

ACTRESS, AS BABY, HOWLING SUCCESS

Oregon Woman Who Dandled Blanche Bates as Infant Visits With Star.

REUNION MOST HAPPY ONE

Mrs. Charlotte Zeiber Tells Famous Player What a Pudding-Dumping-Like, Black-Eyed Child, Like Her Mother, She Was.

Now if you read of this train of coincidences in a magazine story, you would think it was a mere coincidence. But it is not. It is a fact. It is a fact that Mrs. Charlotte Zeiber, who dandled Blanche Bates as a baby, is now visiting with her in Portland.

Then, too, I had to give Blanche Bates an interview. Of course there is the regulation thing to be interviewed about. "Why I like this play best of all," "Should we be doing more?" and "What shall we do to uplift the drama," besides a thousand others from art to auto.

That Much Is Settled. So we crossed our hearts and swore we'd make Mrs. Zeiber stick to the text. Then we journeyed out to a little cottage nestled among the roses.

Blanche Was Regular Dumpting. "Was I awfully red and equally—oh, do tell me—was I a baby?"

"Yes, you were just a dear, little, cuddly baby, and had no hair, no teeth, no ears, no nose, no mouth, no hands, no feet, no fingers, no toes, no nails, no hair, no teeth, no ears, no nose, no mouth, no hands, no feet, no fingers, no toes, no nails."

Celia Suddenly Disappears. "Celia used to come and see me every year. I've played here until this time," said Miss Bates.

WORK NOT DELAYED

Street Committee Orders Extension of Broadway.

GRADE SEPARATION STARTS

Work in Southeast Part of City Postponed Until Spring at Request of Property Owners and $75,000 of Paving Is Ordered.

Despite the fact that there were more than 100 remonstrances from property owners, the street committee of the City Council at its final meeting yesterday instructed City Attorney Grant to commence at once proceedings for the condemnation of a right-of-way for the extension of Broadway from Sandy boulevard to East Forty-fifth street, a distance of approximately 1800 feet.

The proposed extension has been contemplated for many years and is said to be badly needed in the district. Broadway now ends at Sandy boulevard, and the extension would cross East Thirty-eighth street.

Trucks May Be Lowered. It is expected that the railroad company will lower its tracks. This, it is said, would be least costly to the city and present a better appearance than would the lowering of the street grade to permit of trains passing overhead.

JAIL SENTENCE IMPOSED

Prosecution Asks for Severity in Case of Sale of Firearms.

As an example to all dealers who carry on an illicit trade in firearms, sentence of 20 days in jail was imposed in Municipal Court yesterday upon Alexander Goldstein, a second-hand dealer on lower Main street, for selling to Oscar Nelson the revolver with which he held up an automobile on the Slavin road last week.

Goldstein appealed and his bond is fixed at $250, pending action by the Circuit Court. Nelson is serving 200 days at the city reformatory, and is the principal witness against Goldstein.

BOARDS TO REMAIN

Mayor-Elect Announces Temporary Retention.

Retention of the various boards and commissions, at least temporarily, is probable, according to Mayor-elect Albee, who said yesterday that, while no action has been taken on this feature, this probably will be the course to be followed by the City Commission which will take office July 1.

There has been considerable unrest in the various departments, owing to fear of sweeping changes that were rumored. There is no foundation for these rumors, according to authority, as it undoubtedly will require time in which to adjust the new charter to conditions or the conditions to the charter.

James C. Murray, who died yesterday at his late home at 544 Couch street, was one of the most widely known commercial travelers in this locality. For 17 years prior to his death he represented a San Francisco hardware firm, with headquarters in Portland. Previous to that time he represented Goldsmith & Loewenberg for 20 years.

Mr. Murray was born at Mill Plain, Wash., August 4, 1852, and spent his early boyhood there. He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Lena Abrams, Mrs. E. E. Green and Mrs. William Bradsen.

BANKERS VIEW BILL

Portland Men Believe President Has Begun Rightly.

Students of Finance Agree, With Brief Facts at Hand, That Plan for Central and Regional Institutions Is Good.

It is gratifying to Portland bankers to know that President Wilson has determined to have a currency measure enacted at the present special session of Congress.

Although the general outline of the measure drafted by the President and the House currency and banking committee is not sufficiently enlightening to allow the formation of positive opinions on the subject, bank officials believe that the bill furnishes a possible solution for the currency problem that has been perplexing the financial interests of the country since the panic of 1907.

President's Start Indorsed. Edward Cookingham, vice-president of the Ladd & Tilton Bank, who has given this subject much thought and study, believes that the president has started in the right way to remedy existing currency evils.

"I always have been an advocate of a central bank with branches established in different parts of the country. The reports that we have on the proposed measure are too indefinite as to details. We won't be able to form opinions on the subject until we have read and digested the bill and all its provisions."

Objection Not Expected. R. L. Durham, president of the Merchants National Bank, likewise agreed that the country needs a central bank of issue, and that the size of the country makes it necessary to have branches of this central bank.
