

IN HYSTERIA, GAULT SEES BODY BURY UP

Lad of 19 Leads Sheriff to Grave He Made for Step-father Victim.

HEAVY LOGS ROLLED AWAY

Confessed Slayer Breaks Down for First Time When Crude Sepulcher Is Opened—Skull Is Taken to Oregon City.

OREGON CITY, Or., Nov. 24.—(Special.)—Retracing his steps on the night more than two years ago when he slew his stepfather, D. M. Leitzel, Glen E. Gault, a lad of 19, Saturday led Sheriff Mass, Coroner Wilson and Assessor Jack, of Clackamas County, to scene of the crime, near Scott's Mills; then over the trail of 150 feet and across a creek and up the hillside to where the body was buried. In hysteria the young man looked on while the officials uncovered about a foot of dirt and exhumed what is left of the body.

Frantic at the sight of the grave under the moulding logs, which he himself had piled up to allay suspicion, young Gault pleaded for the authorities to hurry the grave side investigation and broke down completely, while the morbid duty was being performed. At the sight of the remains of the body he was seized with violent hysteria and recovered only when he was led from the grave. Five minutes after the episode, and walking beside Sheriff Mass, who carried the skull of the murdered man, Gault was stolid and passive again. But not until he was back in Oregon City did he eat anything. He abstained from food.

Lambardi Company Charms Two Big Audiences

"Salome," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" Splendidly Sung and Acted.

BY JOSEPH M. QUENTIN. TWO big audiences tested the Helbig Theater to capacity Saturday and enjoyed the renditions by the Lambardis, of three operas: Strauss' "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" last night. Successful presentations were given, and there were several curtain recalls. Tarquini made another hit in "Salome," and in "Cavalleria," Mattini, Armani and Gioacchini dominated, while in "Pagliacci," Agostino, tenor, sang so superbly that he received one of the most enthusiastic greetings ever given to an operatic tenor in this city.

The stage picture was an elaborate one, and all the artists sang the music allotted to them, with skill. The story of the opera and the music Strauss wrote for it once more puzzled the auditors.

In "Cavalleria" the elements of faithless love and mixed affections received thrilling portrayals. Signorina Mattini, soprano, who won such vocal honors as "Mimi" and "Madame Butterfly," was the Santuzza, and she wore a simple dress and simple hairdo as the part calls for. Her lovely voice charmed. Armani showed better vocalism and greater art as Turiddu, and sang with unexpected power. Gioacchini, baritone, has recovered from the effects of his cold, and sang with his old-time success and brilliancy. He is a most capable actor and dominates the stage when he faces the audience. Prati, as Mama Lucia, sang well, while Pineschi, as Lolo, was not well cast.

The chorus, under the direction of "Capella," with fervor and fine expression, while the orchestra, under Barberi, played most artistically in the "Intermezzo."

In "Pagliacci," Agostino's fine singing was greeted with shouts of delight all over the house, and his solo in the first act, in which he had to be repeated before the audience would cease applauding. Gioacchini won honors in the famous "Prologo," and in acting the part of Silvio, a fine-looking, girlish Nedda. Colucci was orchestral director. The stage setting was finely arranged by Puglia.

The last performance of the Lambardis, this trip, is Bizet's "Carmen," with Tarquini in the title role, at the Helbig, this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

Skull Carried to Oregon City. The body was found just as the lad had explained it would be and the skull on one of the logs, practically as he had originally indicated.

Because the vehicles were left seven miles from the scene on account of bad roads, the authorities did not attempt to bring more than the skull to Oregon City. They were forced to walk the seven miles with it. A later trip may be made to bring the body.

"The thing I can't understand or which seems almost impossible," said Sheriff Mass tonight, "is that the boy was able to carry that body a distance of 150 yards across the creek and up the hillside to the grave. Then to think he was strong enough to roll logs over the rude grave is almost unbelievable. But I found everything just as the boy said it would be."

MISSING LAD FOUND DEAD Authorities Believe 16-Year-Old Boy Was Murdered.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 24.—(Special.)—Lying face downward in the brush about 200 yards from the home of his adopted parents, a boy, 16 years of age, was found dead this afternoon. There was a bullet hole straight through his forehead. His arms and repeating rifle lay across his back.

The Sheriff's office and friends have been searching for the boy since he disappeared, but had found no trace of him. Two brothers—Lawrence Sandstrom, of Portland, and Arthur, of Stanford University—came here this week and joined the searching party, which today found the body.

