

TOWN, CUT OFF BY SNOW, LACKS FOOD

Unless Railway Is Opened in Few Days Murray Inhabitants May Suffer.

COAL SUPPLY IS LOW

Residents Get No Fresh Meat for Two Days—O.-W. R. & N. Will Attempt to Clear Track by Means of Snowplow.

STORM CONDITIONS IN PACIFIC NORTHWEST.

ASTORIA—Barometer rises and colder weather is predicted.

PENDELTON—Five inches of snow falls in 18 hours; thermometer falls rapidly; crops benefited.

HOOD RIVER—Snow now 37 inches deep in valley; temperature falling.

SALEM—Snow melting.

ASHLAND—Temperature rising.

TRUBAY, IDAHO—Town isolated; suffering may result.

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—The town of Murray, 20 miles north of Wallace, Idaho, over mountains which have been made impassable by the record-breaking snows and numerous slides, is practically isolated today, and unless the O.-W. R. & N. gets into the town in the next few days, the residents are in danger of suffering.

Already the coal supply is low, and provisions are not too plentiful. For ten days now Murray citizens have had no mail, and for two days there has been without fresh meat. The railroad will make an effort today and tomorrow to open the road up to the town from the Couer d'Alene, which reaches the town. To accomplish this a snowplow pushed by three large locomotives will be dispatched to the scene.

DRIFT ICE FILLS COLUMBIA

Vancouver Has Foot of Snow and Sleighs Ring Temporarily.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—Drift ice, coming down from colder regions, has almost filled the Columbia River for the past 24 hours. It lodges against the big steel draw-bridge of the North Bank Railroad, and is backed up beyond the course of the ferry between Vancouver and the Oregon side. There was more than a foot of snow in the city, while in the country, farther back from the city, the snow was much deeper, being about two feet at Yaletol.

BRIDGE GOES OUT AT GREENS

Douglas County Fruitgrowers Say Snowfall Will Aid.

ROSEBURG, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—Although the recent storm raging throughout Douglas County abated late yesterday, trains are still operating on two to 18 hours late. Last night's trains from the south, which were due before midnight, did not arrive until noon today, and tonight's trains are reported several hours late. The chief trouble encountered by southbound trains, occurred between Oakland and Sutherlin, where 300 feet of track was under water. Several minor slides on the Hill also hindered in the operation of trains.

EUGENE IS FREE FROM SNOW

Fall in Mountains Reported to Be From 3 to 15 Feet Deep.

UMATILLA FARMERS REJOICE

Snow Melted by Chinook Wind and Crops Are Benefited.

PENDELTON, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—Approximately five inches of snow has fallen here within the last 18 hours. The thermometer tonight is dropping rapidly. Trains on the Washington division of the O.-W. R. & N. Company are from six to 14 hours late, owing to drifting between here and Weston, while all trains from the East are running several hours late. Trains in the mountains east of here, with danger of drifts from the break winds prevailing.

Snow at Springfield Light.

SPRINGFIELD, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—While the valley is practically free from snow, the small town in the mountains surrounding Springfield has experienced from 2 to 18 inches of snow during the past few days. At Blue River it was 18 inches deep today; at McKenzie Bridge, a little further up, it is about the same. At Oakridge, the towering snows of the Natron extension of the Southern Pacific, it is several inches deep, and the same at the stations along the Mohawk branch of the Southern Pacific. Willamette River was 12 feet above low water mark Saturday night, but it is gradually receding. The heavy rain of the night before melted a great deal of snow in the mountains.

MERCURY DROPS AT ASTORIA

East Wind Blows, Sun Shines and Barometer Rises.

ASTORIA, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—There was quite an improvement in the weather conditions here today. While the sky was cloudy a portion of the day, the sun shone brightly at times, no snow fell and some of the ice that had formed during the night was melted.

HOOD RIVER SNOW 37 INCHES

Temperature is Falling and Wind Is From East.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—Seven inches were added last night and this morning to the snow which had already reached a depth of 30 inches in the valley. Owners of flat-roofed buildings have shoveled off the heavy snow, and orchardists have been engaged in shoveling the snow from around young trees. No damage is feared from the snow.

Snow in Albany Melts.

ALBANY, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—After a large part of the snow which fell here Friday melted yesterday, a rising temperature and a strong wind from the south melted the snow in Albany. The temperature at Albany is about 35 degrees today, and the wind is from the south. The snow has melted in places where it was deep, but in some places it has melted only a few inches.

Ashland Finds It Warmer.

ASHLAND, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—A rising temperature and a strong wind from the south melted the snow in Ashland. The temperature at Ashland is about 35 degrees today, and the wind is from the south. The snow has melted in places where it was deep, but in some places it has melted only a few inches.

Hillsboro in Darkness.

HILLSBORO, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—Hillsboro was without lights and telephone service Friday night, due to the storm. Snow, which fell to the depth of eight inches, weighted the telephone wires so heavily that they broke and fell across the electric light lines, causing both systems to close. R. A. Withcombe, a young farmer, whose house burned two weeks ago, lost a valuable horse in a network of live wires. Another horse, belonging to A. L. Holcomb, was laid prostrate by a shock, but recovered sufficiently to be driven home.

Storm Interrupts Traffic.

QUINABY, Or., Jan. 19.—(Special.)—Snow fell here Friday and Saturday to a depth of eight inches. Rain followed and caused much of it to melt. No traffic is going over the roads, as they were in an almost impassable condition
