

H. BECKWITH WILL SUCCEED FARGO

Portland General Agent Resigns After 34 Years in Express Service.

LONG REST WILL BE TAKEN

Well-Known Portland Resident is to Remain in City, He Says, and Later May Enter Other Line of Endeavor.

Harvey Beckwith, general agent for Wells-Fargo & Company, express, has resigned, effective at the convenience of his superior office. It is probable that his successor will be appointed and placed in charge of the Portland office within 30 days.

Beginning his career as a driver for the American Express Company in his home state of Idaho, he came to Portland 30 years ago as a messenger. He was promoted through various positions, such as agent, route agent and others of minor importance until he became general agent in Portland. About 14 years ago he was transferred to San Francisco, but after a service there of four years he came back to Portland.

For the last 19 years, he has been general agent here. Under his administration, the Wells-Fargo building at Sixth and Oak streets was erected. Since its completion, he has had charge of the property in addition to his duties as head of the Portland office and territory around Portland.

Besides his activity in this capacity he has taken an important interest in the civic duties incident with the growth and development of the city. For two years he was a member of the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce and for two years president of the Commercial Club. By appointment of the Governor he served also as chairman of the Naval Militia Board and still is a member of the Chamber. He is prominent as a Mason, a Shriner and in various other organizations.

"In leaving the express service," said Mr. Beckwith last night, "I do not intend to leave Portland. I have considerable sentiment about severing my connection with the pioneer route of the West, with which I have been connected for so long, but I want to take a long rest, which, I believe, after 34 years, and after that I may enter some other line of work."

Patrons of Company Thanked. "I am extremely grateful to the people of Portland for their patronage of the Wells-Fargo under my direction and commend the patrons of the company to my successor, whom I hope they will continue to favor with their patronage."

C. Cain, special agent for the company, who was in Portland yesterday, expressed extreme regret when he learned of Mr. Beckwith's resignation. "I only hope he will withdraw it before it is acted upon," was Mr. Cain's comment.

OLYMPIA LAWMAKERS QUIET

The veto of the Governor of an appropriation of $50,000 for a bridge over the Fend O'Reille River at Newport was sustained yesterday after the Vancouver veto was laid by the Legislature. One of the last official acts of the session was the final concurrence to amendments in the logged off lands bill which was prepared by joint committees on logged off lands embracing the fundamental features of a number of other logged off land bills introduced. Representatives from various sections.

The bill which probably will be signed by the Governor provides for the formation of a new county consisting of a county as a whole or a part of clear land or to bring it under irrigation. The bill provides commissioners shall be appointed to serve as a managing board. The districts are authorized to issue bonds when empowered so to do by vote of the Legislature.

Purchase Rights Given. It is provided that state, county municipal or other public funds and the permanent school fund may be invested in the bonds of the district. The acquisition by the district of lands and property by purchase or otherwise. The districts can purchase the lands of settlers, giving them the right of preemption and right of clearing at a price not greater than the cost of acquisition and improvement plus 5 per cent and annual payments at 4 per cent interest.

Legislative Reapportionment. The question which dominated the Legislature in 1911, was decided in the head by the Senate. A bill was passed which attempted to put through a reapportionment bill, fathered by Senator Jackson, of King County, failed. The new county delegation standing as a unit revolted against the measure and cast it into oblivion to remain until resurrected either by the people under the initiative or by the Legislature of 1913. Game legislation, which has been a perplexing question during the session, was all straightened out, and a compromise bill put through both houses and passed.

The bill as sent to the Governor provides that the Governor shall appoint two chief state game warden, one from Eastern Washington and one from Western Washington, each to be paid $1800 a year.

Training School Veto Stands. The Senate voted to sustain the veto of Governor Liston of an appropriation of $20,000 to establish a state training school at Everett.

The veto was sustained by an even vote of 21 to 21. Twenty-eight votes were necessary to carry the bill over the Governor's head.

Practically all the rest of the day's session was taken up in getting bills already passed straightened up to be sent to the Governor.

In the face of charges that the session has not been a great success a list of the important bills passed by both houses was produced and read. Among other bills which were passed and many of which have been signed by the Governor are the following:

A women minimum wage bill, creating a state minimum wage for women in various sections and to fix a minimum wage for women and minors by districts; prohibiting the publication of false or misleading advertisements; creating a state department for the sealing of weight and measure permitting child labor, child support for the benefit of farmers; creating a state department of agriculture to administer the agricultural, horticultural and livestock laws of the state and taking over the duties of seven of the present state departments; setting aside the waters of the Wenatchee watershed for use in a reclamation project; increasing the state highway fund from $200,000 to $1,500,000 this year and $1,000,000 each year thereafter; an appropriation of $200,000 for the rebuilding of the State Normal School at Cheney; creating a state department of farm development; repealing the anti-trading law; legalizing co-operative associations; applying the principle of the real estate examination law to this state; providing for the employment of non-supporters and family dependents in a number of state departments; an appropriation of $200,000 for the purchase of the bridge over the Snake River between Lewiston and Clarkston; referring to the voters the question of a teachers' pension system; an appropriation of $50,000 to finance a state publicity campaign; abolishing the position of secretary of the State Capitol grounds lands for $4,000,000, and others.

