FLAGSHIP ENGINEER WINS PROMOTION

Robert S. Paul, of Beaver. Goes to Trans-Pacific Mail Liner Mongolia.

CHANGE EFFECTIVE TODAY

Chief of 'the Black Gang' Who Takes Step Upward Was Veteran in Service of Coast Vessel, Having Come From Newport News.

Robert S. Paul, chief engineer of the flagship Beaver, of the "Big Three" fleet, made his last voyage for the present on that yessel when she departed from here Sunday, as he has been promoted to the position of the chief engineer on the Pacific Mail trans-Pacific liner Mongolla, regarded as the queen of that fleet. Stephen W. Lindo, first assistant of the liner Manchuria, of the same line, has been transferred to the Beaver as chief engineer.

The changes are to become effective today and were learned here through advices received yesterday. Friends of Mr. Paul regard his advancement as a high compliment, for to be chief of the "black gang" on one of the trans-Pacific carriers means a tidy gain in salary, besides assuming greater respon-sibilities, and, incidentally, the engine-room and fireroom force constitutes a small army, while on the coasters they number less than a score.

Officer Is Veteran in Service. On the Oriental run there are numer ous Chinese carried as firemen and ollers, but the white contingent, including the deck engineer, electrician and assistants, number as many as Beaver carries in her engine - room

Mr. Paul was the oldest officer on the Mr. Paul was the oldest officer on the Beaver in point of service on that ves-sel, for he was at Newport News dur-ing the days she and the Bear, her sistership, were under construction, and with Captain William Kidston, brought her to this coast. He was also on the steamer Kansas City when she made steamer Kansas City when she made the run from the Atlantic side. She has operated on the Portland-San Fran-cisco-San Pedro route, but is now num-bered with the Pacific Mail ships operating along the southern coast.

Board Leaves to Study Means of Establishing Fixed Aid.

At the termination of a session held yesterday a special board appointed by the Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor to investigate and report on the establishment of an aid to navigation at the outer end of the south jetty at the mouth of the Columbia, which will undoubtedly be a lighthouse and fog signal station, deter-mined to visit the scene and will depart by rail this morning. Major Mc Indoe, Corps of Engineers, United States Army, is chairman, and other members are: Major Kavanaugh, in members are: Major Kavanaugh, in charge of engineering projects in Washington; Henry L. Beck, inspector of the Seventeenth Lighthouse District, and Edward I. Woodruff, inspector of the Eleventh Lighthouse District, headquarters at Detroit, Mich.

Many plans have been proposed for the aid, but it is believed that the one selected will be to dump rock at the end of the jetty and virtually construct an island on which the building stand. It is also thought that project will be undertaken as soon as appropriation is made, because the coming season and as the trestle will deteriorate rapidly after being lected, it would mean additional heavy expense to make repairs a year or two later so the material could be transported. There is to be an "apron" built at the end of the jetty as a protection against scouring and the artificial island would serve the same pur-

LAUNCH MAKES SPEEDY RUN

Chappell Would Have Been Saved if Affoat 14 Minutes.

Harry Jacckel, night engineer of the harbor patrol launch, is given credit by Harbormaster Speier with having made the run from the boathouse, at the foot of Stark street, to the Morrison-street bridge at 10:40 o'clock Tuesday night in three minutes after Charles Chappell, an employe of the Chicago Belting Company, walked off the bridge to his death.

In a report made when he went off watch Jackel said that he heard cries of help while seated in the boathouse. immediately backed the launch the stream and headed for the ge. He found the drowned man's hat, he recites, and witnesses pointed to the spot where he went down. Harbormaster Speler says that had Chappell remained above water 14 minutes, as alleged, he would have been saved with ease. The head of the patrol force made an investigation, and the response made by the launch was within three minutes, he says. Hugh Brady, the municipal grappler, recov-ered the body at 8 o'clock yesterday

Pilots Request Harbormaster Will Take Action as to Lights.

Arc lights established at the north end of Montgomery dock No. 2 and at the south end of Martin's dock, for guidance of the master of the Lower Albina ferry, have been com-plained of by the Columbia River Pilots' Association in a letter received yesterday by Captain Speler, harbor-master. The river guides aver that when bound to or from the harbor with a deep-sea vessel, the illumina-tions confuse them, and because of the glare they are unable to distinguish run, as the vessel does not ply on a straight course, and during the last Winter there were two collisions in Winter there were two collisions in one night, owing to thick weather. Captain Speier says the matter will be referred to the county authorities and the objection to the lights might be overcome if they were shaded or screened. The same scheme was adopted with reference to lights on bridges that bothered the pilots.

Marine Notes.

Bound for Wellington, New Zealand, the American barkentine Koko Head cleared yesterday with 1,445,560 feet of lumber valued at $20,264.

ILLICIT SALES OF LIQUOR ARE · ALLEGED.

City Council Would Tax Druggists for Funds to Ferret Out Violations of "Booze" Law.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 20 .- (Speial.)-With members of the Home Protective Association, a recently organized club here, presenting argument for an ordinance to control the illicit sales of liquor, the session of the Council Monday night was one of the liveliest held here this year.
