BUD ANDERSON IS VICTOR IN TWELFTH

Mandot Unable to Withstand Terrific Blows of Vancouver Lightweight.

REFEREE STOPS CONTEST

New Orleans Boxer Insensible but on His Feet When Eyton Puts End to Unequal Bout — Beaten Southerner Game in Defeat.

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Joe Mandot, of New Orleans, was knocked out in the 12th round of his scheduled 20-round fight here tonight with "Bud" Anderson, of Vancouver, Wash.

Mandot was not knocked down in the final round, but he was "out" on his feet. He was clearly insensible.

Referee Eyton, seeing the condition of the game southerner, stopped the fight with Mandot staggering blindly about the ring, and held up Anderson's hand in token of victory.

Mandot's much-vaunted cleverness as a boxer was of no avail against the hard-hitting Anderson, who not only outslugged him in the infighting, but outboxed him at long range.

Anderson's Margin Is Wide.

A terrific right to the body which Anderson started using in the first round proved the undoing of the Southern lightweight. Anderson had a big margin in every one of the 11 rounds before the end. There was but one knockdown, in the ninth, when a sharp left clip to the jaw put Mandot down, but he was up again in a second.

Mandot stood up gamely under terrific punishment from the initial round but he steadily weakened with only an occasional flash, which was ineffective, so far as Anderson was concerned. It was several minutes after Referee Eyton stopped the fight before Mandot recovered sufficiently to learn what had taken place.

Anderson and Mandot weighed in at 6 o'clock, and both were inside the limit of 133 pounds. Mandot was a 10 to 8 favorite, with light betting.

Cal Delaney, of Cleveland, earned a decision over Monte Attell, the San Francisco featherweight, in 10 fast rounds in the preliminary to the main event.

Anderson Starts at Fast Clip.

After a brief feinting spell in the opening round, they went into a clinch and Anderson put terrific body punches to Mandot's kidneys and stomach. Mandot was unable to land a blow in the first round.

In the second round Anderson repeated, punishing Mandot severely and making him wince with a vicious right to the body.

The third round Mandot stayed away from the hard-hitting northerner, but managed to put several light blows to Anderson's face. Anderson retaliated with both hands to the face, but Mandot had the best of the long-range encounter. Mandot scored with a hard right to the jaw as the bell rang. There was no clinching in this round.

Bud Plays Mandot's Game.

In the fourth round Anderson played Mandot's own game, long range fighting, and more than held his own, although Mandot managed to reach his face several times with well-aimed swings.

Mandot, undaunted by the terrific body punishment he received in the first two rounds, rushed into a clinch at the beginning of the fifth and took another series of vicious rights to the stomach. Anderson then rushed his man across the ring and planted a hard right and left to the jaw, Mandot scoring once with a right to the jaw. Anderson both outboxed and outslugged the southerner in that round.

Mandot took the aggressive in the sixth and tried repeatedly to put Anderson away with a punch, but every intended knockout blow was cleverly evaded by Anderson. The latter found further opportunity to batter the Southerner's ribs with a series of rights.

The seventh opened with a clinch, and Anderson bumped his right against Mandot's ribs. Mandot steadied himself and put his right and left on Anderson's jaw. Anderson was hooted for rough tactics in the clinches.

Mandot Rushed Through Ropes.

In the eighth round Mandot took two lefts to the head without damage and wrestled about the ring, Anderson using right to the stomach. Anderson rushed his man across the ring and held him against the ropes as the bell sounded.

Mandot made his best showing in the beginning of the ninth, when he rained rights and lefts to Anderson's jaw. As Mandot rushed again, Anderson caught him on the jaw with a left and dropped him to the mat, but the New Orleans boy was up in a second and into a clinch. Anderson resumed his body punches. The round was the most vicious.

Mandot Weakens Rapidly.

Game to the core, but apparently weakening after the terrific punishment he had taken, Mandot tried desperately in the eleventh to reach Anderson's jaw, but his blows either went in the air or were ineffective, and Anderson staggered him repeatedly with rights to the jaw or made him sag under body punishment.

Anderson forced the fighting at the beginning of the twelfth and staggered Mandot with rights and lefts to the face and body.

Mandot's desperation made all his efforts of no avail, and when a terrific right to the jaw made him wilt, apparently helpless, but still on his feet, Referee Eyton stopped the fight to save him from a knockout, and awarded the victory to Anderson.

FANS INTERESTED IN OUTCOME

Anderson Favorite in Betting but Result Surprises Even Friends.

Fans crowded about various sport headquarters last night in numbers rivaling those of world's series combats, but wagering, usually a criterion of interest in fistic events, was of the mildest. Bud Anderson was a favorite over Mandot, ranging from 10-9 to 10-7, but little money changed hands on the lightweight mill, while the heavyweight scramble at San Francisco was almost entirely ignored.

