

PORTLAND'S LOSS SAYS FARRELL

Harriman System's 'Unmerging' Takes No Prestige From City, He Declares.

O.-W. R. & N. OFFICES STAY

President of Road Confirms Early Unofficial Announcements and Says Head Offices of Steamship Company to Come Here.

Portland will lose none of its prestige as a railroad center as a result of the recent dissolution of the Harriman system, declares Mr. Farrell, president of the O.-W. R. & N. Co., upon his return yesterday from New York, where he attended an eight-weeks conference of officials of the roads affected by the Supreme Court's decision.

The general offices of the O.-W. R. & N. Co., will be retained here in their entirety, and they will be managed by the Portland & San Francisco Steamship Company's general offices, which will be moved here from San Francisco.

Official announcement also was made by Mr. Farrell that the various plans for operation of the local rail and steamship lines will be announced as unofficially announced in his absence.

These plans are the result of the dissolution of the Southern Pacific Railroad from the Union Pacific, of which the O.-W. R. & N. Co. is a subsidiary. They have been outlined, from time to time, in reports sent from New York.

Early Announcements Correct. "Everything that we did affecting the territory in the Northwest," Mr. Farrell, "has been printed in the newspapers, so there is little left for me to say."

On January 1 the O.-W. R. & N. Co. took over the Oregon Eastern Railroad, which is building the line from Vale, a connection with the Oregon Short Line, westward to Dog Mountain. This was announced in the papers at the time, also that when the present contract for building to Dog Mountain is completed, it will connect with our Deschutes Valley line.

The fact that the office of the Portland and San Francisco Steamship Company is to be moved from San Francisco to Portland also has been reported and our plans in that connection are virtually as they have been outlined.

Portland Loses Nothing. "While we arranged several weeks ago to have Frank W. Robinson come to Portland as assistant traffic manager of our company, he will not get here until this week. Mr. Robinson probably will arrive on Thursday. We announced his appointment at New York at the time that it was made. This is the only change in the local organization that will result from the dissolution.

Mr. Farrell has been elected president of the Portland & San Francisco Steamship Company and will have an active part in the management of its affairs. A complete organization for both the operation and traffic departments of the line will be built up.

"Portland will not lose any of its prestige as a result of the dissolution of the Harriman system," Mr. Farrell said. "There is no intention of moving any of them," he declared.

Mr. Farrell reported that business conditions in the East are particularly encouraging. Business men have no apprehension whatever, he said, of the effect that the incoming Administration will have upon industrial affairs.

DIAZ, SR., NEEDED, HE SAYS

J. H. McClymonds, Portland, Thinks Madero Can't Bring About Peace.

That peace will never again prevail within the borders of Mexico until after Porfirio Diaz occupies the executive mansion or the United States intervenes and establishes a stable government by force of arms, is the opinion of another Portlander who passed 18 years in the Southern portion of Mexico.

J. H. McClymonds, now identified with the construction of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern Railway through the Willamette Valley, denounces the large portion of the Diaz cabinet as brigands and robbers, declares that their leaders in most part are only a grade higher in the social scale, that Madero is a dreamer who cannot exercise the hand of iron in government affairs, and that the better classes of Mexicans would welcome intervention.

"The conditions now prevailing in Mexico are almost identical with those which existed prior to the Porfirio Diaz administration," said Mr. McClymonds. "From Cortes to Diaz there was fighting all the time and the brigands were constantly ravishing the country. Diaz stood them against the execution wall in such numbers that he placed the fear of the law in their hearts and he was able to rule the country."

MANY TOURISTS EXPECTED

California Exodus Predicted to Increase Portland Visitors.

George W. Hibbard, general passenger agent of the Puget Sound lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, visited in Portland yesterday on his return to his home in Seattle from California, where he had passed several weeks. He predicts a heavy movement of tourists through the Northwest from California within the next few months.

Mr. Hibbard is giving earnest support to the plan recently suggested by A. D. Charlton, assistant general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific, to establish in the East a bureau with the object of having people who are contemplating a visit to the World's Fair in 1915 travel through the Northwest. He thinks the states should cooperate with the railroads in providing the expense for such a bureau.

GEMETERY TALKS GIVEN

PROPHECY MADE THAT LONE FIR WILL BE PARK.

Howard E. Weed, Landscape Architect, Declares That Removal of Bodies Is Not Practicable.

"Lone Fir Cemetery is sure to be made a park; it may be in five or six years, but it is certain. Removal of the 33,000 bodies buried there is impossible, impracticable and undesirable," said Howard E. Weed in his talk yesterday at the luncheon of the East Side Business men's Club. The subject for consideration was, "What shall be done with Lone Fir Cemetery?" Mr. Weed and G. B. Datson were the speakers. Mr. Datson represented the Sunnyside Improvement Club. He gave a short history of Lone Fir Cemetery from the time it was founded in 1850 to the present.

