Note to Event—Songs and Yells Rise in Acclaim.

Surrounded by the courts of Oakland, Pasadena and Portland, three kings smiled down from their thrones upon the grand ball at the Multnomah Hotel last night, with which the programme of yesterday closed, and which was the crowning feature of the entertainment extended by the Royal Rosarians to their guests from other cities. Among the Pasadena and Oakland delegations were some of the representatives of the Seattle Potlatch, the Spokane Pow-Wow, and Eugene, but the Californians were predominant.

While the Rosarians and guests waited in the lobby for the arrival of Rex Oregonus, Fred Reed, monarch of the Oaks, lined up his aggressive and serenaded the visitors with enthusiastic songs and yells. The Knights of the Pasadena Tournament responded with the songs of their delegation and lastly, not to be outdone by their visitors, the Rosarians descended from the mezzanine floor and joined in the singing. The Oaks and the Rosarians lined up facing one another and marching forward until face to face, shook hands heartily, assuring one another of the friendly relationship which was undying. Pasadena was invoked in song and yell and responded bravely.

Kings' Arrivals Noisy.
When King Drummond, of the Tournament appeared among the Pasadena party, he was seized and an impromptu grand march was started about the lobby, with H. L. Pittcock, Grand Duke of Rosaria, and King Drummond escorted in the lead. The Oaks and the three parties marched in a grand circle, until announcement was made from the door that Rex Oregonus had arrived.

In two files the hosts and visitors lined up for the King of the Festival to pass through their ranks and ascend to the ballroom. King Drummond and Fred Reed, monarch of the Oaks, supported Rex Oregonus on either side and behind them the Rosarians, Oaks and Knights of the Festival followed. As they marched their joyousness bubbled over into a song that would have brought sentence for lese majesty against them from any but a festival monarch.

"Hail, hail, the King has come," they yelled as they marched up to the mezzanine floor and into the ballroom between the throngs of ladies who had gathered. The three Kings took their seats at the throne and the march of the retainers dissolved into a stately "serpentine" that circled twice about the hall, the dancers bowing ceremoniously before the throne.

Serpentine Eucoracches on March.
The serpentine eucoracches upon the grand march and the orchestra was obliged to go back and begin all over after the joyful serpentine dancers who finished before the grand Rex ball could be opened with the strict formality of a royal march.

W. J. Hoffmann, prime minister, and H. L. Pittcock, grand duke of Rosaria, led the grand march, and Captain Robert Krohn, of the Royal Rosarians, directed the figures.
After the grand march the dancers occupied both of the great ballrooms on the mezzanine floor of the hotel. At the end of the third dance all of the guests were gathered in the grand ballroom and Rex Oregonus descended from his throne and stepped into the midst of their great circle. He lifted his hands and removed his crown. His curling hair followed. He twitched off his beard and mustache and Rex Oregonus was a monarch of mystery no longer.

Smiling and bowing in his regal robes, Rex Oregonus, the King of the 1915 Rose Festival, stood unveiled and received the applause of the Rosarians and the visitors.

Rex Oregonus and the Kings of the other delegations remained until after the dancing was resumed and then, retiring from the throne, mingled with the crowd of dancers who thronged the floor.

The ball presented the brilliant characteristics of a fancy dress ball, insofar as the men were concerned, for all of the visitors were in the official uniform of their delegation.

LITERARY TEST PROPOSED

Immigration Bill Vetted by Taft to Be Introduced Again.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The Burnett-Dillingham immigration bill, proposing a literacy test and drastic changes in the present immigration laws, will be reintroduced tomorrow by Representative Burnett, of Alabama.
"I have made a poll of the new House," Mr. Burnett said today, "and I find that it stands nearly three to one in favor of an immigration registration measure."

The Senate passed this bill over President Taft's veto in the last Congress, but the House failed to re-pass it by a narrow margin.

The literacy test clause of the measure would require immigrants more than 16 years old to be able to read English or some European language or dialect. Exceptions would provide for the immediate families of American citizens. Persons who are ineligible for naturalization, except those who might come in under existing treaties, would be barred.

Pickpocket Suspects Arrested.

On charges of vagrancy, Patrolmen Freese, Martin and Tackaberry last night arrested Frank Reed, C. A. Clayton, C. H. Marshall, Jack Smart and Ed Lawrence, Rose Festival visitors. The quintet are suspected of being pickpockets. They were caught on Fourth and Yamhill streets, and one of them made a flying getaway, which took him a block before Patrolman Tackaberry overhauled him.

