GANADA LEADS IN RIFLE TOURNAMENT

British Columbia Shooter Sets Perfect Score Yesterday in Every Event Except 600 Yards. Where He Makes 47.

With weather conditions ideal for high scores, Canada's representatives the international rifle tournament in the international fine tournament now in progress on the Clackamas range needed only the spirit of battle to spur them ou to victory yesterday. Major Hart-McHarg, their coach, sup-plied the necessary stimulant and the British Columbia team shot remarka-bly well all afternoon. When totals British Columbia team shot remarka-bly well all afternoon. When totals were compiled by Captain Collins, sta-tistical officer, they showed that the foreign crew had a lead of 89 points for the day. This virtually assures them of the championship.

Predictions to the contrary notwith-standing, the Canadians increased their margin as the range grew longer.

After the 200-yard trials, they were 10 points to the good. They gained 10 more during the 500-yard shoot, 28 in the 500-yard class and 30 in the final test of the day, 800 yards.

Oregonians Are Confident.

Results of yesterday's contests made it evident that the real issue is between British Columbia and Oregon. While the work of the leaders was so brilliant that it completely overwhelmed their opponents, Oregon's charpshooters feel confident that the decision will be reversed today. Even though they have 80 points to make up in order to tie the Canadians, they think they will have a good chance to win, because today's contests are at 1000 yards. Their shorter rifles and their steady practice at the longer fange will stand them in good stead. Selections made before the tournament began seem to be coming out right. It was freely predicted that British Columbia and Oregon would fight it out, with Washington second Oregonians Are Confident.

British Columbia and Gregon would fight it out, with Washington second and Idaho third. The Idahoans shot better than the experts anticipated for they started off in the lead and kept within striking distance of the Washingtonians all the way. They were but six points behind when the day's work was finished. s finished.

Here is the way the teams stand:

R. B. Miller Tells Realty Board That Scientific Methods of Agriculture Are Needed.

CROP ROTATION SUGGESTED

Co-operation With Agricultural College and Railroads Urged to Help in Adding to Production of Oregon Lands.

That the greatest problem before the people of Oregon is the adoption of practical and scientific methods of agriculture so that the farming industry can be made attractive not only to newcomers to the state, but also to a large percentage of the urban population, is the opinion of R. B. Miller, traffic manager of the O.-W. R. & N., who was the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Portland Realty Board yesterday.

Mr. Miller pointed out that the growth of the cities was immeasureably out of proportion to the development of the rural districts. He declared that the small increase of population in the country was due primarily to the methods followed in agriculture. The most important duty of the people of Portland, he said, is to co-operate with the railroads, the State Agricultural College and other interested institutions in the work of adopting a system that would increase the volume of soil products and bring the best possible returns to those engaged in agriculture.

returns to those engaged in agriculture.

Increased Production Demanded.

"According to the last census the population of Portiand was about one-third of that of the entire state," said Mr. Miller. "There were two men in the state, by this ratio, who were contributing to the support of one man in Portland. If the same conditions continue, it will not be long before there will be one man in the country supporting one man in the country supporting one man in the city. This is absolutely wrong and impractical. We must give the rural districts a chance to catch up. In order that this state may make proper development, it is necessary for the farming districts to produce more than can be used by local consumption.

used by local consumption.

"Every year there is being shipped into Oregon and Washington millions of dollars worth of eggs, poultry, hogs, cattle and packing-house products. This condition is bad. Instead, we should be shipping out of Oregon all such products that we are receiving from other states.

"One factor in solving this great problem is more intensive cultivation of the soil. We need better and more practical farming methods. The big farms should be cut up into smaller

It is thought that Mr. Heilner is bringing the suit for others as well as himself, who are interested in bringing back into force the council form of government. TWO CASES ARE PENDING

Some Interesting Matter Expected From Grand Jury Report.

Final report of the September grand jury, which terminates today, is expected to contain interesting matter, particularly in two cases which have been closely watched during the past month. These are the cases of seven Socialists, who, it is salleged, caused to be issued a scurrilous pamphlet against Theodore Roosevelt at the time of his recent visit here, and of Isabelle Simmons and Della Reed, employes of the Police Department, accused of having looted boxes containing merchandise held by the police as evidence against a band of shoplifters.

In the case of the Socialists, further investigation has been made and the place where the pamphlet was printed discovered. The screed purports to have been written by Thomas J. Burns and indorsed by a committee of the party. At a meeting some time after the circulation, the "local" is said to have voted by a strong majority indorsing the circular.

The case of the two women of the Police Department has been before the jury for several weeks, following an investigation made by Chief of Police Slover and Detective Craddock. Several huge packing boxes of goods recovered from the home of three women, since indicted for shoplifting, had been stored on the third floor of the Police Station, and while there were rifled of a number of articles. Miss Reed, on being questioned, confessed to taking some articles and restored them. A search warrant disclosed other articles in the trunk of Matron Simmons, who was on her vacation at the time. Charges have been filed against both women within the department.

There are in all ten performers required for the production of this play, which was written and performed in England prior to its introduction over here. It has been presented in Ohio and other states.

The first performance will be given in the theater at Oregon City next Friday, following which it will be produced in Arleta and other outlying districts prior to its introduction into Portland.

"In the Eastern part of Oregon and Washington, where wheat growing is the main industry, there should be a rotation of crops. Half of that land is idle every year to permit of Summer-fallowing. The time must come when such a system will be abolished and all that rich land be made to produce something every year. That method is necessary to increase the rural population in those districts.

"The Oregon Agricultural College is doing a great work, but it is handicapped seriously by the lack of funds. Larger appropriations should be made so that the college extension work can be carried on effectively in all parts of the state. I urge the members of the Portland Realty Board to investigate the work seing done by the State Agricultural College and help the institution in increasing its scope. The sitution in increasing its scope. The introduction of proficient and practical methods of agriculture is the greatest need. This movement should receive substantial encouragement from all the people."

Wold have worked indefatigatly all through the week, and have reached, either by means of literature or personal canvass, some 5000 people, the majority of them voters.

Meetings are planned for Hillsboro and McMinnville, at which Portland business and professional men will speak.

It is in connection with these meetings that the Portland Men's Equal Suffrage League is arranging a number of out-of-door talks. They have thought it better to hold back their efforts until the last month of the campaign, when they are going to come out into the open. Speeches are promised by notifical men, by attorneys and by members of the Senate. The Men's Club has done good work quietly all along, in providing speakers, when wanted, by any of the various suffrage debate, but for lack of an opponent a suffrage state the side of the "antis."

Judge Munly contended that the South Portland structure would serve as large a nonvilation now without serv. at Baker.

It was discovered that it will be necessary to have obligations covering the appropriation of $50,000 before the end of the year or the appropriation will lapse, so the board has advertised for bids and the contract will be awarded the latter part of this month.
The Legislature appropriated $50,600
for the dormitory.
