Local Supply Is Falling.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Because there is just now in New York the keenest kind of competition among theatrical managers to secure really pretty girls for their productions — and perhaps, some of them say, because New York City itself has been pretty well combed over in the search in the past — a beauty contest only recently organized by a New York theatrical firm for the purpose of bringing out new "talent" was won by a New Jersey young woman, and all of the four other prize-winners were from places outside of New York.

CARNEGIE PRAISES BRYCE

Retiring Ambassador Referred to as "International Asset."

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Referring to James Bryce, retiring ambassador, as an international asset whose position towards both England and the United States "justified him in tendering a speech to both" Andrew Carnegie in a speech before the St. Andrew's Society of New York State, tonight urged widespread reading of Ambassador Bryce's writings on the South American republic.

"These revealed the vital fact that the celebrated Monroe doctrine has accomplished its mission," declared Mr. Carnegie. "With 60,000,000 of people, the South American republics proclaim themselves quite able to prevent European powers from acquiring territory upon their part of the hemisphere."

"This releases our republic from a serious responsibility," said Mr. Carnegie, "and should silence our belligerent advocates of increasing expenditure upon our naval and military forces, both of which are today more than ample to meet any possible foe."

Mr. Carnegie said there was universal regret because of Mr. Bryce's decision to retire.

"Such a man as he may be called to high public service again," he asserted.

Ambassador Bryce, following Mr. Carnegie, expressed his regret that he must soon leave the United States.

"But I'm not here tonight to take leave of you," he added. "It may be some time before I depart from these shores. Even now I don't believe I will be taking leave of the St. Andrew's Society."

BEAR PLAYS HIDE AND SEEK

After Crawling Down Hollow Tree Bruin Gnaws Himself to Death.

RAYMOND, Wash., Dec. 1.—(Special.)—Bert Gibson, of Willapa, had an exciting bear hunt this week which resolved itself into a game of hide and seek between Bruin and himself.

With a couple of good bear dogs Gibson succeeded in tracking a bear on a hollow cedar stub and into which Bruin crawled with just his head and forepaw protruding. Gibson wouldn't shoot for fear the bear would fall into the hollow tree and be lost.

Finally, however, he figured should be shot the paw of the bear it would enrage his quarry and he would come down, but instead the bear, on feeling the sting of the bullet on his paw, slipped into the tree and then Gibson discovered it was hollow to the ground.

He commenced digging with his knife into the thin shell and soon had a hole large enough through which he could poke the bear, which immediately began digging from the inside and finally had a hole of sufficient size to allow his head to get through, whereupon he was immediately killed.
