

POOR AND RICH PAY TRIBUTE TO DAY

Generous Provision Made for Unfortunate and Happiness Made General.

WEATHER ADDS TO CHEER

Football Game, Theater Attractions and Motoring Provide Amusement for Thousands and Grills Scene of Gaity.

It was Thanksgiving in Portland yesterday sure enough. Generous provision by the more fortunate among the city's population for those less favored served to bring happiness and sunshine into the lives of even those whose daily lot contains more misery than gladness.

JUST BEFORE THE THANKSGIVING FEAST AT THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' AID SOCIETY, EAST TWENTY-NINTH AND IRVING.

THERE WERE NO KEENER APPETITES IN PORTLAND YESTERDAY THAN THESE.

But this was only as it should have been and as it usually is. In fact, so fixed has become the custom among the heads of penal and public institutions to provide their charges with bountiful repasts on this yearly occasion that humanity is detained were the scenes of joyous Thanksgiving meals.

Athletic Programme Varied. The hospitals, the homes for the aged, the benevolent institutions and the homes for destitute children in various parts of the city were scenes of Thanksgiving service equal to that furnished in many of the city's private homes.

Efficiency of gasoline in police work, a test of Chief Slover, was given a thorough test yesterday, through a flood of emergency calls received at the station and answered promptly by motorcycle men or officers in automobiles. Chief Slover's contention that self-propelled vehicles are the backbone of good police work, was successfully demonstrated.

POLICE WORK SPEEDILY

Efficiency of gasoline in police work, a test of Chief Slover, was given a thorough test yesterday, through a flood of emergency calls received at the station and answered promptly by motorcycle men or officers in automobiles.

In four minutes Patrolmen Bales and Coulter rode from the station to Russell and Delany streets, on report from residents that a man was annoying children in that vicinity. They found Patrolman Mallon holding George Day, who was looked at the station on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Small Boys Active. Besides the big game at Multnomah Field numerous minor football contests were staged in various parts of the city. These provided sport and pastime for the small boy.

Hotels were comparatively deserted. Unfortunate, indeed, was the man who had to pass the day at one of them unless he had family or friends with him. Towards evening the public dining-rooms and grill became alive with holiday pleasure-seekers.

Even the weather added to the cheer of the day. Although the early morning atmosphere was clouded and foggy, the sun came out before noon and by the time the pleasure-seeking crowds began to appear was doing a good business overhead. The autumn air was crisp, but not chilly.

Portland people generally are prosperous, as usual, this year, and this circumstance added to the numerous other causes for giving thanks.

HAPPY DAY PASSED

Orphans and Invalids Receive Additional Attention.

OLD AND YOUNG ARE GAY

Peace and Plenty Reign Everywhere and Consideration for the Unfortunate Adds to Happiness of Charitable.

For some Thanksgiving day now is a thing of the past. The eternal call of business drowns the voice of the happiness of yesterday. But it is not so in the case of the exceedingly young and the old, the memories are still with them. And nowhere more so than in the homes for the aged and the charitable institutions.

At a meeting of a few citizens of Sellwood at the Sellwood Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night Peter Hume, presiding as chairman of the committee, it was found that only about $400 had been subscribed toward the maintenance of that branch should it be reopened. Peter Hume read the proposed minutes that the management must start in regard to the re-opening of the Sellwood branch, showing that $800 must be subscribed and guaranteed, and it was also that the institution will be run without incurring more debts. If this is done the central organization will pay $200 on the debt of the branch and keep the interest on the debt paid up.

After a long conference it was decided to again appeal to the people of Sellwood for the balance of the money, about $600, to re-open and maintain the branch. The Women's Auxiliary is ready to assist, and last year raised nearly $400 toward expenses. A committee of five was authorized, to be composed of one member from the Central Y. M. C. A., three citizens of Sellwood and one member from the Sellwood Women's Auxiliary, to make a canvass of the suburb, to ascertain if the balance can be raised.

It is recalled that this is a critical period for the Sellwood branch. If the present effort to re-open that branch does not succeed it may mean that it will lose the branch. This committee will get to work as soon as possible and call on all business men of the suburb. Subscriptions will be with the provision that the whole amount required be raised and that the branch be re-opened.

Several instances of real charity occurred in this Thanksgiving day. Two tiny little mites, dressed all in white and the palest of pale blue, with muffs and little bonnets of a similar material, came with their great big father and their kind-looking mother to the children's ward of the Good Samaritan Hospital. In their arms were bags, and they had evidently been instructed to go up to some little sufferer and present their gifts.

But the first little person they saw was a dusky maid called Lella, and for a moment she hung back. Lella looked shy and the little girls gained courage. Shyly they held out their hands and murmured, "We've come to wish you a happy Thanksgiving, and we hope you'll soon be well." And with that they placed a huge bag of popcorn in Lella's hands. Two minutes later this dark-eyed maid had a terrible fit of the "chokes," all the popcorn had gone down the wrong way and for a moment there was consternation. Lella herself was the first to recover, and she knew what she'd done, for she remarked naively, "That's what comes of eating too fast."

Smartly Gowned Woman Nurse. Others came in a smartly dressed "frank lady" and sat in the ward for a long time. She talked to them all, she asked their troubles and she nursed them one by one, and when she went she had promised to come next Thanksgiving day.

Mothers came, of course, and sat by their children all the time, or took part in the games, for every child allowed to get up for this occasion, some in chairs, some able to run about. The night before this day of days all the girls of St. Helen's Hall, the almost grown-up young women, all the youngest girls in the school, all marched down, each bearing a basket of gifts. Fruit, grapes, oranges, bananas, figs, they cannot tell whether it's a bear or a hippopotamus, flowers, groceries, toys of all kinds, horses, boats, dolls—in fact they almost brought with them a whole store. Each took some little patient and gave to it her basket, and the wonder of it all in the unpacking, the air of play and happiness was so great that the children forgot their former desire to be at home, and finally decided that when mother and father came they'd be just happier where they were.

Everybody Enjoys Turkey. Of course the dinner was the main thing. It was the main thing everywhere yesterday. And everybody, who could eat at all, had turkey. Nothing so common as chicken or pig or anything like that. Turkey it must be, and turkey it was, thanks to the generosity of the people of Portland. Naturally when the word turkey is mentioned that includes cranberry sauce, and it almost goes without saying that pumpkin pie and fruit followed.

It was simply astonishing the way the old people forgot their dyspepsia or their neurasthenia. The hypochondriacs for once managed to forget the troubles that would accrue if they ate too much, while the tiny tots just ate and ate and hoped for the best, happily ignorant of all those horrible troubles that are the special privilege of the grown-ups.

Happiness Brought to Many. It was the same story everywhere. Children from some Sunday school or Christian Endeavor, young people from this church or from that, all devoted a portion of their time to visiting either the Baby Home or the homes for the old men and women. And right gladly were they welcomed. Old eyes, dim with age, glistened with the happiness