The authorities are completely mystified. They feel certain that the boy was murdered, and that after the murder he was employed on the W. F. Gould farm for two years, left the place the morning of election day on a hunting trip, expecting to return that afternoon. When he failed to return the theory was advanced that he had run away. This explanation was scouted by his brothers, who, on arriving here, insisted that the search be continued.

The boy's parents are dead.

WASHOUGAL MAYOR QUILTS Dispute Over Length of Term Settled by Action of City's Head.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 24.—(Special.)—The Mayor of Washougal, about whom there is a controversy concerning the expiration of his office, solved the trouble last night at Washougal, by consenting to resign and permit the Council to elect a Mayor to serve a year. At a caucus of the citizens last night Mayor Smith presided and stated the facts, and then declared his willingness to resign. He will hand in his resignation to the Council at the next regular meeting, December 2. For the office there was already several candidates, among them being D. W. Wright, County Commissioner, and A. B. Chaik. The following tickets were nominated by the caucus last night, the candidates running on the Citizens' ticket: Councilmen, W. S. Harvey, Henry Rich, George Schind, H. A. Hill, A. O. Hathaway and Walter Greenman, treasurer, William Rich.

At the recent election, November 5, the boys won an overwhelming victory, securing 14 votes to the vote's 99. This is the case it is not looked for the wets to put a ticket in the field at the coming election in December.

FIST GUFF STIRS LABOR CONVENTION

'Big Bill' Haywood Takes Refuge in Laundry After Encounter in Lobby.

GOMPERS ELECTED AGAIN

Max Hayes Musters 5074 Votes to 11,074 for Federation President. Private Pensioning of ex-Presidents is Opposed.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 24.—A fist encounter between William D. Haywood, a leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, and J. M. Barnes, secretary of the National Campaign Committee of the recent Socialist campaign, took place last night in the lobby of convention hall, while the American Federation of Labor was holding its final session. Haywood and Barnes met just outside a door to the auditorium. The door was open and President Gompers, on the platform, saw Haywood strike Barnes.

"A delegate to this convention has been assaulted by 'Big Bill' Haywood," shouted Gompers. "Delegates will keep the door. Police must prevent any further trouble. Haywood was taken to police headquarters, but Barnes declined to make a charge against him, and he was let go."

Haywood ran into the street, followed by several delegates. He took refuge in a laundry and someone barred the door. Police prevented further trouble. Haywood was taken to police headquarters, but Barnes declined to make a charge against him, and he was let go.

Barnes said Haywood had revived an old dispute over the merits of the rival bodies to which they belong. He said Haywood had taken the matter to the convention, and Barnes had championed the cause of the American Federation of Labor. Barnes said he had invited Haywood to the floor of the convention with the remark that he would "get his."

Haywood retorted by calling Barnes a name and striking him.

Samuel Gompers was re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor tonight over Max Hayes of the International Typographical Union. The vote was: Gompers 11,974, Hayes 5074.

It was the first time in ten years that there had been opposition to Mr. Gompers, who has been re-elected annually since 1895. All other officers were re-elected.

The convention defeated the United Mine Workers' resolution, calling for a referendum on the subject of the federation's membership.

Seattle was chosen as the 1913 meeting place.

In the election the only contest other than that for the presidency was over the third vice-president. James O'Connell, the incumbent, a member of the machinery union, defeated William H. Johnston, president of the International Brotherhood of Machinists, by 10,853 to 6175.

Threat Conveyed in Acceptance. President Gompers, in accepting reelection, held out a warning.

"If the American Federation of Labor makes any changes fundamentally in conflict with the principles for which I shall go along as a union man, but you will have to choose another president."

After the disturbance in the night session a resolution opposing the pensioning of ex-presidents of the United States, ex-college presidents, and ex-professors of political economy by private citizens, was unanimously adopted.

There was no evening recess and after the election of officers the time was devoted to the consideration of resolutions, which were referred to the executive council with power to act almost as fast as delegates could make the necessary reports.

Resolutions were adopted favoring woman suffrage and the freedom of the press.

The convention then adjourned.

DOCTORS ADVISE ACTION Stranger Conveys Smallpox to Friend in Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 24.—(Special.)—Smallpox has broken out in Vancouver. The first case was reported by a stranger who came to the city about two weeks ago suffering from it. He knew Ward Young, and going to his place of business, greeted him by shaking hands. Young, who is in bed with smallpox, two cases were taken out of the boarding-house at Tenth and Main streets; one from the Baltimore rooming-house, and there are several other cases throughout the city.

Most of the physicians of the city, when asked today, replied that they thought it was smallpox, a disease which should be quarantined, and that the state law makes it plain that the Health Officer, or Health Board, has this power, and no citizen is to be allowed to take any steps to assist them in stamping out the disease.
