One Advertisement SHERWOOD, Oregon, January 29, 1913. THE OREGONIAN,

Portland, Oregon.

Gentlemen: You will, no doubt, be interested to learn of my experience with a little half-inch advertisement which I ran in

The Oregonian-one time only-last Monday. I have a small farm and advertised eggs and vegetables for sale, to be delivered by parcel post to regular monthly customers.

The advertisement was so small and, was placed in such an inconspicuous position that I did not even locate it myself, and did not know it had appeared until replies began to come in.

To date I have received 37 replies, all from a good class of people. I believe that other people owning suburban places and having even a small quantity of farm produce for
