MONTESANO MEET URGES GOOD ROADS

Unselfishness and Desire to Co-operate in Road Building Are Noticeable.

COLUMBIA BRIDGE TALKED

Resolutions Committee Mentions Highways Deserving of State Aid and Representatives-elect Are Heard From.

MONTESANO, Wash., Nov. 22.—(Special.)—Good roads and the necessity of harmony in getting needed appropriations for their construction, as well as competent assistance in the building of highways, were the keynotes of the opening of the tenth quarterly congress of the Southwest Washington Development Association, meeting in joint session with the Olympic Peninsula Development League here for a two days' session. The meeting was well attended, practically every commercial organization in the association being represented. The real bit of sensation of the entire meeting came just before adjournment this evening, when the resolutions committee reported and the resolutions were read. It was then that J. E. Barnes, secretary of the Olympic Peninsula Development League, secured the floor and vigorously objected to the name of Sam Hill appearing in the resolutions. This precipitated a heated argument for a few minutes, but as the resolutions had been turned over to the press, the meeting adjourned to secure them.

Excitement Is Expected. Tomorrow's session gives promise of being the warmest ever held by the two leagues. One of the remarkable features of the Congress, as President Coffman expressed it, was the apparent feeling of harmony with the selfish, grasping sentiment being weighed by the broad spirit of a desire to work for the general good of the whole state. "I was surprised to see how much the various county resolutions agreed with each other," President Coffman said, "and it indicates that the individual needs are being conceded, if necessary, for the ultimate development of the state. The members of the association were received upon the opening of the meeting by a few words of welcome from Mayor Wheeler. He spoke of the need of preparing for the opening of the Panama Canal, when hundreds of immigrants will swarm to the Pacific Coast shores. He said he knew that was the object which the development association sought for and he declared it to be a worthy motive.

Territory Bottled, Says Barnes. J. E. Barnes, secretary of the Olympic Peninsula Development League, was the next speaker. He predicted that the greatest development in the next five years would be in the northern neck of the state, but he said that a road to unblock this territory was badly needed.

"All we need is a road about ten miles long to get us out of our country than out being dependent upon steamboats," he said. "We are doing many things ourselves to develop the Olympic Peninsula, but we need this road and I am glad to note that various committees have seen fit to put this road—state aid road No. 14, on the list for recommendation."

President Coffman, in his address in expressing the keynote, as he said, of the present session of the Congress, said that it was the savage who worked independently of his neighbors and then fought whenever anyone approached with a plan for the general good which required effort of or the sacrifice of his worldly goods.

No "Pork Barrel" Wanted. "Civilization did away with all this," President Coffman declared. "We now work in common and all together for the common good. We will never accomplish anything working separately. If this meeting does nothing more than to endorse the people of Washington with a spirit of harmony in the building of their roads it will have been a success, but if it does not do this it will have been a failure. We want to do away with the 'pork barrel' at the Legislature and have our money raised by taxation spent along lines that will do the most good for the public as a whole."

In speaking of the present system of distributing money for road construction President Coffman said that enough money had been wasted in the district road fund to build permanent highways throughout all the state.

Co-operation Declared Necessary. Howard Taylor, speaker of the last House of Representatives, who is a candidate to succeed himself, told how closer co-operation between members of the Legislature and their constituents could be had. Mr. Taylor said: "As soon as a man is elected his chief opponent at once begins to tell the public what a bad man they have elected to office and how much worse he will be."

The speaker advocated more care on the part of civic bodies in recommending legislation. He said that during the last session he received hundreds of recommendations from prominent civic organizations recommending legislation that he would not have voted for under any circumstances. People do not seem to investigate those things before they pass resolutions asking that they be made into laws, he said. James P. Stapleton, of Vancouver, addressed the Congress on the need of a bridge across the Columbia River between Vancouver and Portland. The State of Oregon would be willing to share the expense, he asserted, and it was now up to this state to appropriate Washington's share. The Pacific Highway, if finished today, would be incomplete without this bridge, as means other than by ferry are not to be had to cross the Columbia. He said that two competing trolley lines would be operating between Fugate Sound and Vancouver and Portland within a short time if this bridge were constructed. E. C. Lancaster, of Goldendale, talked on state road No. 8, along the Columbia River from Goldendale south to Vancouver. He said Oregon was at work on a road on the other side of the river and now it was up to Washington to build a road on the north side. Oregon's road would be made by convict labor, he said.

