MERCHANTS OPPOSE 3-CENT FARES ACT

"Straphanger" Ordinance Is Condemned as Impossible to Enforce Rightly.

NEW MEASURE IS FAVORED

Need Is More Cars and Not Discriminative Reductions, Say Business Men-Councilman Maguire

Expects Adjustment.

That the Maguire ordinance for reduced fare for "strap-hangers" should be repealed was the sentiment expressed yesterday by a number of business men and patrons of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company.

Councilman Maguire, author of the act, said he had introduced the ordinance chiefly for the purpose of compelling the company to supply more cars during congested periods, and intimated that if the service were increased during the rush hours of the congested periods and to provide bet-ter service for persons who are com-congested periods and to provide better service for persons who are compelled to stand up when going home after their daily work. I feel certain that if the company relieves the situation in this manner, the controversy between the City Council and the company can be settled easily."

Confusion is Feared.

The ordinance provides that two feet simil be allotted for each passenger and, once the seat having been sold on the trip for 5 cents, any person boarding a car at a later, period may ride for 2 cents and still have a seat for resting, providing there is sufficient space. Such an arrangement would result in confusion and could not be practicable is the belief of Will F. Lipman, of Lipman, Wolfe & Company; Frank C. Riggs, president of the Rotary Club; I. Fred Larson, president of the Portland Realty Board, and Eugene Brookings, president of the reason that it is impracticable."

There are many sections in Portland in need of streetcar service, and as the city grows there will be more of these districts. The only way to get these extensions is to promote and develop the service.

Practical Measure Favored.

"It is my opinion that the City Coun-cil should repeal the Maguire ordi-nance and put something into effect more practical," said W. F. Wood-ard. "I do not believe that the Coun-cil can make such an ordinance stick.

passed, for it would cripple possibilities of securing extensions. I understand that the service during the congested periods has been and is being improved. In that direction I believe that the City Council could direct its attention to the best advantage."

More Cars Is Urged.

Frank C. Riggs, president of the Retary Club, said: "I do not believe the ordinance is practical and I think it ought to be repealed. All we need in Portland is more cars during the congested period and if the Council would devote itself to that particular phase I am sure that everybody would be satisfied."

The practical method of handling the streetcar proposition," said Eugene Brookings, president of the Progressive Business Men's Association, "is to have the Council devote its efforts to the service problem direct. Either we have engaged and made the home of the club, both officially and socially. A committee of five was appointed to prepare the entertainment for the smoker and it is intended to include some of the leading vaudeville artists then appearing at the local theaters.

At the regular business meeting, following the luncheon, at which William Leonard acted as chairman, several congratulatory letters were read from several civic bodies with reference to the way the Tansportation Club had several civic bodies with reference to the way the Tansportation Club had received and entertained the American Association of General Passenger and Ticket Agents. An invitation of the Progressive Business Men's Club to attend a banquet at the Multnomah Hotel on the evening of Thursday, September 26, and at the same time listen to an address by Dr. Aked, of San Francisco, was received.

The feature of this after-luncheon meeting was an address by Professor C. L. Smith, agricultural agent of the O.-W. R. & N. Company, in which he gave an insight into how he succeeded in interesting farmers in adopting modern and scientific methods of farming.

day there would be no demand for the enforcement of the ordinance.

"When I introduced the ordinance I at no time had believed that if passed it would be put into effect." said Councilman Maguire yesterday. "My object was to force the company to place more cars in service during the congested periods and to provide better services for parsons who are completed only a few times during each generation.

The demand for copies of "The American Government," by Frederic J. Haskin, indicates that there is something in this new work which has a peculiar appeal for both old and young, because the persons who have applied for the book since its distribution was begun by The Oregonian have inclidered in the public schools to grand-parents, who in another generation. parents, who in another generation fought and worked to make this coun-try what it is. more practical," said W. F. Woodard. "I do not believe that the Council can make such an ordinance stick. All passengers should be treated alike, and there would be certainly a discrimination between patrons when one could ride for 5 cents and another for 3 cents and yet get the same service. "Portland retail merchants have spent millions of dollars in the last few years in developing their property. They have built bigger than the city, and it must necessarily follow that Portland must grow to meet the requirements of the mercantile districts. This growth is vitally involved in the extension of streetcar lines, and I, for one, regret to see such an ordinance passed, for it would cripple possibilities of securing extensions. I understand that the service during the congested periods has been and is being structured in the passed periods has been and is being structured by Judge of God.