Heretofore Bud has always been a redhot favorite, adherents of his rivals being conspicuously few. But last night, while the Vancouver, Wash., lad's friends were in the majority, a big minority was outspoken in its belief that the New Orleans chap would win.

Mandot admirers were loud in their predictions, not that their man would score a knockout, but that he would win a 20-round decision. The Anderson cohort figured that Bud would register a knockout in from 16 to 18 rounds.

Jack King was the most confident Anderson admirer, but he fell short of the verdict by three rounds, declaring that Bud would win within 15 rounds.

The crowds could hardly believe that Bud had won in 12 rounds, but once that information had "seeped" in Mandot people disappeared and it was nothing but "Bud will win the championship. He's better than Rivers, Ritchie or any of them."

VANCOUVER FANS ARE ELATED

Anderson's Mother Expected 'Buddy' to Win Before Fifteenth.

VANCOUVER, Wash., May 20.—(Special.)—When the news was flashed here tonight that Bud Anderson, of this city, had knocked out Joe Mandot in the twelfth round, there was a great demonstration by about 2000 fans, who had assembled, but there was not such a rejoicing as when Anderson bested K. O. Brown. Apparently everyone expected Anderson to make good this time, and had full confidence that he would.

Anderson's father, Charles Anderson, and several of his brothers were in the crowd. Mrs. Anderson was at home, and she was highly elated when told of her son's success. "I expected Buddy to win, though," she said. "He wrote to me that he would win before the fifteenth, and he is usually right in sizing up his man. I want him to go on now and get to be champion and then retire and settle down here in Vancouver. When Anderson returns for a visit here, before his next fight, he will certainly receive a great reception. Several thousand dollars were sent from here to be placed on him.

BOISE LOSES TO BUCKS

BEARS EAT SPUDS AND TAKE FIRMER GRIP ON FIRST.

Miners Win Ragged Game With Yaks, Each Team Erring Five Times---Series Transferred.

Boise, who in the series with the Bears at Boise became a dangerous contender for first rung on the ladder, was roped and tied by the Buckaroos Tuesday and the Bears ate the Spuds, thus leaving Walla Walla with a firm hold on the ladder. Baker trounced North Yakima. The scores were Walla Walla 3, La Grande 2; Pendleton 6, Boise 1; Baker 8, North Yakima 5.

At La Grande the Bears got the game on a platter in the first inning. Three walks, two errors, a wild pitch, a fielder's choice and two hits gave the Bears three. In their half of the first a walk and two singles scored two for La Grande. A triple play stopped scoring and both pitchers settled down. Paddy Welsh joined the team as pitcher. The Friday, Saturday and Sunday games this week have been transferred to Walla Walla. Score:

	R.	H.	E.		R.	H.	E.
La Grande.	2	7	1	Wal. Walla	3	6	1

Batteries—Fitchner and King; Shader and Brown.

Boise's errors did much to let Pendleton win at Boise. Both teams hit hard and often but Pendleton got hers together. The game was slow. The score:

	R.	H.	E.		R.	H.	E.
Boise.....	1	10	6	Pendleton.	6	10	1

Batteries—Bridger and Gard; Osborne and Byrnes.

Some bad errors marked the game at Baker, two scores coming in through them. Coleman, for Baker, allowed but two hits until the ninth. Then pinch hitters got two. The miners hit Kane frequently and at opportune times. In the seventh West hit a hot one through Kane against the center field fence. Cowan found it after two runs were made. The score:

	R.	H.	E.		R.	H.	E.
Baker.....	8	10	5	Yakima...	5	4	5

Batteries—Coleman and Cress; Kane and Stanley.

SMITH WINS FIGHT

Gunner's Rushing Tactics Too Much for Willard.

BOUT GOES 20 ROUNDS

Kansan Shows Flashes but Seems Unable to Follow Advantage When He Apparently Has Smaller Man Beaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Fifty pounds advantage in weight, six inches height and a reach like the arm of a derrick, could not win tonight for Jess Willard from Gunboat Smith, who won a referee's decision in the last round of a 20-round bout. The heavier punch of the more experienced and aggressive veteran counted for more in the result than the bulk and strength of his towering opponent.

Inexperience lost the fight. Willard had the strength and the courage, but he was too good natured and too sluggish. In the periods when he might have won the fight he lacked the courage and the determination to push through for a victory. In the periods when Smith was in difficulty he always had the ring generalship, the cool head and the shifty knowledge to pull him through.

Willard Wins Six Rounds.

Of the 20 rounds fought, but six could be credited to Willard. In offense he showed exactly what the critics had predicted for him, a tantalizing straight left and a right uppercut, dangerous at times. At in-fighting he was a novice.

