ROSARIANS' FUND GROWS

Contributions for Second Day Are $875—Krebs Sends $500 Check.

At the present rate of progress it won't take long for the Rosarians to overcome the $20,000 deficit in the Rose Festival fund. Any way they are going to keep right after the delinquents until they have every cent of the required cash in their treasury.

Yesterday's campaign was made notable by the collection of an aggregate of $875. All this money was given voluntarily, for the Rosarians haven't time to go out and ask people for it.

The first check of the day was also the biggest. It came from Frederick A. Krebs, who was Rex Oregonus of last year's festival and who has been one of the most consistent and most generous supporters of the festival since it was started.

This year's festival has been extensively and effectively advertised throughout the territory that usually provides the bulk of the visitors and railroad advice indicate that the attendance will exceed that of any previous year.

Rosarians say they must make up the $20,000 shortage within the next few days, as all the money will be needed before the festival is held.

Contributions will be sent direct to Festival headquarters on the seventh floor of the Swetland building, but they will be accepted and receipted for, also, in the Oregonian office. A record breaking collection is expected today.
