

OREGON CITIES TO HAVE MAUSOLEUMS

Portland Structure Will Be Known as Riverview Abbey, Is Announced.

COST OF CRYPTS IS SMALL

Company Promoting Construction of Buildings in Nine Towns of State and Work on Them Will Be Hastened.

Riverview Abbey is the name which has been chosen for a mausoleum to be erected in Portland early this summer on lines which embrace all that is best in the mausoleum of the ancients. A company of Portland men has obtained from the International Mausoleum Company the patent rights, and will construct a handsome and lasting building, to be completed by next winter.

The men who have combined to form the company have done so, not as much with the idea of making profits from it as because of their belief that it is the most tender and respectful, and above all the most honorable way for the private citizen and for the whole community, for in this way are carried out the ideas of W. E. Gladstone, England's foremost statesman, when he said: "Show me the manner in which a nation or a community cares for its dead and I will measure the tender sympathies of its people, their respect for the law of the land and their loyalty to high ideals."

Plan is Discussed. In this connection Senator L. L. H. Austin, of Ohio, who is connected with the Portland company, has an office in the Spaulding building, yesterday said:

"How best to dispose of the dead is a question that has long been under consideration. There is the practice of burying human bodies in the ground, coupled with the certain knowledge of their fate and the danger to the living in the insanitary character of this practice.

"Cremation offers a solution of the problem of sanitary disposal of the dead; but it is difficult for people to bring themselves to regard with favor this method of reducing to their original element the forms of those held dear.

"The 'better way,' as we call it, makes it very much easier for us to lay away our loved ones. It is a plan whereby a number of families co-operate in erecting an imposing mausoleum containing sealed compartments, equipped with sanitary devices, which tend to preserve the body instead of destroying it. The compartment mausoleum marks the highest development of present-day burial customs. It is a worthy monument to an age of advanced invention and enlightenment. Community mausoleums bring within the reach of the average man the finest interment possible. Crypt owners are afforded the satisfaction of knowing that in future years their last resting place will stand secure as the monuments of the ancients.

New-Old Way Devised. "To those who have undergone the distressing experience of having the final ceremonies conducted with unseemly haste under circumstances both disagreeable and dismal, the thought has invariably arisen: 'Why has not some one devised a means of doing away with this horrible practice?' Such a way has been devised, and the question answered. No matter how inclement the weather, or disagreeable the conditions without, the entrance halls of our mausoleums feature commodious chapels, dry and well-lighted, in which the last rites over the bodies of friends or relatives are conducted without hurry, amid comfortable surroundings.

In June, 1907, the United States Government issued to W. L. Hood patents for a sanitary crypt and community mausoleum. His methods afford protection to the health of the living and are unsurpassed in disposing of the dead. The principal disinfecting and deodorizing agents used are formaldehyde and quick lime—the most searching and effective known to science. These are contained in central tanks connected with each crypt by pipes, and by means of these patented devices the general sanitary condition of the mausoleum is as perfect as that of a residence.

Crypts to Be Sold. The Portland Mausoleum Company owns these patents for the State of Oregon and plans to construct mausoleums and sell crypts in every community throughout the state. It is also a part of the plan to build private mausoleums of attractive design, embodying the same sanitary features of construction.

The foundations and superstructures are of reinforced concrete, faced on the outside with stone or porcelain-faced brick. The crypts are built in tiers, are uniform in size and are separated by four-inch seamless walls of reinforced concrete. The interior of the building is finished in white marble and underneath each row of crypts is a marble ledge, six inches wide, suitable for floral tributes. The entrance hall is designed to serve as a chapel for funeral services.

Although in existence only five years, 150 mausoleums have been built, while as many more are now under course of construction.

A site for the Portland Mausoleum has been obtained at Greenwood, adjacent to and overlooking the Riverview Cemetery, yet far enough back to avoid any risk of landslide. It will contain between 1000 and 1500 tombs, some separate ones, others compartments for a family, varying in number from 4 to 12, built off from the main corridor and equal to a private mausoleum.

In ancient times the cost of such a mode of interment prohibited all but the most wealthy, but when tombs can be obtained at a total cost of from $200 to $250, prices very much lower than in Chicago, there is provided a means of preserving the family name for ages, just as many of the ancient Roman and Egyptian names have been preserved solely through the inscriptions on the tombs.

Nine sites have been obtained in cities of Oregon, including Salem, Eugene and Medford, and plans are formed for the speedy erection of mausoleums at these cities. Many prominent citizens have taken tombs already and the company has planned to take care, at a very small cost, of bodies, until the mausoleums are completed.

RIVERVIEW ABBEY.

It is probable that several dry farming districts of the state will make individual displays, and an effort now is being made by the interested railroad companies to make a state display. At the congresses of the last three years Tillman Ruetter, the dry farming wizard of Madras, carried off all the honors. His success has proved that his banner dry farming state in the Union and has encouraged others to engage in the work. Many farmers who expect to make exhibits at Oklahoma City will prepare their crops this Spring with that object in view.

MAN OF EUGENE MISSING

Governor West Requests Search Be Made for Joseph Endlicher.

District Attorney Evans has received a letter from Governor West asking him to assist in the search for Joseph Endlicher, of Eugene, who left that city for Austria August 12 last, and who has not been heard of since. Through his ticket he has been traced through Portland to Huntington, Or. The missing man is described as follows: Age, 40; height, 5 feet 10 inches; slender, black hair slightly tinged with gray, large dark-brown eyes, black mustache pointed in Hungarian cavalry style, dark suit, black hat, new shoes, speaks Austrian-German dialect and broken English.

INDIAN GOES ON WARPATH

Hiram Moore, Intoxicated, Starts Out to Kill Witnesses in Suit.

It became necessary Wednesday for United States Marshal Scott to confine Hiram Moore, a Klamath Indian, in jail in order that he would be sober enough today to appear for trial in the United States District Court on an indictment for assault with a dangerous weapon. Moore had been released on $500 bonds to await trial, and arrived in Portland Tuesday night immediately beginning to absorb firewater.

HEN LANDS PAIR IN JAIL

Woodlawn Men Assault Supposed Owner of Trespassing Chicken.

For their conduct in a fight which started over the trespassing of a chicken, A. W. and G. W. Bender, young men living in Woodlawn, were held in answer to the grand jury in Justice Court. The complaint was made by J. C. Wiley, a clerk of the Justice Court, who wears a badly bruised eye as a reminder of the encounter. Wiley had given a hen from his prize flock to one of his neighbors, and it strayed to the premises of the Benders. They pursued it and when it flew directly to the Wiley home, their ire was turned upon him and it is charged that they attacked him at the door of his own house.
