mahoney just placed his glove on the bail, but falled to bold it, "Chick" going to second. Johnson bunted in front of the plate and Harris foolishly tried to catch Hartley at third. Altman singled past third, Peterson, the Tiliamook recruit, failing to go after the easy grounder, and Hartley scored. Cartwright bunted to "Lefty" Steiger and that worthy unwisely tossed to third in a vain effort to nlp Johnson, filling the bases.

Ostdlek hit to Steiger and Harris again dropped the bail. Johnson scoring. Strand hit to Goitrin and Harris again dropped the bail. Altman scoring. Myers hit to Peterson, forcing Cartwright at the plate, but Harris tossed wide to Williams in an effort to pull off a double play, and Ostdlek scored.

The fifth inning spelled doom for the Redskins, eight hits, scoring six runs. Harris opened with a single over short. Coltrin doubled to left, scoring Harris. Peterson filed out to deep center, Coltrin taking third. Steiger singled over second, scoring Celtrin. Mahoney beat out a hard one to Cooney. Speas drove the ball to center, scoring Steiger. At this point Ostdiek had decided to inject "Chief" Cadreau into the fray, but changed his mind when he noticed Fries, a left-handed batter, approaching the plate. To his dismay Fries doubled to right center, scoring Mahoney and Speas.
