PROBLEMS RISE AS RESULT OF VOTE

Defeat of Bond Issues Puts City Officials in Quandary, Is Declared.

MAYOR GIVES HIS VIEWS

Rushlight Says That Incinerator Is Now Overworked and That Be-Refuse Will Be Need.

The unfavorable vote on the various and issues at the city election Saturday has brought the city officials face to face with a number of problems which may prove hard to solve. Sur-prise over the outcome of the election prise over the outcome of the election was general yesterday among those who have been fathering the various bonding measures, which had for their purpose the beautifying of the city and the making of needed improvements.

One problem is that of how and where to build the public auditorium, for which $600,000 in bonds have been voted. The plans for the building are all complete, and everything is ready for advertising for bids and letting a contract. On the ballot was a measure providing for the issuance of $100,000 in bonds to use in purchasing a site for in bonds to use in purchasing a site for the auditorium building. This was voted down. This leaves the auditorium commission with the money to erect the building, as planned, but no money to buy a site.

"I firmly believe that by resorting to the courts we could get the property adjoining the Market block on the south, 50x200 feet in size, for $100,000.

But, then, we will have to face the problem of furnishing the building. It is certain we could not do this out of

Meeting May Be Held,

"I believe the vote of the people on the auditorium bond issue makes im-possible the purchase of the two pieces of property on the East Side which have been considered as good audito-rium sites. I do not think we could buy them for less than $200,000, which would be more than we could stand. My opinion of the question is, of course, only my personal view. I can say nothing for the other members of the commission. I believe the commission will hold a meeting as soon as T. B. Wilcox, chairman, returns to the city. ## Desertions at Coast Ports Increase Rapidly.

With each recurring shipping season the scarcity of able-bodied seamen is becoming more noticeable until it has become difficult to secure a crew of real sailors at any port on the Pacific Coast, and it is claimed that they are disappearing faster than the wind-jammers, which are being superseded by the tramp steamer and motor ship.

With the coming of nearly every foreign sailing vessel to this port the larger portion of the members of the crews desert and, as a rule, leave beto them considerable money coming to them, preferring to take their fu-ture chances in this country ashors than to continue a seafaring life in which they have learned no promotive future exists.

exception when the members of a French or German ship deserted except for direct personal causes, and even now they do not give as the rea-son the low wages received, but claim that all they can now do at sea, or soon will be able to do, is in competi-tion with the Asiatics as seamen on steamships. This is especially true of the older sallors, who cannot qualify for service on the trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific liners of their country, and who know that they can always make a living ashore.

Natives of the Scandinavian races who come to the port as sailors have always deserted, when possible, until today the coasting service, both sailing and steam, is made up largely of Scandinavians. The employment of the Asiatics by the owners of steamships is undoubtedly due to economy, although it is given out that they are although it is given out that they are more trustworthy, but the real reason is the fear of strikes, which these cheap sailors are not often mixed up

The near completion of the Panama Canal and its effect on sailing vessels is of such world-wide knowledge, that it has evidently reached the forecastle.

In closing, he declared for the ballot for women on the grounds of appreciation of their influence in uplifting the world, and on the grounds of common justice. "You can't find where there has been an uplift in civilization without woman's influence. There are two kinds of Player Pianos-the Angelus and the other kind.

To hear an Angelus is to listen to the finished playing of the artist. It is the one perfect player piano. It separates melody and harmony just as in hand playing. It is controlled by the touch of the finger. Its pedals open and close automatically. It is more daintily finished, more easily pedaled, more artistic in every way, and costs no more than indifferently good players. By all means see and hear the

Exchange Your Silent Piano for an Angelus

SEVENTH AND MORRISON STREETS

Angelus before your decision is made.
