RITCHIE AND ANDERSON TO AP-PEAR IN PORTLAND VAUDE-VILLE NEXT WEEK.

Portland boxing fans and theater goers will have an opportunity to witness rival lightweights in vaudeville bexing next week, Champion Willie Ritchie meeting all comers at the Empress and Contender Bud An-derson appearing in exhibitions at the Manager Johnson, of the Pantage Theater, announced last night that negotiations had been closed with the conqueror of Joe Mandet and that Bud will be in Portland for the first performance next Monday, continuing throughout next week.

Ritchie won the championship from Ad Wolgest Inst November, At his present rate of advancement, Anderon will be matched with Ritchie by Labor day.

BY JAMES H. CASSELL.

Bud Anderson is a lightweight cham. pionship probability. Tuesday night, along about 9:30 o'clock, he was a title possibility. After less than 36 minutes of fistic argument with Joe Mandot, the Vancouver. Wash., scrapper, leaped from "possibility" to "probability."

Can anyone point to a likelier successor to the throne upon which Willie Ritchie has sat since last Thanksgiving?

Or can anyone, with a memory for the past and regard for his prophetic judg-ment, declare that Champion Ritchie or Joe Rivers, to say nothing of other ring lights, have more than an equal chance of success against the sensational Northwesterner. It is Billy Nolan's proud boast that Willie Ritchie sprang from obscurity into the hall of champions quicker than any other lightweight in history. But it doesn't require a very daring critic to assert that one year after January 25, 1912, when Bud Anderson quit the "bushes," this unknown will be en-sconsed at the top and Ritchie perform-ing with Nelson and Wolgast, other ex-

Rivers Likely Next Opponent. The next logical fight for Anderson is against Joe Rivers, the Mexican True, they are talking much of a bout between Ritchie and Rivers at San Francisco on July 4, but the San Francisco bout is likely to be Ritchie vs. Murphy, with the Northwesterner and Mexican

Joe the Vernon card. Can Rivers, based simply on his fights with Mandot, beat Anderson? Figure it out for yourself: Mandot and Rivers fought two 20-round fights, with Mandot victor in the first and Rivers in the second. Anderson knocked out Mandot in 12 rounds, the second time Joe has ever been thus victimized. It was no fluke victory, mind you, like the lucky one Leach Cross achieved after being pummeled hard for eight rounds, but u clean-cut decisive verdict. Can you imagine Anderson and Mandot or Anderson and Rivers battling for 40 rounds without a knockdown?

Many critics based their opinion of Anderson on the Knockout Brown fight. Rivers knocked out Brown in nine draw and then stopped his man in 15 rounds. Thus, according to many of them, Bud was nothing but a good second rater, a work horse, and not in the class of Mandot, Ritchie and Rivers. Wonder what they are saying now? Wonder what they are saying now? Anderson was simply unfit for his first mill with Brown and was not quite so lucky as Rivers in the second.

Ritchie's Laurels Scanned.

Past performances are not always good criterions, as may be gathered from the above paragraph, but there is most assuredly not sufficient luster on the records of either Ritchie or Rivers to make them favorites over Anderson. Ritchie, 22 years old, has had 22 fights, losing to Welsh in 20 rounds and win-ning from Wolgast on a foul. He boxed a ten-round, no-decision mill with Mandot at New Orleans on June 4 of last dot at New Orleans on June of last year, won from Matty Baldwin in 20 rounds, knocked out Yankee Schwartz in two rounds and went six rounds to no decision with Young Saylor. Mandot did not knock out Schwartz, but he did lay Young Saylor low.

Rivers is 21 years old, has had 22 or 22 fights, was knocked out by Kilbane, again by Wolgast, and lost once to Mandot. He stopped Brown in nine rounds and shaded Leach Cross, whose knockout over Mandot was conceded a Bud Anderson is to the lightweight division as Gunboat Smith is to the heavy in one particular; he has a reli-able knockout punch. But aside from able knockout punch. But aside from this Anderson leaves Smith far behind. He is a two-handed "knockout, strong, big for his class, and is clever. If he is as clever or cleverer than Mandot, and the reports of the recent fight would indicate this, has there been a lightweight of the modern ring equipped as he?

The chief topic among sports here today was the fine showing made last night by the novice, Jess Willard, against the veteran fighter, "Gunboat"

He is almost as big as Jeffries and just as awkward as Jeff was in his first fight in San Francisco years ago; but he is a far better natural boxer than any novice who has been seen here. The cowboy had a bad case of stage fright last night, but with all his inexperience he handled himself well and the way he kept "Gunboat" from landthe way he kept "Gunboat" from landing his deadly right swing on the jaw was a revelation to ring experts. He is as quick as Jeffries was in his prime and has more real pluck than Jeff ever had. He is also strong as a herse and when properly trained "Gunboat" Smith would not last five rounds with him, as he has a powerful punch.

The trouble with him now is that he has no idea of following up an advantage or using his great strength in an aggressive way. When he finds these two points he will be a match for Jack Johnson.

McCarty's manager says he will not cept the offer unless his man is given fair percentage of the receipts.

WALTER WILLIAMS AND AL MC-NEIL TO CLASH MAY 29.

Mike Butler Arranges Contest Between 115-Pound Coast Champion and Northwest Titleholder.

Waiter Williams, winner of the Pacific Coast 115-pound boxing cham-pionship at Los Angeles last Winter, and Al McNeil, 1912 Northwest titleholder, will meet in the headline bout of the Butler Amateur Athletic Club's initial boxing programme on May 29.

This match was arranged yesterday by Mike Butler, the old-time rivals being anxious to settle a much-discussed question of supremacy. They hoped to hook up in the finals at the Seattle meet but Williams lost in the first round and McNeil went into the finals with Gleason, of Seattle, losing a questionable decision. For nearly a year the followers of these two boys have been praying for a meeting so the bout is one of the best of the season.

Butler at first planned to import Gleason from Seattle for a match with McNeil and Wyard, another Seattleite, for a return go with Gruman. However, these boys cannot make the trip, but will be brought down for the June 12 Brooklyn Club bill.
