At the hearing today reports of officers of the road were submitted and testimony regarding the road's condition was given by W. M. Nelson, auditor of the Corvallis & Eastern; John M. Chairman Miller Talks.

"We had heard of derailments and broken rails and had reports of our engineers indicating extraordinary detrimental conditions, so determined upon a thorough systematic investigation of the physical condition of the roadbed and equipment," said Frank J. Miller, chairman of the commission.

"We believe that safety is the first thing that certainly should look after and we want to ascertain if the road is safe. If not, we hope to apply a remedy if in our power. It is not a question of whether the road is making money or not. The company which now owns it knew its condition when it bought it and it is the duty of the company to make it safe for the public."

Among the railroad officials who will accompany the Commissioners on the trip are J. K. Weatherford, president and general manager of the Corvallis & Eastern; D. W. Campbell, general superintendent of the Southern Pacific line in Oregon; John H. Stevens, superintendent of the Corvallis & Eastern; and F. L. Burkholder, chief engineer of the road.

SPRINGFIELD ACT VETOED

Council, However, May Pass Sunday Closing Law Over Veto.

The ordinance will come up for passage over the Mayor's veto at the next meeting. The Mayor bases his veto on the ground that only 86 citizens asked for the closing ordinance, while there was a remonstrance signed by over 400 people, the Council passing the ordinance without listening to the vast majority against it.

The ordinance as petitioned for would have closed the shows on Sunday evenings only, but at the last moment it was changed so that they might operate in the evening, but remain closed during the rest of the day. It is said that the ordinance will be amended at the next meeting to conform to the original petition and that it will be passed over the Mayor's veto.

LUMBER ACTIVITY IS SEEN

New Mills Being Located on Natron, Klamath Cutoff.

SPRINGFIELD, Or., April 14.—(Special.)—That the present activities in lumbering are in this part of the state is not merely a temporary flurry is shown in the work being done by sawmill men along the new Natron-Klamath cutoff by the Southern Pacific, extending east from this city to Oakridge.

A Portland firm has about completed a mill of 30,000 feet daily capacity at Yajuma station and it will soon be in operation. Veatch & Gordinier, who formerly operated a mill at Pleasant Hill, are seen to begin operating a plant across the street from Lowell. Having moved their machinery to that point. There is a report that a large mill will be erected in the Templian timber above Lowell.

The town of Oakridge, the terminus of the road, is enjoying a small building boom, and much of the lumber manufactured along the line is being used there. A new hotel recently has been finished, a large livery stable is being erected and numerous residences are in course of erection and others are being planned.

THUG ATTACKS WOMAN

MRS. ROSKAMP, OF LA GRANDE, SEIZED BY THUG.

As Husband Leaves Late at Night, Prowler Takes Opportunity as Wife Is Retiring.

LA GRANDE, Or., April 14.—(Special.)—Drooped in the act of retiring for the night, Mrs. H. R. Roskamp, prominent in La Grande society, was seized suddenly by a grimy brutal hand thrust through the window, and not until she had used her frightened energy to the last ounce and the approach of the thug was able to break away from the grasp of the thug that choked her.

Mrs. Roskamp, who lives in the Tatem house, had met an evening train to receive her mother, Mrs. Bell, of Enterprise, and the two had gone home to pass the evening, being joined by Mr. Roskamp.

The husband went to a hotel about 11 o'clock, and it is believed the would-be robber was waiting for the right time to break into the house and had stood outside the suite bedroom window ready to effect entrance when Mrs. Roskamp raised the shade to close the window. While in the act the hand was thrust in, seizing her by the throat. She was unable to scream for help, but her mother in another room at the time sounded an alarm.

Cursing bitterly and applying indecent epithets continually, the thug attempted to pull Mrs. Roskamp through the window but failed. In the struggle the fingers bruised the woman's neck.

At the approach of other roomers, the hold was loosened and the woman freed. Cursing still the thug escaped, leaving a trail of blood on the floor and on the window casing as the only clue.

CANAL FREE TOLLS INDORSE BY TEAL

At Waterways Convention Portland Men Make Stirring Addresses.

PENDELTON IS ROYAL HOST

"Panama Canal and Its Relations to Pacific Coast Development," Is Topic Bringing Out Facts Important to Oregon.

PENDELTON, Or., April 14.—(Special.)—The Fourth annual convention of the Columbia and Snake River Waterways Association convened here today with the best attendance in its history. The forenoon was given over to the directors' meeting and the early part of the afternoon to general session, at which President Lyman, Walla Walla, delivered a comprehensive address on "The Achievements of the Association."

