

REST FOR WOMEN AND WORKERS ASKED

Welfare Body Seeks Suspension of Saturday Night Work During Hot Months.

APPEAL IS TO EMPLOYERS

Conference Called for Friday, When Agreement Will Be Urged Some Extension of Lunch Hour to Be Requested.

With the idea of providing relief for women and minor workers during the hot summer months by relieving them from labor Saturday nights, the Industrial Welfare Commission has called a conference with representatives of retail stores to be held Friday at the commission's headquarters, 610 Commercial building.

Such a conference was held last Friday, with eight concerns represented. The Industrial Welfare Commission was brought into existence by appointment from Governor West, acting under an act passed by the last Legislature. It consists of three members, and its duties and powers are to inquire into the wages, hours and conditions of working women and minors.

At the first meeting of the commission, June 5, Father O'Hara was chosen chairman. Father O'Hara was chosen chairman. Father O'Hara was chosen chairman.

The commission has decided to enlist the co-operation of employers for the relief of employees wherever possible, and only to resort to legal compulsion when employers refuse to accept the terms which the commission considers just.

Late Conference Agree. At last Friday's conference the employers present agreed with the members of the commission that women and minors should not be compelled to work Saturday evenings during the hot weather, provided all competing firms comply with the regulation.

Another matter that the commission will take up at an early date is that of an extension of the lunch hour for girls who work in factories and offices. In some places they are given a half hour or less for lunch. This the commission holds, is wrong hygienically, and it will seek to have the noon rest period extended to a full hour, without detracting from the time taken to any other part of the working day.

ZIGOMAR III ENDS TONIGHT

'Battle of Gettysburg' Title of New Peoples Headline Film.

'Zigomar III' yesterday lapped over the usual Sunday afternoon at Peoples theater and played to the biggest Sunday business which that theater has enjoyed in the past six months. The management tried in every conceivable way to extend its run, but previous contracts make it necessary to terminate the engagement with tonight's performances. After months of negotiation the Peoples secured the five-reel production of the historical spectacle 'The Battle of Gettysburg.' Just now Oregon is about to send 75 survivors of the great fight to the 80th anniversary of the battle. The production is beyond question the greatest war picture ever shown. It cost $100,000, 2500 actors and the entire regiments of infantry and cavalry having parts. It is not only a thing of the most thrilling nature, but it is highly educational. The management has so much confidence in its superior excellence that teachers, ministers, the Board of Censorship, the School Board, the Press Club and all persons interested in education are invited to visit the Peopling theater at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to witness a private exhibition of the five reels, which it takes to tell the story.