Smith opened his attack with left and right swings for the head and for the major part of the fight these were his chief tactics of offense. The blows lacked effect, however, because many of them failed to reach the mark and landed to the rear of Willard's head. In the 10th Willard's ear was split wide open and for the remaining rounds blood streamed down his neck and over his chest.

Smith's left eye began to puff badly in the sixth round and by the eighth round was closed entirely.

Willard Begins to Tire.

In the 13th round Willard showed plainly that he was beginning to tire. He was weak on his feet and more and more uncovered his body to Smith's rapid-fire punches in the clinches.

In the 14th it was wild swinging. For a moment it looked as if Willard might have won, but he lacked the fighting instinct to carry him through to victory and before the round ended Smith was pounding the injured ear heavily.

In the 15th Tom Jones, Willard's manager, counselled him to make it a rushing fight and take the most advantage of his weight and strength. He tried it each time as he came up for a new round, but Smith was able to elude him in the clinches.

They were both tired in the 16th and Willard's knees sagged. Smith appeared to be more aggressive and there was more punishing power in his swings to the jaw, although his reach was shorter. He began to find, as Willard's guard lowered, he could cut him repeatedly with stinging straight lefts, which were supposed to be Willard's specialty.

Crowd Jeers Willard.

In the 18th round Willard's inexperience and good nature showed itself when, as the crowd jeered him for inaction during a clinch, he stopped work entirely and smiled over Smith's shoulder at the bleachers. The crowd hooted again as Smith tore in.

The 19th round opened with another furious rush by Willard, which Smith was able once more to meet by smothering the body punches and rushing into a clinch between the leads for the head. The fighting grew more confusced and uninteresting.

The twentieth round was a tangle of infighting. Both men were tired and Smith seemed willing to take a decision on the lead he had. A right uppercut to the jaw staggered him badly but again he fell into a clinch and his superior ring generalship saved him. Before the round ended he again was on the aggressive and when the bell rang they were fighting with even honors.

Ringside critics felt that although Smith had won a just decision, with training and experienc , Willard might be developed into a formidable heavyweight.

WASHINGTON DEFEATS O. A. C.

Seattle Team Takes Fine Pitchers' Battle by Score of 2 to 1.

SEATTLE, May 20.—(Special.)—The University of Washington took the second and final baseball game of the series with Oregon Agricultural College, 2 to 1, today. Washington scored one in the first inning on a base on balls, a stolen base and a single, and another in the fifth, when First Baseman Silda knocked a home run.

The visitors' only score was made by Hoof in the ninth on an error, a stolen base and Weller's single. Score:

	R.	H.	E.		R.	H.	E.
O. A. C.....	1	3	2	Washington.	2	3	1

Batteries—Culver and Weller; Boatman and Byler.

A triple tie may result in the baseball race for the pennant in the western half of the Northwestern College Conference. In such an event no game will be possible with Washington State College, Eastern champions, and no conference pennant awarded this year.

The University of Oregon stands the best show at present. If Oregon defeats the Oregon Agricultural College Saturday at Corvallis, the Eugene boys will have undisputed right to the title, with five wins and three defeats. But, if the Aggies win, then Oregon, the Oregon Aggies and Washington will all be tied with four wins and four losses apiece.

If Oregon wins Saturday, the Washington State Collegians will come West next Monday and Tuesday for a series of two out of three games for the conference championship.

ATHLETIC CLUB FORMED

BUTLER SCHOOL INCORPORATED WITH STOTT PRESIDENT.

Wyard and Gleason, of Seattle, to Be Pitted With Gruman and McNeil for Return Bouts May 29.

Portland will have three incorporated amateur athletic clubs today. Multnomah Club and Columbus Club being augmented by the Butler Amateur Athletic Club, an organization growing from Mike Butler's school of boxing.

E. Plowden Stott, Multnomah Club director and football manager, is the first president of the new club, with Dr. C. G. Sabin vice-president and William Maloney secretary-treasurer. Mike Butler, for ten years athletic director at the Chicago Athletic Club, and later at Spokane, will continue at the helm in the capacity of manager and athletic director, with Lowe Sims the boxing instructor.

The Butler school of boxing was opened in Portland less than a year ago and was successful from the start. Butler, who was formerly a noted amateur boxer, built up a large school of boxing among business and professional men and has been developing schoolboys. The club has a patronage of nearly 100, all of whom are expected to become charter members.

The quarters at 514, 515 and 516 Northwest building will be retained for the present.

The first public entertainment of the club will be given at the Bungalow Theater May 29, Butler planning to import Archie Wyard and Henry Gleason, of Seattle, for headline bouts with Ralph Gruman and Al McNeil, respectively. These Columbus Club boys lost titles to the Seattleites on questionable decisions and are anxious to square accounts. A return bout between Madden and Miebus is also discussed.
