PRINCIPALS CONFER TONIGHT.—Principals of the Portland public schools have been invited to a conference tonight at the Hotel Clifford, with the East Side Business Men's Club on the East Side Business Men's Club on the children's parade. The parade committee desires to know definitely how many children have volunteered to take part, as the time is getting short and preparations must be completed. Several of the principals have reported to Assistant Secretary Hall what their schools will do, but many have not been heard from. A canvass for funds is now being made by G. E. Wolter and others, with fair success. It is a voluntary matter with the children whether they take part in the parade or not, but with the co-operation of parents it is thought enough will enter to make the parade a success. to make the parade a success.

Audacity of Prisoner Declared Constant Source of Wonder to Captors Who Are With Him Frequently for Investigation.

One more link in the interesting but mysterious history of H. M. Hudson, alleged "marrying swindler," has been added by Detectives Hyde and Vaughn, who now believe that they are in possession of the true name of the man whose long list of allases, aiready known, exceeds a score. He is identified as Chales H. Wax, of Gloversville, N. Y., where he has a mother and two N. Y., where he has a mother and two

The prisoner, who is now held under indictments charging forgery and the unlawful wearing of a lodge emblem, had papers in his possession bearing the name of Wax, but among his many assumed names the officers were unable to select this as the true one, until Makes was the select the select the select this select the select the select this select the select the select this select the select the select this select the select til Hudson sent out letters andressed to his sisters. To make the identification positive, his picture has been sent to the Gloversville authorities.

The audacity of the man is a con-stant source of wonder to his captors, who have had him out on the streets several times with a view to having him identified. On one of these occa-sions he opened a conversation about shoplifters, and let out an intimation that he could supply the officers with some valuable information, in return for leniency from them. In particular he professed to know of one clever woman thief who worked the "third-arm" game. The detectives were keen-ly interested.

MAYOR RUSHLIGHT CRITICISED IN PULPIT.

Of Destruction to the Holy City and happiness are shown in vivid moving pictures at the Heilig Theater this week, the first presentation having been made yesterday. Posed in the wild mountain regions near Turino, Italy, the scenes show not only a strong dramatic value, but a mechanical technique seldom achieved in the ordinary motion pictures. Alexandre Salvini, Jr., grandson of the Italian tragedian, Tomaso Salvini, appears in the characters are assumed by other actors well known to the Italian stage.

The story is told in five reels, the first representing the early life of the author, John Bunyan, himself, who is shown to have been a dissolute, drunken tinker who is converted by the pleadings of his faithful wife. Becoming a preacher and so staunch in his adherence to his faith that he is
