

PRISONER FLAUNTS SUFFRAGE COLORS

Miss Hocken Smiles With Contentment as Deeds of Violence Are Charged.

TRIAL FOR ARSON BEGUN

Great Exhibit of "Weapons," Taken From Militant Headquarters in London, Is Offered by British Prosecutor.

LONDON, March 20.—Miss Olive Hocken, the militant suffragette, who is charged with firing the pavilion of the Roehampton Golf Club, was put on trial today.

Miss Hocken appeared to glory in the notoriety she was achieving. She stood in the prisoner's enclosure wearing a bright sash in the suffragette colors and smiled contentedly as the government lawyer detailed her activities in the field of arson and in the destruction of mail.

"Weapons" Are Exhibited. A large assortment of suffragette "weapons" was introduced as exhibits against Miss Hocken. Some of these were found in the militant suffragette "arsenal" in London on March 11.

Others were taken from a grip sack alleged to have been dropped by Miss Hocken in her flight from the golf links. The list of exhibits included telegraph wire cutting apparatus, bottles of acids and corrosive fluid, hammers, flints, tools for forcing windows, false identification plates for automobiles, ropes, cotton wool, fire lighters, candles, paraffine, a suit of workmen's overalls and a set of pole climbers.

Miss Pankhurst Advises Outrages. "These women have now sunk to climbing telegraph poles," said the government counsel dryly, as he called attention to the leg irons.

Among Miss Hocken's correspondence, the government found a letter from Miss Pankhurst, "openly inciting her followers to acts of lawlessness and outrage."

At the conclusion of the opening address, the magistrate adjourned the case for a week.

$100,000 Fire Damage Done.

Two "arson squads" of militant suffragettes succeeded in destroying $100,000 worth of property early today. One squad burned down the country residence of Lady Amy White, at Englefield Green, near the Thames. The other squad fired the buildings of the golf club at Weston-Super-Mare, a fashionable summer watering place in Somersetshire.

Lady White is the widow of Field Marshal Sir George White, the hero of Ladysmith in the Transvaal War. The flames were discovered at 1 o'clock this morning and at that time had such a start that the efforts of the local fire brigade were hopeless.

Traces of oils and inflammable materials were found scattered about the house, while around the grounds were papers inscribed "Stop torturing our comrades in prison," "Votes for Women."

Two women on bicycles were seen in the neighborhood half an hour before the fire was discovered. The house was unoccupied.

POSTMASTERS QUIT JOBS

Two Thousand Resign Rather Than Accept Civil Service.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Because of the extension of the classified civil service to include fourth-class postmasters and the announcement that postmasters of that class would be selected to competitive examination, the Postoffice Department is receiving nearly 20 resignations a day. Officials declare that about 2000 fourth-class postmasters have resigned since the executive order carrying them into the civil service was issued.

Practically all of the resignations are in postoffice where the postmaster's salary is merely nominal and where at times the expense of conducting the office equals the postmaster's compensation. In many of the cases it will be exceedingly difficult to secure applicants who will take the prescribed examinations.

While the department is endeavoring to secure new postmasters, the incumbent will be forced to discharge the duties of the office.

COUPLE'S LIFE TROUBLED

Admiral Had Met Financial Misfortune, Although Once Rich.

(Continued from First Page.) stomach. The formal report of Professor Whitney has not been made, and the arrest was ordered upon a verbal communication to the District Attorney.

For ten days the authorities have known that the admiral died of arsenical poisoning, and their efforts have been directed to finding where and by whom the poison was obtained and to laying bare the home life of the Eaton family.

Home Life Troubled. In the first quest they have not been successful, the District Attorney says. Along the second line of inquiry a wealth of evidence has been furnished by friends of the family and neighbors.

The admiral and his wife, who was 20 years his junior, did not always agree, it is said, regarding those who should be received at their home.

