runs the familiar old song, and there's a great deal of truth in this particularly captivating phrase if the home be an attractive one.

Home is just what we make it, by the presence of ourselves. our attitude toward others, and by the way home is kept.

And that leads to the thought that the homes of the millions in this country may be constantly improved and made more comfortable if the advertising appeal is heeded.

Almost every day, if not every day, The Oregonian prints advertisements that point the way for householders to buy well and exercise economy.

During these warm days, when many home comforts are needed—things to keep the house cool and inviting—things for the table—things that are appetizing-it pays to read the Seizure by Japanese Not In-Parade Keep 200 Away. Although the small boy at the Ladd School who started a recent "scare" by acquiring a mild case of smallpox is getting along comfortably, the same is not true with reference to divers other tots who also are pupils there.

At least 200 children were absent from school yesterday. Some were kept at home by parents who resented the compulsory vaccination edict of the City Board of Health. Others had submitted to the serum injection and feit its effects, while still others, whose parents had no special hostility to vaccination, wanted to see the parade, getting along comfortably, the same is CUSTOM IS ESTABLISHED Columbia Will Be Allowed to Proto vaccination, wanted to see the parade.

C. M. Kignins, principal of the school, said last night that he expected a light attendance from new until the close of school. Several parents, he said, had told him they would keep their children at home until danger of infection had entirely passed, even though their children had not been expessed. Many of these children will miss their final examinations.