"The Lone Fir Lotowners' Association undertook to raise funds with which to improve the cemetery," said Mr. Datson, "but out of 1800 letters sent out only 200 answers were received, and about $45000 collected. There are 33,000 bodies in the cemetery, and 5000 interested owners only can be found. The enabling act in the Legislature to grade the cemetery is now pending in the Legislature. Rev. Father McDevitt has a plan for disposing of St. Mary's Cemetery. Both Lone Fir and St. Mary's Cemeteries are owned by the same person. There should be no more burials in Lone Fir. There are 20 acres and about 1100 bodies to the acre. We have talked with many of the owners and they too, want something done. Our general plan is to collect the bodies in one place in a large tomb or in any other form they may be desired, and make a park of the remainder."

Mr. Datson read the enabling act now pending in the Legislature. He read the landscape artist, who has written a book on cemeteries and disposal of bodies spoke briefly.

"I hardly think you know what you are negotiating in this movement, or the difficulties you have to encounter," said Mr. Weed. "It was at my suggestion that the movement to beautify Lone Fir Cemetery was started. I said that $10,000 would do the work, but the money could not all be raised and my plans could not be carried out. I am sure that you are practical in dealing with Lone Fir and St. Mary's cemeteries. I want to say that the removal of the 33,000 bodies from Lone Fir Cemetery is impossible or undesirable, but it will become a park anyway. Dust has returned to dust. Only a few bodies remain after the lapse of five years and nothing after 10 or 15 years. According to my experience it will be five or even ten years before you can acquire the bodies. Lone Fir Cemetery will become a park in the course of time, and there is no reason why it should not. Further burials should not be permitted."

Mr. Weed showed pictures of cemeteries that had been made beautiful and park-like from his book on the subject. It was announced that the next meeting of the East Portland Library, East Eleventh and East Alder streets, tonight for discussion of the Lone Fir and St. Mary's Cemetery question. Rev. Father McDevitt, L. H. Austin, W. C. Bristol, Rev. J. J. Staub, L. M. Lepper and J. A. Strawbridge are to be the speakers.

QUACK'S DIAGNOSIS IS FULL

Patrolman Russell, Seeking Evidence, Finds Condition Alarming.

Walking into a quack doctor's office on North Sixth street the picture of a wrecked man, Patrolman Russell emerged in a few moments a decrepit wreck, according to the diagnosis which, he testified yesterday, the quack gave him of his condition. Russell was seeking evidence against the place, which the police suspect of violating the laws. It took the practitioner only a moment to determine that he was suffering from four different diseases which to cure completely would require the expenditure of $40, payable at the rate of $1 a week.

"Russell went back for a second interview, but thinks that his identity became suspected in the meantime, for the quack set out and denounced a stoopie and other things even more offensive. He arrested R. M. Carrigan for using abusive language and Carrigan fined $10 in Municipal Court yesterday.

E. S. J. McAllister on Trial.

Taking of testimony in the case of the state against E. S. J. McAllister, arrested during the recent vice crusade, was commenced before a jury in Circuit Judge Kavanaugh's court yesterday. The Judge overruled an objection on the part of the defense to the introduction of evidence on the ground that the statutes of Oregon do not cover the particular offense charged. Judge Kavanaugh's ruling was similar to that of Judge Gustenling in the Dr. Harry A. Stuart case. Roy Kadel was the principal witness for the prosecution yesterday. He is under indictment on a similar charge.

DR. LANE LEAVES TODAY

Senator-elect Declares That, With His Family, He Will Visit Oregon at Every Opportunity.

A bulky package, weighing nearly 50 pounds, will be sent by express to Washington, D. C., today, addressed to Dr. Harry Lane, and bearing the instructions, "Hold until called for." It contains a number of books, but nearly all of its size and a large share of its weight are due to the fact that it contains all the applications for appointments that have been received by Dr. Lane since he was elected United States Senator last November. That is, all except those that came in after the package was closed yesterday.

Dr. Lane has taken no action whatever on any of the applications and probably will confer with Senator Chamberlain before doing so. Dr. Lane, accompanied by his family, will leave for Washington tonight.

"If I had been elected to two United States Senatorships," said Dr. Lane yesterday, "there would be nothing for me to do but to go to the postoffice. Not that I spent much in the campaign work, but it has taken me all my time for nearly a year. In the meantime I have abandoned my practice or it has abandoned me. I have nothing left but a few books and my office furniture."

Dr. Lane has made no arrangements for a residence in Washington, but expects to take apartments. With his