Legislators Are Heard. Several members of the next Legislature were present and were called upon by President Coffman for short talks. They all promised good-road legislation at the next session. They were: E. A. Simms, of Port Townsend, who put in a word for the state road No. 14, in the Olympic peninsula; W. W. Connor, of Skagit County, and J. E. Leonard, of Lewis County.

BRIDGE DISTRICT PROPOSED J. A. Munday Would Bond Western Washington to Get Funds.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 22.—(Special.)—James A. Munday, of Vancouver, is in favor of forming a bridge district, to take in all that portion of the State of Washington west of the Cascade Mountains, and levy assessments and bond it for an amount sufficient to pay Washington's share of the proposed Pacific Highway bridge across the Columbia River. He made an address before the bridge meeting in the Commercial Club yesterday, where representatives from the granges in Clark County met with the business men of this city. The Grangers adopted resolutions favoring the building of the bridge, and requesting their Senators and Representatives to use means to accomplish this object.

from the humble voting precincts of an obscure Ohio county until its trial ends in the very Senate chamber. We have read of wholesale persons for graft in many of the largest cities of the land. Higher Standard Sought. "We men ought to demand that women come into the body politic and bring with them the same moral standard that they hold for themselves in the home, the church and the hospital; the great reform movements that are voiced by the Women's Christian Temperance Union and all other endeavors for righteousness that are always championed by women. Dr. Shaw displayed a silk flag to the delegates, which she explained had been presented to Susan B. Anthony by the women of Wyoming when that state first adopted suffrage. Stars had been added to the flag, she explained, as the states gave women the ballot, until it now contains ten stars.

INQUEST FAILS TO FIX YOUTH'S SLAYER

Three Dozen Persons Testify at Hearing in Mysterious Newell Case.

FIANCEE CALLED TO STAND

Young Woman Asserts She Went to Theater With Victim and That He Left Her Home at 12:15 on Sunday Morning.

YOUTH'S HABITS REVEALED

A dozen witnesses were sworn to prove the fact of death and to describe the position of the body when found. Another dozen swore to young Newell's habits and his whereabouts on the night before the murder, but no one gave evidence tending to point out the slayer. The name of Jack Miles, which has been associated with the case, was mentioned many times, but no evidence was submitted to connect him with the case. Mrs. Miles was called to the stand. She denied that she even had a speaking acquaintance with young Newell. She told at length her movements on the night before the killing, asserting that she went to bed at 12:45 A. M. She told her tale in straightforward manner. She said that she had separated from her husband three weeks ago; that he left Centralia at that time and had not returned since then. This statement was contradicted by testimony of Harrison Minton, cook in a Main-street restaurant, where Newell was last seen alive. Minton testified that Miles came into the cafe Friday night, two nights before the shooting. Other witnesses asserted that they had seen Miles on the street several times last week.

MISS BARNER TESTIFIES

Mrs. Miles was recalled to the stand later and submitted a card which she had received from her husband. The card was postmarked Redmond, Or., and was mailed last Monday night, the day following the shooting. Miss Laura Barner, young Newell's fiancée, was one of the witnesses called. She testified that the slain man took her to the theater on the night before he was killed, leaving her home at 12:15 on Sunday morning. Filed on a table in the inner room were all the clothes of the dead man, his pipe, tobacco and purse, the purse having been found yesterday by Chief of Police Schneider. Edward Newell, coroner of Lewis County and father of the slain youth, had a chair close to the witness stand.

ASTORIA DAMAGE CASE SETTLED

ASTORIA, Or., Nov. 22.—(Special.)—The trial of the case of Pete Nelson against the Pacific Power & Light Company came to a sudden end in the Circuit Court this afternoon, when a settlement was effected. The action was brought to recover $5000 damages for personal injuries consisting of a broken arm, alleged to have been sustained by the plaintiff in falling from the front platform of one of the defendant company's streetcars as it was rounding a sharp curve. After a portion of the plaintiff's testimony had been submitted the case was settled by the defendant paying the plaintiff the sum of $1250.

BOARD OF TRADE OPERATOR TAKES NEAL TREATMENT

DRINK HABIT CURED IN THREE DAYS

On the third day of his treatment a patient taking the Neal Treatment, whose name and address will be furnished as a private reference to any one in good faith interested, wrote a friend as follows: "Friend Hank: I am up here taking the Neal Treatment and it is the best ever. Better take a few days off and come up. In 3 or 4 days they will fix you as a drink of Honor looks like carbolic acid—besides they treat you like a prince." Ask us for the proofs—better still, come here and try it under this agreement that it will not cost you a cent unless you are entirely satisfied at the end of three days' treatment.
