SLEETH JURY MAY BE SECURED TODAY

Eleven Veniremen Passed for Cause in Libel Case Against Editor.

LOST INDICTMENT FOUND

Grand Juror Absent-Mindedly Carries Document Away in Pocket; Defense May Plead Technical Liability of Officials.

Faster progress was made yesterday in securing a jury in the trial in Circuit Judge Davis' court of the Portland News Publishing Company and Dana Sleeth, its editor, on a charge of criminal libel. Eleven veniremen were passed for cause, making 13 altogether, and the defense exercised two of its peremptory challenges on C. B. Barger, an iron molder, and J. P. Jaeger, a jeweler. The defense still has four peremptories. The state has three.

The other 11 men passed for cause and still unchallenged are W. L. Barnum, cabinetmaker; J. M. Taylor, cement contractor; C. H. Barnell, retired; E. A. Schloth, linotype operator; C. J. Wallingford, architect and contractor; M. Davenport, feed and grain dealer; John Carlson, cigars and confectionery; J. J. Edgerton, cement contractor; J. Hampton, transfer man; E. P. Rawson, inspector for the Portland, Eugene & Eastern Railway, and Carl Schlickeiser, restaurant proprietor.

The jury probably will be completed and the taking of testimony begun before noon today. Questions put to veniremen by attorneys for the defense yesterday indicate that the defendants will seek to prove in defense that acts of the county officials alleged to have been libelled, Commissioner Lightner and County Judge Cleeton, were such as to render them at least technically liable to imprisonment, and thus gave ground for the article on which the indictment is based.

The missing indictment turned up yesterday. It had been carried away from the Courthouse by Rev. George C. Carl, foreman of the February grand jury, the body which returned it. Mr. Carl was a witness last week when an effort was made to quash the indictment, and absent-mindedly stuck the paper in his pocket. He recalled it when he read in The Oregonian yesterday that it was missing.

Albert Feldenheimer, Washington-street jeweler, is on the venire this month. He was examined yesterday. He said that he had been in business in Portland 37 years, and during all that time had known Commissioner Lightner, and that it would take a great deal to convince him that Mr. Lightner is dishonest. The defense interposed a challenge for cause and he was excused. Another venireman keeps a grocery store on the Powell Valley road, and for 16 years has had Mr. Lightner as a customer. He exhibited a somewhat similar frame of mind and was excused also.

COUNTY RESEARCH DECIDED

Taxpayers' League Employs New York Bureau to Investigate.

Undeterred by the refusal of the County Court to stand the expense, members of the Taxpayers' League determined at a meeting yesterday to have the county system of doing business examined and recommendations covering changes made by the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, which made a similar probe into the affairs of the city. The expense will be borne by the league and the work will be done by L. D. Sands, an expert in the employ of the bureau.

The County Court refused to employ Sands, giving as a reason the fact that Insurance Commissioner Ferguson has been delegated by the Legislature and given an appropriation of $7500 to install uniform systems of accounting in all the counties of the state. The court took the view that it would be duplication of effort and useless expense to employ the bureau.

Mr. Sands will be free to inspect the records as the representative of his taxpaying employers. The consent of the County Court is not necessary.

SALVATIONIST WHIPS MAN

Captain of Army Give Alleged Thief Pair of Black Eyes.

"I laid salvation aside," said Captain W. Coffey, of the Salvation Army, explaining at the police station yesterday, how it came about that he "blacked" both of Max Volruba's eyes and split his lip. The Salvationist is a man below medium size, while the castigated one is somewhat "husky."

Mr. Coffey charges that Volruba, after being befriended at the Salvation Army barracks, at 24 Union avenue, has on two occasions stolen clothing from there. Caught in the act yesterday, he was pursued by the captain, clad only in trousers and shirt, and when the fugitive showed fight he "got it." When he reached the police station both eyes were swollen shut, his lip was split and he was bleeding profusely.

After taking the beating, Volruba, who carried a number of Socialist petitions for the eight-hour day, fled to the river-front, where he was captured by Detectives Vaughn and Hyde and delivered at the police station.

CORVALLIS CITY COUNCILMAN AND EX-MAYOR OF THREE TOWNS OF NORTHWEST.

JESSE B. IRVINE, AGE 82 YEARS, WHO FEELS YOUNG IN POLITICS.

MAN ACTIVE AT 82

J. B. Irvine, ex-Mayor of Three Towns, Views Local Race.

SONS ALSO EX-EXECUTIVES

Pioneer Is Member of Corvallis City Council, Is Still Young in Politics and Likes to "Mix Up" With Others.

Jesse B. Irvine, of Corvallis, although in his 83d year, is an active Republican, and is energetic in every sense of the word. Yesterday he climbed like a boy to the photograph gallery in The Oregonian building tower and had his likeness taken.

Mr. Irvine is a Kentuckian by birth, one of those who has no use for a corkscrew. He started for Oregon years ago, "resting his mule team 18 years in Missouri," but reaching the Willamette Valley in 1852. There he settled in Linn County, but after awhile he moved to Sprague, Wash., then to Eastern Oregon and finally back to Linn County. In 1895 he moved to Corvallis, and has been a member of the City Council for the past 12 years.

Family One of Mayors.

Mr. Irvine's public life has not been limited to Corvallis. He was elected Mayor of Sprague, Wash., and Scio and Brownsville, Or., and two of his sons have been Mayors. B. F. Irvine was Mayor of Corvallis, and J. D. Irvine has been Mayor of Brownsville.

"I just came to town to see these young fellows make their campaign for Commissionerships," said Mr. Irvine yesterday afternoon. "They talk about their experience, and they have had a little, but very little. A man doesn't learn all there is in politics by trying to get elected or in having an office or two. He's got to keep at the game for years. A man of whom everybody speaks well may have seen very little political life and might not be competent.

"I started a long time ago. When I came to Portland I had to cross gulches in this city by walking over fallen trees. Many of these gulches have been filled or else beautiful bridges have connected them with paved streets and the old trails are about forgotten.

Paper's Policy Unchanged.

"The Oregonian was the only newspaper, and it had the same Republican policy which it still adheres to. The old-timers were all Republicans, and I haven't noticed a change in The Oregonian's policy, after following its editorials carefully for 61 years. This is my second visit to The Oregonian building, and that's not bad for a man who has been a Republican politician, stumping the state and crying out for Republican standards.

"After 28 years in public life I still feel young in the game. I like to mix up with politicians, and my experience usually gains a hearing for me when I make a statement. I lost my wife in March, 1912. My daughter, Bessie, keeps house for me now, and I have five other children: B. F. Irvine, of the Journal, Portland; J. D. Irvine, of Brownsville; George W. Irvine, of Montana; Mrs. Emma I. Brusha, of Pendleton, and Mrs. Nora French, of Enterprise, whose husband is County Judge."

Mr. Irvine has been in Portland one week and will remain two weeks longer as the guest of his son. His ruddy complexion, deeply tanned, his bright eye and lively manner give him the appearance of a young man of 55.