H. Devers, of Portland, made a speech touching on "Portland's Interest in the Interior Waterways Transportation," and reviewed briefly the support for years past given to the open river cause by Portland, and of its present willingness to aid in any way possible the scheme of open river to the sea. A stirring address was delivered by Mr. J. N. Teal, on "The Panama Canal and Its Relations to Pacific Coast Development."

Free Tolls Indorsed.

One of the features of Mr. Teal's remarks was the indorsement of the free-toll theory, and from time to time his speech was interrupted with great applause.

Other features presented by Mr. Teal were the facts that the "Panama Canal will save $15 miles between Portland and New York and 610 miles between Portland and Liverpool, that fresh fruit may be shipped via the canal from Portland to New York in 18 days, at a rate from 35 to 50 cents per hundred; that low-grain and the American people, from East to West and West to East constitute a major portion of the tonnage and calls for water transportation.

Mr. Teal also mentioned that wheat from Portland to Liverpool will be lowered 8 to 10 cents a bushel when the canal is opened. The opening of waterways through the interior will be necessary to bring the interior within reach of the sea.

Teal Talks of Control

Special emphasis was made by Mr. Teal that the Panama Canal should be under control of the American people, not the railroads, in view of the fact that Americans built and put in operation the canal, and therefore, it should be advanced in the interests of the whole world. It is his opinion of Mr. Teal, do injustice to any other nation, but "rather that the great highway of commerce will fulfill its purpose and all nations receive their full share of the benefits resulting from the completion of the canal."

Various committees were appointed before adjournment of the afternoon session. At the close of the meeting the visitors were conducted on a automobile tour through the adjacent wheat fields. State Hospital Government Engineer, which trip lasted three hours. In the evening a reception was tendered the delegates at the Commercial Club rooms and a pleasant evening of "getting acquainted" was enjoyed. Several excellent short talks and vocal selections were also interspersed during the evening.

With the changes in the organization his general and financial report to the directors at their meeting today, which showed a flourishing condition of the association and bright prospects for the year.

He was especially emphatic in demanding that paving be of a better quality and at a less price. He urged a more general patronage of the city's water and light plants, to the end that the city's utilities may show a profit for the municipality.

Mayor Yoran also advocated a municipal paving plant unless better prices and material can be secured from the contractors. He also promised to make a revision of the city's needs to make it commensurate with the needs of a growing city, the draft to be submitted to the people at a convenient season.

BIRTH RESISTANCE IN OWN DEFENSE

Aged Seattle Banker Tells of Confidence He Had in W. E. Schricker.

BANK FAILURE SURPRISE

More Vividly Even Than Letters Introduced as Evidence in Explanation Made by Defendant Now on Trial.

LD COAST—Sports

BELLINGHAM, Wash., April 14.—

In clear, crisp tones marked with frankness, Jace Furth, chairman of the board of directors of the Seattle National Bank of Seattle, today told the jury that is hearing the case of the state against Mr. Furth on charge of conspiracy in connection with accepting deposits for the Schricker & Company private bank of La Conner when it was known to be insolvent of the business relations between himself, his bank and W. E. Schricker, president of the La Conner bank from 1888 until the La Conner bank was organized.

With little questioning, the aged banker detailed all the transactions leading up to the time the private bank failed a year ago tomorrow. Through the testimony of the defendant, Mr. Furth, letters introduced by the state and which the state had planned to identify by the convicted Schricker, but who refused to testify again, were presented to the jury and it was to the exact meaning of the mass of correspondence that Mr. Furth directed the greater part of his testimony today.

More vividly than the letters themselves the explanations of Mr. Furth recited the history of the struggles of the Ya Conner banker through the misfortune of a loan to a mill company against final failure. Mr. Furth's testimony showed how Schricker had weathered the panic of 1893 without the aid of a dollar from outside banks, and again how he passed through the disturbing times of 1907, being the only bank in the state, according to Mr. Furth, that did not issue Clearing-House or cashier's certificates.

The banker's testimony brought out the fact that the late W. E. Schricker, president of the defunct bank, in the early 30's and had great confidence in the man.

"It never for one moment doubted the solvency of the Schricker bank or of Schricker himself," declared Mr. Furth. "The failure of his bank was as much of a surprise to me as it had been my own bank that failed."

The defense in all probability will not call any other witnesses and the case may go to the jury Wednesday evening.
