Switch off the gloom and man the guns;
The team's in form; we made eight runs.

And that's no idle jest. The Portland Coast Leaguers fell upon the necks of three Sacramento pitchers in the final game of the series yesterday, and hard, timely cannonading, combined with some very effective box work by Higginbotham, gave Portland an 8-2 victory.

It was the first signs of slugging It was the first signs of slugging ability the Beavers have displayed this season, and, while they fielded recklessly at times, defensive sins were forgotten in the joy attending the furore of the attack. Donne starred with three cleuts, but it was a pinch hit by Berry that broke the tie in the sixth and turned the game.

Knockers Begin Boosting about 3500 braved the Antarctic at About 3500 braved the Antarctic atmosphere and when Portland permitted the Solons to tie the game, 2-2, by some erratic fielding in the third frame, after getting off to a lead, hoots of derision pierced the sky. But when Berry jumped into the breach after Doane's two-bagger and Kenworthy's error and scored two men by a flerce single to center, everybody clambered aboard the boosting wagon. mbered aboard the boosting wagon, uch a difference when the boys be-local team, broke even with Sacra-mento on the series, winning three and losing three. And, be it recorded that Irve Higginbotham hung up two vic-tories in the week, West being credited with the third. Higginbotham twirled masterly ball yesterday, allowing but four scattered bingles and but for er-rors by Kores and Rodgers, would have chalked up a kalsomine game.

Drucke Not Ready for Work.

Schulz and Munsell were the slabbing trio trotted out by Wolverton. Drucke evidently is not ready for steady work yet, for, judging from his work in both games, he is due to add the price of arnica to the high cost of living for another fortnight.

Drucke opened by walking two men and hitting two others in the first couple of innings, and when the procession begun anew in the third, Wolceston begun anew in the third, Wolceston yanked him in favor of Schulz, erstwhile Phillie. Schulz, too, had trouble locating the plate through the Perritt, Presty air. Whan he walked Korne and Perritt, Pe frosty air. When he walked Kores and permitted Rodgers to fracture the left field foul-line for a double, scoring his shortstop lieutenant, Wolverton called

Before gesticulating for the orches tra to cease, however, he assembled all hands back of third place to locate the spot where Rodgers' hit was supposed to have touched the sward. Wolverton found one convenient abrasion, strange-ly enough just outside the fair line, while Chadbourne averred the ball hit fair and discovered a round spot, strangely enough, inside the foul line. It reminded for all the world of a oner's jury inspecting the scene of Munsell Weakens in Sixth. Pinally, the umpire presumed enough to get the game started again and thus to get the game started again and thus it is that Munsell is charged with a defeat. Beavers to Meet Ancient Rivals, Venice, With Fitzgerald, Donne and Chadbourne in Field. Happy's Taunts Expected.

Judging from surface indications this week's Coast League duel between Venice and Portland promises to be one of the most spicy in the history of the bitter warfare between these rival clubs. Hogan, it seems, has been saving his two ex-Portland flingers for use against McCredie, and if either Harkness or Koestner is able to trim the Beavers, Hogan will be sure to taunt and pester McCredie all week.

Koestner is expected to be pitted against Portland in the opening game of the series tomorrow. McCredie announced last night that his

This will give Art Krueger a chance to get back into his hitting stride. When he is hitting right Art is one of the most valuable gardeners in the league, because of his fielding sagacity.

Van Buren batted for Munsell in the ninth, but went out to Chadbourne.

Fits fell salesp on the bases in the first inning and was doubled at third. First and second were occupied when Rodgers grounded to short. Stark threw to second forcing Kores out, Kenworthy relaying to first too late to catch Rodgers. Fitsgeraid, in the meantime, returned to second, and then, thinking he was forced off, the popular little speed demon, vacated the bag and walked over to third for an easy double play. Jack Bliss did some fine pegging to bases,
