THE EXCELLENCE OF AMERICAN WOOLENS

By Winthrop L. Marvin in the Editorial

An accusation often made against the American woolen industry by its foreign and domestic enemies is that the protective tariff compels the use of inferior materials and substitutes for wool and results in a deterioration of fabrice. Such a charge is particularly mean and baseless. . The Tariff Board has not examined this phase of the question, but it is effectually covered in the recent report of the Bureau of the Census of the United States. These Government officials in their examination of the wool manufacture for 1909 show that the amount of wool consumed in condition purchased in the woolen mills of this country exclusive of carpet, felt and knitting mills, etc., increased from 330,179,000 pounds in 1899 to 474,751,000 pounds at the end of the decade - s gain of 44 per cent; reckoned on a scored wool basis the gain was 50 per cent. In the same decade the quantity of raw cotton consumed fell off from 40,245,000 pounds to 20,055,000 pounds, a decrease of 50 per cent, while the amount of cotton yarn purchased increased only from 35,343,000 pounds to 39,169,000 pounds, 11 per cent, "The net result," states the Census Bureau, "is a decided decrease in the amount of cotton used as a material by wool

These official figures are the result of a most minute and exhaustive inquiry undertaken all over the United States by sworn agents of the Government. They prove that instead of decreasing, the consumption of raw wool in American mills has enormously increased, to the extent of 50 per cent in a single decade, a gain out of all proportion to the growth in population. Fifty per cent more wool has been used, and there has been at the same time a very heavy falling off in cotton. How about shoddy, that other substitute for pure, new wool? On this point the official record of the Government is equally conclusive. The Federal census says:

"The figures also show a marked decrease in the use of shoddy. The quantity purchased decreased 35 per cent, and the amount manufactured in woolen mills for use therein fell off 10 per cent. In 1899 the total amount of shoddy consumed by woolen and worsted manufacturers was 68,663,000 pounds; in 1969 it was only 63,621,000 pounds, a decrease all the more significant when the growth of the industry is considered,"

Those politicians and magazine writers who have been asserting that the protective tariff made new wool so dear that only the rich could wear it and that nothing but shoddy could be found upon the backs of the masses of the American people, have been guilty of an amazing falsehood, proved false by the fresh impartial records of the National Government. It is not America under protection but Great Britain under free trade that is the land of shoddy par excellence. As the Tariff

"The greatest shoddy-producing center in the world is in or near Batley and Dewsbury in England. Of the 900 rag-picking machines in the United Kingdom, Yorkshire, in which Batley and Dewsbury are located, has 881 machines. In the whole of the United States there are only 346 rag-grinding machines."

In other words, the shoddy industry is only a little more than one-third as large in the United States, with 90,000,000 people, as it is in the United Kingdom, with 45,000,000. American woolen mills, whose use of shoddy is, as compared with Great Britain, negligible and decreasing, consume annually onefifth of all the wool produced and consumed in the whole world.

Any traveler with open eyes and open mind can readily compare the attire of the masses of the work-people of Great Britain or the Continent with that of the wage-earners of the United States-and comparing can understand why the very first thing new immigrants do in this country if they have any money in their pockets is to discard their Old-World garments for real American clothes. Except for certain light-weight fabrics in which the labor cost is the dominating factor, the only woolens now imported into America are the fine, costly, "exclusive" fabrics of the very rich-luxuries and properly taxed as such. E. H. Van Ingen, a great merchant of New York, and chief importer of English cloths and familiar also with American cloths, has lately said of the products of Ameri-

"There are no more expert manufacturers anywhere than the best of those in this country. They are wonderfully quick to catch ideas, to modify, alter, improve and to meet quickly the ever-changing demands of fashion and fancy. They produce as great a variety of woolen cloths as can be found in the whole of Europe together,

"The fine and medium grades of the woolen cloths made here are generally better than those of equal quality to be obtained in any other country. American colors are, as a rule, better, clearer and more lasting than those of similar foreignmade fabrics. The designing talent in America is quite equal

These frank words of an importing merchant are an effective answer and rebuke to those mean Americans who for politics or gain have so contemptibly slandered the honesty and skill of their fellow countrymen.
