Opinions on Sites Differ,

W. D. Fenton declared that he con-sidered the Market block as the logi-cal place for the auditorium. "The people at the last election," he said, "voted in favor of the street vacation proposition which opens the way for the use of the Market block. Pertion proposition which opens the way for the use of the Market block. Per-sonally I know that if we spend any-thing for a site we will not have enough laft to build the kind of an auditorium we want. If we cannot build on the Market block or some other that will not require us slashing the appropriation the Mayor can have my resignation."

The same opinion was expressed by Hugh Hume, Mr. Wilcox and Phil Metschan, the other members of the commission. Mr. Metschan declared that he did not favor the Market block. and would resign rather than take the responsibility of allowing the structure to go there.

E. F. Laurence, Hy Ellers, Walter Holt and others appeared in behalf of the site as selected by Municipal Architect Bennett in his Greater Portland plans. In recommending this site, Mr. Laurence made a suggestion which may offer a solution to the problem by placing the structure on the old expo-sition site on Nineteenth and Washington streets. He declared that business people of Washington street and others would subscribe the greater part of the amount required to purchase the ex-position site. "I know they will," he said, "because I have talked with many of them. I believe they will con-tribute at least $200,000. This, with what you are able to spend from the $500,000, ought to make up the amount required for the purchase of the site.

Crisis Is Faced.

site is the only logical and available one."
By Ellers declared that he considered the building. "If necessary," he said "doring is the proper place for the building. "If necessary," he said "doring is the considered of the building." If necessary, the said "doring is the constant of a curve of the building. The necessary for a curve of the building."
