

OLD FISH RETOLD

Use of Cleveland's Instrument Recalls Incidents.

ACTOR SHOWS QUICK WIT

Portland Man Tells of Accompanying Former President on Night of 1884 Election and Surprise Victory Brings.

The announcement that Governor Wilson, of New Jersey, would receive election returns at Princeton last Tuesday night, through the same telegraph instrument which carried Cleveland's victory in 1892, reminded a resident of Portland of hitherto untold incidents of the night of Tuesday, November 4, 1884.

The Cleveland-Blaire campaign was fought with bitter personalities, said Mr. Bailey, who, as a resident of Buffalo, N. Y., accompanied Governor Cleveland on his first election to the Presidency. The relater of the incident is George M. Bailey, president of the Northwest Townsite company, of Philadelphia.

"The Cleveland-Blaire campaign was fought with bitter personalities," said Mr. Bailey, who, as a resident of Buffalo, N. Y., accompanied Governor Cleveland on his first election to the Presidency.

"No one in Buffalo believed that their former Mayor would be elected. The name and fame of Cleveland, believed to be all-powerful, as vote-getters; therefore, when Governor Cleveland came home to vote only a small crowd met the train at the Exchange-street depot."

"Mr. Cleveland, who was then a bachelor, had rooms on the second floor of the Wood block, in which the law office was located. He had a room in that precinct about 3 P. M. From the polling place he went to the Buffalo Club, which was then located on Washington street, near Swan street. There he later dined with a number of friends."

"Charlie Thomas, of the Courier, the leading Democratic newspaper, and myself, called on Mr. Cleveland at the club and told him that we had been detailed to 'cover' his visit in the city and to remain with him until he retired for the night. Mr. Cleveland, who was a very gracious to newspapermen, and whom both Mr. Thomas and myself had frequently met in our work, made us feel at home at the club, which was practically a residence for him for a residence while he was in town."

"Apparatus is mistaken. The principal place of amusement in Buffalo at that time was the Academy of Music, owned by the brothers John and Henry Mosch, both ardent Democrats and admirers of Mr. Cleveland. Early in the evening one of the Mosch brothers telephoned to Mr. Cleveland that he had reserved a box for him and his party that night to witness a play entitled, 'Our Governor,' and in which Billy Florence, the popular comedian of those days, was playing the chief part, that of the governor. It was late when we left the Buffalo Club to go to the theater. Besides Mr. Cleveland, there were in the party, the late Mayor, Shan Bissell, who was afterwards Postmaster-General in Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet, and two or three other friends."

"When we arrived at the Academy the curtain had just been rung down on the first act, and as we climbed the short stairs to the dress circle, the applause was just at its height. As we went around to the box on the right hand side of the theater, those in the audience, downers caught sight of the familiar figure of their former Mayor and Governor, and the applause was resumed. Billy Florence, behind the scenes, hearing his second outburst, naturally concluded that it was meant for him, and just as Mr. Cleveland reached the front of the lower box and was returning the greetings of the audience by bowing the curtain was pushed aside, and covered with smiles, the comedian also stepped out and, walking to the footlights, was about to make a speech of thanks for this unexpected encore, when he noted the smiles on the faces of the people and their eyes looking toward the box behind him."

Actor Turns Tables. Billy Florence was a quick-witted Irishman. He was a brother of former Police Inspector Conlan, of the New York City Police Department. Florence being his stage name. Turning to see what caused the mirth and beholding Mr. Cleveland, who was also smiling at the actor's merriment, he quickly turned to the audience and exclaimed: 'I beg your pardon, friends; I see that your applause was intended for the other governor, and I am glad to hear that Mr. Cleveland has retired behind the scenes, this time to the sound of a genuine outburst of hand-clapping, meant for himself.'

"After the play was over we returned to the Buffalo Club and continued to receive returns, which in those days came in more slowly than now. How-ever, about 1 A. M. the leading New York newspapers announced the election of Mr. Cleveland, and if I remember rightly, the chairman of the Republican National Committee also con-ceded Mr. Cleveland's election, shortly after midnight. So little was this news expected that few persons in Buffalo were on the streets at that hour, and Mr. Cleveland went to bed amidst comparative quiet. Next day the news was fully confirmed, and the name of Mr. Blaine's defeat was placed upon the head of poor old Dr. Burchard, who had uttered that famous and unfortunate epigram that the Democratic party was reserved by 'Rum, Romanism and Rebellion.'"
