PRISONER WINS OWN CASE

Jury Acquits Charles Green Who Refuses Aid of Lawyer.

Charles Green today is walking the streets a free man, acquitted by a jury in the Federal Court yesterday with no other counsel than himself. Green was tried Thursday on an indictment charging him with the attempted robbery of the postoffice at Junction City, Or. On his assertion that he had no money to employ a lawyer, Judge Bean tried to appoint one to defend him, but this Green would not listen to. "I'll try my case myself," he said, and the constitution held him up. So he cross-examined the witnesses produced by the Government and quizzed those he introduced for himself to establish his alibi. And after the jury had pondered and had reached no agreement before bedtime, it returned to the courtroom yesterday morning. Judge Bean making a special Memorial day trip to his chambers to hear what it had to report. It reported "not guilty."

BEAR'S FATE UP TO VOTERS

Animal May Be Slain if Park Bonds Are Not Authorized.

The fate of the melancholy Polar bear at the Washington Park "Zoo" may hang on the decision of the voters on the park bond issue. For nearly ten years he has been an inmate of a cage at the park, and during all that time, with only slight intermissions in his waking hours, he has stood at one end of the cage and kept up a rhythmical, monotonous dance that "gets on the nerves" of all beholders. Some have even come to have the idea that he never ceases the exercise. Much pity is accorded the bear by park visitors, and frequently Superintendent Mische, or members of the Park Board are asked either to kill him or take him back to his Northern home. Now comes the Oregon Humane Society with a request that bruin be killed. The request was placed on file, pending the decision on the bond issue at Monday's election. If the bonds carry he will be given new and more commodious quarters. However, Superintendent Mische and others who know something of Polar bears and their ways do not expect him to discontinue his habit of dancing, or even to change its style. A slight cold in a child or grown person holds possibilities of the gravest nature. Croup may come on suddenly in the night, bronchitis or pneumonia may develop, and severe catarrhal troubles and consumption are possible results. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound nips a cold at the outset, cures croup quickly, checks a deep-seated racking cough, and heals inflamed membranes. It does not contain opiate and contains no opiates. Refuse substitutes. For sale by Huntley Bros., Fourth and Washington streets. There are 12,000 miles of paved streets within London's police area.

REED QUEST ELECTS STAFF

Former College Journal Officials Find Task Too Strenuous.

Elections to the staff of the Reed College Quest were held Thursday. The vote was for editor: Frank Scott 79, Arthur Cayler 13; associate editor: Essie Gill 23, Barbara McLoney 36; Lots Williams 25, Estella Lawner 4; business manager, Marvin Howes 57, Newton Francis McCoy 35. The staff which was elected to serve a year, beginning last January, thought their task too strenuous to last a year, and recommended a plan to the student council which called for semester elections. The staff, with the council, made nominations, which were presented to the student body at the assembly on Wednesday. These nominations were: Frank Scott, for editor; Lois Williams, associate editor; and Marvin Howes, business manager. There was some opposition to these, and additional nominations were made from the floor. Oliver Bradford was nominated for editor, but withdrew from the race. A committee of four, two from the staff and two from the student council, will be appointed within a few days to draw up a charter to govern The Quest. Rev. Alex Cestelli Honored. In honor of the 50th anniversary of his admittance to the priesthood, between 35 and 40 Catholic clergymen paid respect to the Rev. Alex Cestelli, chaplain of St. Vincent's Hospital, in a luncheon at the Portland Hotel yesterday. Archbishop Christie presided and, on behalf of the priests, presented Father Cestelli with a golden chalice. Other guests at the luncheon were Bishop O'Dea, of Seattle, physicians of the hospital staff, leading members of the Italian colony and a number of laymen. Talks were made by the archbishop, Father Dolphin, Father Black, Dr. Mackenzie and others. In the morning services were held in the cathedral at which Father Cestelli presided.
