"There are no less than 40 portraits of prominent men and women and children in the exhibition by Miss O'Ryan, but nothing will stand out in proclamation of her talent in portraiture better than her limning of Archbishop Christie."

Some of the other portraits that attracted considerable attention included that of a baby, Master Thomas Kerr. In this the individuality and strength of character made it the outstanding juvenile picture in the exhibit.

March 8, 1908, during the height of the tong war, has been in the County Jall awaiting a new trial ordered by the Supreme Court of Oregon. During that time he has occupied himself, partially, in learning to road and write English, and yesterday he wrote the following letter to Judge McGinn, who defended him with the assistance of Ralph E. Moody:

"Hou, Judge Henry E, McGinn: I will write this letter to you about me innocent. So wretched in jail but the accuser they distort the facts of my case as me both be innocent production."
