are still open to those who wish to discuss the question as to the most appropriate nickname for Oregon and the Harriman electric system, I would like briefly to state what I think upon the subject. If the name to be adopted is of any great importance I am in favor of adopting a name that actually signifies a continue to a scaling As for the adopting a name that actually signifies that which is a reality. As for the name "Webfoot" or "Beaver." I dissent to either. The word "Webfoot" as an appellation for Oregon was only in-tended as a burlesque; nevertheless it might have a tendency to be injurious-ly misleading. To adopt the name "Beaver" would also be misleading.
