is no doubt in my mind that we are both innocent, and I intend to vindicate our family at the bar by facing a complaint which, although it has singled me out as defendant. Is intended for my twin. I'll be the scapegoat."

"Rev." Frank Horn, formerly the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Richmond, who is in the county jail here awainting trial on a charge of bigamy preferred by Mrs. Eva Mae de Tovrea, of San Francisco, made this melodramatic statement this morning when interviewed in his cell.

"Inasmuch as my name has already been blackened by the accusations which have been heaped upon me, I feel that I can suffer no further injustice by impersonating my twin brother in court and proving that we are both innocent of this infamous charge." he declared. "I have learned enough about this case to be convinced that there is no foundation to the complaint, and it might us well be settled once for all. I have no fear of the result."

Although Horn says that he and his twin brother looked so much allke that they used to trade seats and clothes in school and completely deceive their teachers, who were unable to tell them apart, he insisted that his brother could be identified by scars on his left cheek, left by the teeth of a dog when he was 12 years old.

At Open Meeting in Vancouver Much Stress Laid on Fact Interstate Project Over Columbia Is Not "Local" Issue at All.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Jan. 28.—(Special.)—History was made today in the progress of the proposed Pacific highway bridge, connecting Vancouver and Portland, Washington and Oregon, Portland. Washington and Oregon, when committees, appointed by the Legislatures of both states, came here to view the proposed site, and held a Joint meeting in the Elks' Home.

The committee from Olympia, comprising Senator Ralph D. Nichola, chairman of the Senate; Representative L. D. McArdie, chairman of the House; Senator E. L. French, of Vancouver; Senator D. O. Scott, of Ritaville, and Representatives H. E. Kennery, of King County; O. R. Angaard, of Clark County; E. E. Halsey, of Clarkson, and L. W. Field of Adma, passed through Vancouver early this morning, and was Joined by the committee, bent on a similar mission, from Salem, in Portland. Thirty automobile parties from Vancouver went to Portland, each ma-Vancouver went to Portland, each ma Vancouver went to Portland, each ma-chine carrying representative business and professional men. The committee from Salem was composed of Senator W. H. Hollis, of Forest Grove, and Rep-resentatives J. H. Noita, D. E. Lofgren, of Portland, and Representative Samuel Laughlin, of Yambili.

Ferry Makes Seven Autos Wnit. After the two committees had met for a short time at the Multnomah Hotel in Portland, the trip to Van-couver to view the proposed site was begun. All went well until the Co-lumbia River was reached, when it was found that the Vancouver ferry could accommodate but 22 autemobiles, some of these being small, seven machines being compelled to wait until the ferry could make another, and special, trip for them.

Both committees seemed to be deeply impressed with the urgent need of ly impressed with the urgent need of a bridge, when the ferry could not accommodate such a small party, in addition to the regular business and traffic. This is urged as an example of what happens often, when a few extra vehicles desire to cross the river at the same time. Esually they are compelled to wait until the ferry makes the next regular trip, without maxing any extra ones.

Arriving in Vancouver, the committees were shown the proposed site, where the bridge survey was made by Raiph Modjeski. A short trip around the city was made and the Washington committee visited the state schools for the deaf and blind.

Open Meeting is Held.

At 11 o'clock the joint committees, joined by more than 100 men from this city, went into session and open meeting in the large reception-room of the Eike' Home, and speeches were made by many concerning the bridge, why it is needed, what it will develop, the increase of property values in both states and the wonderful advantage it will be for tourists traveling up and down the Pacific Coast. Henry Crass, president of the Vancouver Commercial Club, presided and called on Frank B. Biley, secretary of the interstate bridge committee, who read the full report and specifications for the bridge compiled by Halph Modjeski. Points that needed explanation were interjected by Mr. Crass for the benefit of the committees.

The Show Window Beautiful

-Since the opening of our new store we have constantly striven toward a new ideal-window displays that are both instructive and beautiful.

Window decoration has made great advances during the last few years. It has become an art. The era of packed and conglomerated show windows is passed. The best merchants are not satisfied with merely displaying their wares-they wish their windows to be beautiful above all else.

-We not only aim to exhibit the newest and best merchandise and the latest caprices of fashion, but we wish to make our windows a joy to lovers of the beautiful and an education to the public at large.

-Our window displays now on view are the acme of the designer's art, and aptly portray the latest European fashions for the coming season.