Total appropriations for the session amount to about $20,000,000. The session closed at 10:30 o'clock.

Sam Hill, builder of good roads, was declared last night to be the man of all men in Oregon, who is doing the greatest work in opening to the world the resources of the commonwealth.

A large number of the leading business and professional men of the city gave him a banquet at the Hotel Oregon, which was a most brilliant occasion. Many tributes were paid the guest of honor by Theodore B. Wilcox, Charles W. Fulton, Frederick W. Holman, Frank Terrace, Richard W. Montague and Dr. Kenneth A. J. Mackenzie. C. S. Jackson presided as toastmaster.

A loving cup was presented to him by his friends.

An elaborate dinner was served, after which the toastmaster introduced Mr. Wilcox. The latter declared that Sam Hill is truly a great man, in that he has done and is doing a great work in the way of building and assisting to build good roads. He said a man should have the same amount of unselfish in his efforts to get good roads in Oregon, and should now have the credit for it.

Mr. Fulton declared that "Sam Hill is doing the greatest work of any man in Oregon, in opening up the country to the public so the people can see the beauties of the state, which truly are marvelous."

Frederick W. Holman followed, paying Mr. Hill great credit for what he has done to build up the state in the line of roads. Mr. Hill is entirely unselfish in his work. He pointed out the fact that Mr. Hill had put nothing in for himself, and that no one has to pay him royalty on them.

SEASIDE, Or., March 13.—(Special.)—There is a movement here, headed by Mayor Gilbert and City Recorder Berry, to get Spring cleaning immediately. Notices have been printed warning property-owners to clean their yards and sidewalks. The sidewalks are put in repair. To all the property-owners living at Seaside, as well as those living outside the city, notices have been sent, notifying them that clean-up time has arrived and that, unless they have the work done themselves, the city will take action.

Since the city citizens have been busy rebuilding the city, and wreckage from the fire has littered the back streets. In the residence portion of the town evidence of last winter's storms are still seen.

A woman's club will be organized and will take up the subject of naming a cleaning day.

PROPERTY HOLDERS DECIDE TO OPPOSE STREET CHANGES WHICH ARE URGED

Committee Appointed to Hold Conference in Near Future With Greater Portland Plans Association Members.

Thirty-eight members of the Burnside Property Owners' Association met in offices in the Yeon building last night and decided on a programme of vigorous opposition to the plan to widen Burnside street at this time in accordance with the Greater Portland plans.

Especially were the property-owners opposed to the plan proposed by Mayor Reinhart before the meeting of the Greater Portland Plans Association last week, which was that a resolution should be passed by the Council prohibiting the granting of building licenses on Burnside street and nearer to the line of the present street than the street line as proposed by the Greater Portland plans.

"The time is not ready for such action," said Gus C. Moser, a member of the Burnside Property Owners' Association, last night. "No proceedings have been instituted to widen the street. Nothing has been done, except the agitation of the question by the Greater Portland Plans Association. The people refused to vote bonds for the purpose of prosecuting these plans at the November special election, and yet it is proposed to tie up our property owners by either building or not grant licenses except at a great loss. The plan proposed would confiscate a portion of our property for an indefinite period without giving us any compensation."

The following committee was appointed to have an early meeting with the Greater Portland Plans Association, with the Mayor and the Council, and such committees of the Council as may be called on to consider the matter: Isaac Swett, chairman; Dr. Andrew C. Hill, D. W. Wadsworth, Gus C. Moser, A. King Wilson, Paul Wessinger, E. C. Jorgensen, E. Henry Wemme, S. A. Arata, J. F. Sinnott.

AGITATION SAID TO HURT

Committee Appointed to Hold Conference in Near Future With Greater Portland Plans Association Members.

Thirty-eight members of the Burnside Property Owners' Association met in offices in the Yeon building last night and decided on a programme of vigorous opposition to the plan to widen Burnside street at this time in accordance with the Greater Portland plans.

Especially were the property-owners opposed to the plan proposed by Mayor Reinhart before the meeting of the Greater Portland Plans Association last week, which was that a resolution should be passed by the Council prohibiting the granting of building licenses on Burnside street and nearer to the line of the present street than the street line as proposed by the Greater Portland plans.

"The time is not ready for such action," said Gus C. Moser, a member of the Burnside Property Owners' Association, last night. "No proceedings have been instituted to widen the street. Nothing has been done, except the agitation of the question by the Greater Portland Plans Association. The people refused to vote bonds for