Boy Falls Through Glass Awning.

Jake Saxa, a boy, was slightly cut yesterday when he fell through the glass awning of the Pantages Theater, on which he had climbed to see a parade. He was attended by Dr. C. L. Rybka, who tied up an artery.

has disrupted the state for more than a year.
Groups of mountain men and women, with their children about them, were startled and a little awed by the sudden appearance of the Senators, lawyers, mine operators, stenographers and newspaper men at the doors of their little homes.

The businesslike "company stores" gave up to the Senators lists of the "high prices" which were given as one of the strike causes, and the dust-begrimed miners, bound to or from the pits that gash the sides of the mountains, were halted and questioned in the road.

Last Troops Leave Field.

As a method of securing definite testimony, the all-day trip proved unproductive, but the committee was enabled to secure a first-hand view of the conditions in the field. The last of the state troops struck their tents and left the strike zone today just as the train carrying the investigators pulled into Paint Creek Junction, where military headquarters had been maintained.

"Today's trip was valuable," said Senator Swann, chairman of the Senate sub-committee, when he reached Charleston at 9 o'clock today, "because it gave us a birdseye view of the situation and enabled us to fix the geographical outline of the country in our minds."

Throughout the entire trip the committee did not see a single disturbance or sign of disorder. A quiet reign of terror seemed almost unnatural except where a stir of activity indicated a mine. A half dismantled sheet-iron shed used as a fort and a number of bullet-riddled houses were the only signs the committee saw of the state of virtual civil war which lately existed.

Boarding-House Viewed Hurdled.

The committee's special train went directly to the head of Clin Creek, the valley nearest Charleston, where, at an impromptu stop at Carbon mining camp, the committee first detained. A hurried look through one boarding-house, where in two rooms eight cots were huddled in confusion and dirt was all the committee had time for.

At Decatur, the next stop, the Senators were shown what was believed to be a model mining camp. A Y. M. C. A. building with games, a reading room, baths and outdoor swimming pool was one of the features and a moving-picture show for the miners was another.

Senator Kenyon's interest in the housing arrangements and a conversation with the wife of an Irish miner nearly marooned him at the next stop, Kayford. The special train moved off leaving the Senator behind, and just as it was pulling out of sight the Senator, hat in hand, dashed down the slope to the tracks signalling frantically. The train was stopped and he was taken aboard.

At Acme and Eskdale the committee examined scores of the company's houses, rented to the miners. They were two-room, four-room houses, many in a state of bad repair. A bed, a table and some trinkets and a chair formed the usual furniture of one of the rooms, and a rough kitchen table and a stove equipped the other.

Counsel for the companies explained to the committee that the older houses were rented for $1 a room a month. Representatives of the strikers with the party said that the average rent on the creeks was $6 to $8 a month.

WATER CASE ON HEARING

Service and Supply at Coos Bay Are Declared Bad.
Testimony was taken yesterday by Clyde R. Alchison, State Railroad Commissioner, sitting as a member of the newly formed public utilities commission, in the case of the cities of Marshfield and North Bend against the Coos Bay Water Company.

The plaintiffs are seeking to enforce a reduction in rates, and contend that both the service and the water supply provided by the defendants, who furnish the plaintiffs with their water for public and domestic uses, are inferior.

The Coos Bay Water Company has filed a cross-complaint asking permission to increase rates.

The commission has been investigating conditions on its own initiative. Dr. Calvin S. White, State Health Officer, yesterday testified that he had made an examination of the water and that it is pure. He recommended, however, that concrete reservoirs instead of earthen reservoirs be installed.

Tomorrow the bacteriologists from the state university will give the results of their examinations of the water supply.

John P. Goff, City Attorney of Marshfield, represents that city; City Attorney Mullen represents North Bend, and J. N. Teal represents the water company.

Taking of testimony will be continued here today and tomorrow, after which adjournment will be taken to Marshfield, where the case will be concluded next week.
This is the first water case heard by the new utilities commission. Other similar cases pending are those of St. Johns, Salem and Grants Pass.

SUFFRAGE LESSENS CRIME

Los Angeles Police Chief Speaks of Home Town Conditions.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Woman suffrage as a means of lessening crime was advocated here today by C. E. Sebastian, Chief of Police of Los Angeles, in an address before the closing session of the annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs.

Chief Sebastian declared that through suffrage recognition of police women in Los Angeles had been obtained and crime had been materially reduced. He added, however, that he had helped break down the false modesty which had prevented public discussion of sex problems.

