Washington Lumber Interests Seek Entry to Oregon.

OREGON CITY IS INSPECTED

Business Along Projected Railroads Desired and Point on Willamcite Is Admitted to Be Favorable by Investigator.

OREGON CITY, Or., June 8 .- (Special.)-Among the visitors to Oregon City Saturday, to view the features of the Rose Show celebration here, was Lloyd H. Cahart, a representative of a group of Puget Sound lumber milling interests, who is "scouting" in the Willamette Valley for suitable sites for branch mills of the big Northern or-ganizations. While here Mr. Cahart journeyed to the north of the city limits, and looked over some land in what is known as the "China gardens," In the course of the day he met a num-DOLLECTION AGENCY.

Before leaving for Portland, en route to Puget Sound, Mr. Cahart admitted that he was sent into Oregon by a number of Washington lumber mill men, who were planning branch industries in the Willamette Valley and along the extensions of the Hill lines in Vergon. These millimen believe that a considerable amount of development will follow the building of new interurban and electric lines by the Hill people, and desire to gain the trade of

While he would not make any definite while he would not make any definite statements as to the sites of these pro-posed branch mills and supply depots, Mr. Cahart did say that he believed the high bluff off the river north of Oregon City would make an admirable site for one of them.

"I find that you have a number of things there that would prove extremely valuable to us," he said. "In the first place, there is a large tract of practically level land, hordered on one side by the river, and on the other by transportation lines. This land lies high above the river, so that it probably never will be flooded, and because of that any plant constructed there would be able to keep in continuous operation. You also have near at hand, I find, a considerable territory operation. You also have near at hand, I find, a considerable territory that is being reached by the Clackamas Southern Railroad, and beyond there is, I believe, a great deal of timber. It seems to me that this land north of the city would be doubly valuable to us on that account, for we might be able to get considerable timber for our work carried by the local road. This, when cut into lumber and inside wood, if it is suitable for such, could then be hauled back to distributive yards along the line.

"In Washington, we believe that an era of great development is fast ap-era of great development is fast ap-proaching in all parts of Oregon, particularly in the Willamette Valley, and between the river and the coast. For business reasons we are anxious to get into this field, and to help in its up-building, for the more communities that spring up, the greater will be our busi-

ELECTRIC STEEL WANTED

Industrial Possibility for Oregon Told by Chicago Expert.

SALEM, Or., June 20,- (Special.)-Regarding his suggestion that with the power going to waste in this state Oregon could be made a leader in the anufacture of electric steel. State manufacture of electric steel, State Engineer Lewis today received a letter from C. E. Potter, a steel expert of Chicago, in which he says:

"The roads are eager for electric steel even at the present high premium, as they realize that its use will pretty nearly solve the serious difficulties under which they are now labor-ing with other kinds of steel. It is entirely possible for you to establish an immense industrial center adjacent to your proposed power development, and I sincerely hope that you can make the people of Oregon believe this. It would make Oregon a great manufac-turing state, a consummation well worth whatever preliminary pecuniary outlay that may be necessary to its ac-complishment."

SALEM SYSTEM IMPROVED

Portland, Eugene & Eastern Announces New Work at Capital.

SALEM, Or., June 8.—(Special.)—Extensive improvements of the Salem streetcar system will be made by the Portland, Eugene & Eastern Rallroad Company this year. Work will be started at once, according to Robert E. Strahorn, president of the company, which recently acquired the system. A steel truss bridge will be built over Mill Creek at the North Commercial-street crossing. Other improvements on North Commercial street will eliminate numerous curves and give better grades. The work will be done under the supervision of J. W. Hall, assistant engineer.

The grading for the line between Monroe and Eugens has been completed and the treatle in Long Tom Bottom is being erected. There will be 25 miles trestles on the line, which is 22 miles
