McCredie Sees Need for More Pinch Hitting and Hints at Impending Changes.

-Noticeably perturbed by the six defeats last week and grimly intimating a few likely changes in his lineup as a reault thereof, Manager McCredie, of the Portland Coast League club, departed this afternoon for the new training base at Stockton.

Captain Redgers will follow in the morning with the main squad of Beavers, and no further inroads on the Visalia postcard supply will be made until next Spring. The Beavers will remain at Stockton for ten days, departing for San Francisco on the eve of the league opening April 1.

the league opening April 1.

"Those three weeks in Visalia, capped off by the hard seven-game practice series, have given me a fairly good line on my men," said McCredie. "This Spring I will not have to wait until spring I will not have to wait and after the opening to do my necessary experimenting."
"What particular weaknesses have been disclosed by the recent defeats?"
Mac was asked.

Well," came the reply, "in the main I am satisfied, for I fully expected to get badly walloped by the negroes, and we are not supposed to shade the Chicago Americans, but, for one thing, I believe I need more pinch-hitting strength on my club. I had intended using my three veterans in the outfield opening week, but if young Fitzgerald's arm continues to improve as it has the past few workouts I intend to insert him in right field in Doane's place and let him take Doane's second niche in the batting list. Fitzgerald is one of the greatest pinch hitters in the league and is a better sacrificer than Doane. This, together with his great base-running, will, I believe, more than offset Doane's superior fielding and throwing—at least in the short right field in San Francisco, where we open. Fitzgerald May Oust Donne.

"As for Bill Lindsay, I am immensely pleased with his showing, as it was my intention a week ago to send Bill to the Narthwestern League, for I couldn't see how he was to do me any good, reporting two or three weeks late, but he is in great shape, and if he looks right in the practice games at Stockton, Fil have him in at third base."

Kores Dangerous Batter.

Some say Kores does not measure to AA demands. Perhaps not, but in the epinion of the writer he will do. Thus far his pegging to bases has been ZZ. But he appears to have a good wing in practice, and it seems reasonable to expect him to throw more accurately when he becomes accustomed to his new surroundings. He is a dangerous hitter. McCormick reminds one greatly of Tormmy Sheehan, except that he is howlegged and a trifle stockler. If the Beavers had had him at the start last year they would have finished a furlance of the start has t

Portland's infield cannot be worse than last year's, and, according to the dope, it ought to be a lot better, in spite of the wobbly work of the past week. As for the pitchers, two or three of the tribe have not burned up the bush, but four men will keep any club in the running, and James, Higgin-botham, Krapp and Hagerman have al-already shown themselves primed for the fray. "Are you disappointed in McCormick?" was asked.

"No," retoried McCredie. "McCormick is a good ballplayer, but there's nobody who can keep Lindsay off the team it his physical condition is good. He and Fitzgerald are the most formidable batsmen I have with men on bases."

The Portland manager's scurry after more bat strength is directly traceable to the mediocre aftek work in the series jist disposed of. Mike McCormick at third fielded well, but batted only 168 in the seven games. Doane hit 190.

The California youngsters were the real stars, although the averages cover only portions of the series. Fitzgerald in two games hatted 400, Cunningham in two games 500 and Hellmann in six games 410. Other batting averages were: Kruesger, 218; Chadbourne 220.

Manager McCredie has advised him to get all the practice possible in the gardens to fit himself for duty there when his arm eventually goes back on him. Bill Redgers attributes his recent lines to the shaving of the hirsute ornament from his chin.