Both had been married before. The admiral's first wife was Mary Anne Varum, whom he married at Dracut in 1871, when he was a lieutenant in the Navy. His body was buried beside that of his first wife. From his graduation at Annapolis until his retirement with the rank of rear admiral, in 1905, the life of the naval officer was filled with honors, and he acquired a fortune.

Soon after his retirement he met Mrs. Jennie May Ainsworth, the daughter of George Harrison, of Alexandria, Va. Mrs. Ainsworth later divorced her husband, D. H. Ainsworth, an employe of the Senate at Washington, and she and the admiral were married in 1907.

Admiral's Courtship Described. The courtship was described by the admiral in a statement which he made at the time of a brief estrangement from his wife four years ago. He said: "I met Mrs. Ainsworth in Chicago and thought she was a widow. At that time, however, she was not actually divorced from her husband. It was not until just before my marriage that I learned she had a husband. Then she told me that her husband was alive and that she had just obtained a divorce from him on the grounds of drunkenness and desertion."

"During the time that I paid attention to her, knowing her straitened circumstances and thinking that her husband was dead, I helped toward the support of herself and children, giving her money, though at the time I did not know for what purpose she was using it. Later, after the marriage, I learned inadvertently that I had been paying for the divorce proceedings which she had instituted against her husband. "I promised to marry her. I married her because I had said I would and was too much of a gentleman to withdraw my promise. She has always been a good wife."

"I knew that money was given to Ainsworth, but never with my consent except once; then I paid his fare to Cleveland to get rid of him."

After their marriage the Eatons came to Brookline. Soon afterwards the admiral met with financial reverse and in his last days led an unpretentious life on a poultry farm in Norwell.

His principal income was from his allowance as a retired naval officer, which amounted to $4000 a year.

It is understood that his estate is represented largely by a life insurance policy for $8000.

Disappointed that a child had been born to them, the admiral about two years after his second marriage, secretly adopted an infant, which he proclaimed as his own. The deception was successful for a time, but the baby died when a few months old. Mrs. Eaton declared that the infant had been poisoned, and an examination of the stomach was made.

Charge Causes Estrangement. No poison was found, but as a result of her charge Mrs. Eaton was estranged from her husband for a brief period. Then they were reconciled and again lived together. With this admiral met with financial reverse and in his last days led an unpretentious life on a poultry farm in Norwell.

SUFFERERS BEG FOR 'CURE'

17-Year-Old Boy Treated 12 Days Ago When He Could Hardly Move. Goes Through Exercises, Confident of Vaccine.

NEW YORK, March 20.—In the presence of scores of physicians gathered from all parts of the country, many of them representing city health boards, Dr. Friederich F. Friedmann treated 35 patients with his tuberculosis vaccine today. Twenty-nine of the sufferers were deformed babies.

Before holding his demonstration the Berlin specialist issued a statement advising out-of-town persons not to come to New York with the hope of being treated until after the Government had passed on his vaccine at the conclusion of its inquiry.

Mothers Beg for Serum. At the doors of the hospital for deformities and joint diseases, Dr. Friedmann was beset by a throng of sufferers who besought him to treat them. The patients he attended, however, already had been selected, and he had to force his way gently through the crowd of disappointed men and women. A mother with a child snuggled to her knees, holding the baby toward the physician in outstretched arms.

During the clinic a 17-year-old boy worked in the operating room. He was a patient treated with the vaccine 12 days ago. "Look at my leg," he said to Dr. Friedmann, baring his knee. "When you injected your vaccine I could hardly move, the leg was so swollen. Now I know that I will get well."

Physicians Examine Patient. The boy went through exercises to show the suppleness of his legs and then submitted to examination by the gathered physicians.

Diseases of the bones were treated today. Dr. Friedmann will hold a clinic at Bellevue Hospital tomorrow, to treat pulmonary cases. Dr. Friedmann has requested the Government physicians, who attended the clinic today, to place Dr. Arthur Atkinson, a Wisconsin physician, on the list of patients to be treated at Bellevue. Dr. Atkinson, suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, came East to urge Dr. Friedmann to treat him.