The chiefs chose Grand Rapids, Mich., as their next meeting place and re-elected all officers except sergeant-at-arms.

Telephonic devices as means of detecting crime were approved in a resolution adopted at the final session.

BABY TALK AIDS MOTHER

Woman Taken From Train Unconscious Recovers Her Identity.

OTTAWA, Kan., June 12.—Through the prattle of her 3-year-old daughter, Mrs. Eunice Ake, of Oroville, Cal., who was taken from a Missouri Pacific train here Tuesday night, was able today to recall her identity.
Mrs. Ake was on her way to Brazil, Ind., when she was taken from the train here there was a bruise on her face. She recovered consciousness yesterday, but could not recall her name. A nurse today asked the little girl her name.

"Baby Ake," she answered.
The mother overheard and solved the mystery of her own identity. She does not remember the cause of her becoming unconscious.

WOMAN CONFESSES MURDERS WITH AX

Sleeping Husband and Child
Struck Down as Result of Impulse, She Says.

RESPONSIBILITY IS DENIED

Mrs. Arthur Kellar, of Harrisonville, Mo., Declares Blow on Head
Two Years Ago Affected Her.
Realization Follows Act.

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., June 12.—Mrs. Arthur Kellar confessed today that it was she who killed her husband, a railroad laborer, and their daughter, Margaret, 7 years old, last Tuesday.

Kellar and the girl were slain with an ax as they lay in their beds. The confession brought to a quick termination the coroner's inquest that has been in session two days in an attempt to place the responsibility for the murder. Mrs. Kellar was taken to jail.

Plea of Irresponsibility Made.
"God knows I would not have killed them had I known what I was doing," Mrs. Kellar said in her confession. She declared she had frequently been irresponsible for her actions since she received a blow on the head two years ago.

In her confession Mrs. Kellar relates that when she went to bed Monday night she was feeling bad and lay down with her clothes on.

Later she awoke, and impelled by a force she could not resist, she says, she secured the ax, and returning to the room where her husband and Margaret were asleep in the same bed struck them both, blow on blow. Only after the deed was done did she realize what she had done.

Effort Made to Hide Crime.
After she realized what had happened, Mrs. Kellar says, she set fire to some paper on a chair near Kellar's bed that she might see better.

Later she went to the kitchen, lighted a lantern, and returned with water with which she bathed Margaret's wounds.

Then she picked up the ax and broke a piece off her own bed that she might make it appear that she also had been asleep.

She then went to the neighbors and told the story of the mysterious man who had fled as she awakened after he had struck her with an ax, but had failed to hit her and had struck the bed instead.

The officers said tonight that the woman's five-year-old daughter, before she confessed, admitted to them that while concealed behind a door in an adjoining room he had seen his mother strike the blows that killed his father and sister. He said he jumped into bed and pretended to be asleep when Mrs. Kellar went into his room.

WEST WOULD BE FARMER

GOVERNOR SAYS HE IS UNABLE TO AFFORD AUTOMOBILE.

Executive Believes That When His Term Expires He Will Have Accomplished Aims.

SALEM, Or., June 12.—(Special.)—Despite rumors to the effect that he would be a candidate for re-election and that preliminary arrangements for his campaign were being made, Governor West positively announced today that he would not be a candidate for the office again.

"I want it distinctly understood," declared the Governor, "that I am not who says I will be a candidate for re-election does not know what he is talking about. I think when my term expires I will have accomplished all I started out to accomplish, and that will satisfy me. There is much hard work connected with the office, and the remuneration is not such that a man can save any money."

"Then about all there is to the office is honor?" he was suggested.

"Honor," he said, "is a hang for that," continued the Governor. "I never think of that. What I want to do is to finish my work and then get to work at something so I can provide for my family and make a competency for them. I intend to practice law, but just where I have not decided. Then when I am about 55 or 56 years of age I would like to settle on a ranch and pass the rest of my days there."

The Governor said that the financial drains on him were larger than most people thought. While he lives modestly he said, that his traveling expenses were large. The state now provides $1000 for the traveling expenses of the Governor when on the state's business, but until two years ago only $500 a year was provided. The Governor declared that he could not live like a "piker" when away from home, and the expenses of many of his trips were paid by himself.

Governor West said that he had never bought an automobile because he did not want one, would have one if somebody would make him a present of it, couldn't operate it if he had it, and above all could not afford a machine.
