SALEM FIGHT OPENS

Plea of Abatement Filed in Spencer-Barnes Case.

HARRIMAN DEAL RECALLED

Publisher of Capital Newspaper Said to Have Acted as Late Railroad Wizard's Agent—Partner Sues for Profit.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 11.—(Special).—A plea of abatement has been filed in Circuit Court in the action brought by A. B. Spencer, of Los Angeles, against Legene S. Barnes, proprietor of the Daily Capital Journal.

The action was brought on a judgment for $11,635 given in the lower court in Los Angeles County, Cal., and transferred to the court here.

The plea of abatement recites that the case is still pending in California, that a motion has been made for a new trial and that so far the court has not given its decision on this point. Further statutory points as to the time when a trial is still considered pending in the California courts are also raised in the plea.

Property Sold to Harriman.

The judgment in this case was brought up from the California courts. According to the facts reported from California Spencer brought suit against Barnes for profits accruing from the sale of mining properties to E. H. Harriman.

In the decision of the court it was set forth that in 1907 Messrs. Spencer and Barnes formed a partnership and obtained options on the Dofflemeyer, Brown, Stephens and Parke Iron-mining claims in the Eagle Mountain district, Riverside County, Cal., under an agreement that they split any profit that they might realize from the sale of the options.

AID IS NEEDED FOR RIVER

People Must Give Money if Willamette Is to Be Improved.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 11.—(Special).—Practically giving warning that unless the people of the Willamette Valley cooperate with the Government in raising funds that he will make an unfavorable report on the project of a six-foot channel from Oregon City to Eugene, Major McIndoe, of the United States Army Engineers of Portland, laid the plans for the scheme before an open river conference at the Salem Board of Trade rooms today.

Present at the conference were interested men from Portland and many parts of the valley. A proposition for arousing enthusiasm in the plan and to place it on a concrete working basis was outlined. J. W. Morgan, of Corvallis, was made chairman of a general committee, and it is the idea to appoint a member of the committee from each Commercial Club and Board of Trade in the valley.

Major McIndoe said 29 dams and locks will be required between Oregon City and Eugene to bring about the successful six-foot channel that is needed. He showed that there is an average drop of five feet to the mile between Eugene and Corvallis, while the drop between that point and Oregon City is somewhat less.

Those present at the meeting included: W. G. Parrot, Newberg; M. J. Dorsey, A. C. Dixon, Eugene; W. A. Cusick, D. A. White, Salem; Major McIndoe, A. H. Devers, W. H. McPherson, Portland; J. S. Van Winkle, Albany; J. L. Hanna, Pearl Alexander, J. G. Mcintosh, E. Damory, Independence, and A. F. Hofer, secretary of the Salem Board of Trade.

Under the co-operative plan, as stated by Major McIndoe, it will be up to the people of the Willamette Valley to give as much as the Government toward the project. The money for the survey has already been allotted, said Major McIndoe.

APPLE EXCHANGE PLANNED

Hood River Shippers Favor Central Selling Point.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Dec. 11.—(Special).

All of Hood River's apple shipping concerns will be represented at the conference to be held in Spokane Monday to devise some plan for a Northwestern central selling agency. H. P. Davidson, president of the Davidson Fruit Company; C. H. Sproat, manager of the National Apple Company; M. M. Hill, president of the Hood River Apple & Storage Company, and Wilmer Sieg, general manager of the Apple Growers' Union, will participate in the discussions of the gathering.

Mr. Sieg and Mr. Davidson have voiced the opinion that such a selling agency will be of great value to all of the districts of the Northwest and think that some action will result from the gathering that will place the apple industry on a firmer basis.

Drainage Laws Discussed.

ALBANY, Or., Dec. 11.—(Special).—Laws to provide better systems of drainage in this state were discussed at a meeting of the Albany Commercial Club. M. A. Miller, of Lebanon, state Senator, and L. G. Lewelling, of Albany, and Frank H. Porter, of Halsey, Representatives from Linn County in the next Legislature, also attended the meeting upon the invitation of the club. After a general discussion a committee consisting of L. G. Lewelling, H. H. Hewitt, L. L. Swan and County Judge Duncan was named to draft a bill along the lines of drainage laws of Iowa, Illinois and Ohio.

Ice Forms at Woodland.

WOODLAND, Wash., Dec. 11.—(Special).—The first two days of steel for the new bridge have arrived and the material is on the river bank. There will be in all about 600 tons of steel, or about 20 carloads. Besides there will be about 170,000 feet of lumber. Mr. Adams, for the contractors is here, as is also Mr. Forak, inspector for the State Highway Commission, and both say that the work will go forward as expeditiously as possible.

Ice Forms at Woodland.

WOODLAND, Wash., Dec. 11.—(Special).—The last few days have been the coldest experienced in this section during the winter, ice being formed on all standing water and the ground being frozen to a depth of about two inches. The freeze will affect some potatoes that have not been dug. Most of the crop has been harvested.

REGISTRATION CARDS

The students now enrolled for the work of farmers' week not only come from Oregon, but from Texas, California, New York and Vermont.

POULTRY CLASSES POPULAR.

The poultry classes will hold their popularity and last night the big circus tent was crowded with students, who saw the moving-picture demonstration which has brought so much popularity to Professor Dryden's poultry lessons. One feature of the poultry demonstration was a ration worked out by the poultry husbandry department as especially adapted to high egg production.

This ration, which has been in use for a number of months at the college poultry farm, consists of 20 pounds of wheat, 10 pounds of bran, 10 pounds of oats, 5 pounds of middlings, 5 pounds of linseed meal, 5 pounds whole corn, 5 pounds ground corn, 5 pounds beet scraps, 2 pounds charcoal, 4 pounds grit and ground shells, 4 ounces of salt and 20 pounds of kale. This is sufficient quantity for one hen for one year and if she is of good laying stock she will, during the year, produce 200 eggs on this ration.

"If linseed meal or whole corn for any reason are difficult to obtain," said Professor Dryden in explaining the formula, "either or both may be omitted and good results still be obtained."

Practical Aid Promised.

To the students taking work in the farm mechanics department the lecture of Professor Powers on "Modern Farm Buildings" was particularly valuable. Not only did the professor show views of ideal farm buildings, but stated to those in attendance that the college will soon be in position to provide the farmers of Oregon with plans and specifications for the construction of such buildings. This promise of practical aid for the farmers who expect to
